AMES PAINTS LODGE AS A CRUSHING BOSS

Senator Serves Selfish Financial Schemes, Says Representative Who Seeks His Seat.

AN APPEAL TO ROOSEVELT

Representative Thinks He Should Not Permit Friendship to Move Him to Aid Lodge.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Formal announcement of his candidacy to succeed Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts was made to-night by Representative Butler Ames. The announcement was coupled with a bitter excoriation of "Boss Lodge and his political machine."

Mr. Ames expresses his inability to understand how former President Roosevelt can lend his political support to one "even though a friend, who has consistently violated in his State all the moral teachings of which he [Roosevelt] is the great exponent." He adds that the people of that State will realize that the former President "could not have the intimate knowledge, acquired through sorrowful experience and possessed by each citizen of Massachusetts, and so would not appreciate that his support of Mr. Lodge was out of keeping with the facts."

It has been understood for some months that Mr. Ames cherishes ambitions to come to the Senate. Heretofore no formal announcement of his candidacy has been made. His announcement says:

"Mr. Ames now makes the official announcement of his candidacy for the United States Senate, having tried in vain to induce some one else to lead the fight against Boss Lodge and his political machine.

"This machine, backed by all the large corporations and by all the State and Federal patronage at his command, has served for many years as a ready and efficient tool to crush all political ambitions, endeavors, or opinions not sanctioned by Mr. Lodge. His orders have gone out to crush, not only to suit his own political ends, but also to advance the selfish financial schemes of the railroad, banking, and manufacturing interests he serves in the halls of Congress, as well as in the Massachusetts Legislature.

"His machine, controlling for so many years the political destinies in the State, has been connected with, has been a party to, and has grown up with the lobby that plies its trade at the State House. The well-recognized leader of the lobby has been a member of the State Central Committee for more than a decade. In that committee he has been a leader, and his word was law. For, was and is he not one of Lodge's closest political friends and advisers?

"This man was driven from the Republican State Central Committee last Fall by outraged public sentiment, and though still the head of the lobby, has been kept away from the State House this year for appearance sake, and has done his work through lieutenants. His attendance at the State House during past years was so regular that his absence this year has been the cause of almost daily comment. It is of interest to know that in the successful campaign waged in Haverhill last Fall against the slamesing of the State political machine and the lobby, Mr. Lodge was entertained at this man's home in that city.

"And for Mr. Lodge, the chosen representative of Massachusetts in the Senate of the United States, to try, by craftily worded amendment and later by attempted influence on the Secretary of the Navy, to secure the purchase of two colliers not then needed or asked for by the navy at a price away in excess of that at which more desirable boats were bought in order to render cringing service to some Boston capitalists, so that they might stand by him with their wealth and power and influence at a time like this, was to take what belonged to the country for his political allies and reflects honor neither upon himself nor on the State.

"While he is conscious of his own shortcomings no one recognizes more quickly than does Mr. Ames the talents possessed by Mr. Lodge, a scholar, a historian, an author of wide and varied experience, and whose very length of service ought under ordinary circumstances to be a bar to his removal.

"With all his gifts and opportunities, he has made such use of them that his continuance in public life depends not upon his service to the people of his State but to a political machine. This machine is used as a club for the individual of independent thought and action, while it serves as a willing tool to those of wealth of influence and power seeking undue favors.

"The public state of mind in the State to-day is the result, not of what has been said against Mr. Lodge, for no one has dared to attack him, but of each individual's own interpretation of his acts and utterances and of the conduct of the machine of which he is the moving force. The Lodge machine and the lobby worked in the Senate again this year to successfully defeat the Direct Primary bill, which had passed the House. With direct primaries it is universally admitted Mr. Lodge would have no possible chance of re-election.

"The issue of the coming campaign will be Lodgeism and political misrule with the open connivance of the machine lobby with large financial interests to control elections and legislative action. The defeat of Mr. Lodge and the termination of this machine will tend more than anything else to party success, not only in the State but in the Nation. It will restore confidence in Republican management by divorcing the Legislature lobby from the political machine, and by defeating a public official who has so long served the private interests rather than the public good."

BIG VOTE FOR DIAZ.

He Is Re-elected President of Mexico by Overwhelming Majority.

MEXICO CITY, June 26.—Gen. Porfirio Diaz was to-day elected President of Mexico and Ramon Corral Vice President by an overwhelming majority, according to returns received from all over the country to-night.

The Anti-Re-electionist ticket, headed by Francisco I. Madero, now under arrest in San Luis Potosi, received about 2 per cent. of the vote cast in Mexico City, according to an unofficial statement to-night. It is estimated that between 40,000 and 50,000 votes were cast in the capital.

The city was free from disorders of a serious nature, though at several voting places of the candidates running against the Administration Party nominees had personal encounters with officers in charge.

Eight hundred electors were chosen in Mexico City, of whom only four are of the anti-re-electionists. From telegrams received from various parts of the republic the same proportion seems to prevail throughout the country.

President Diaz cast his vote at 11 o'clock this morning. Vice President Corral cast his ballot an hour earlier. The election in Mexico City passed off so quietly that only those interested in politics knew from appearances that an election was in progress.

The electors chosen to-day will meet next Monday in the Electoral College to vote on July 10 for Deputies and Senators, on July 11 to declare the election of a President and Vice President, and on July 12 to name Judges of the Supreme Court.

El Imparcial to-morrow will say that the election to-day was a complete triumph for the entire Diaz-Corral ticket.

INSURGENTS CLAIM CREDIT.

Murdock Says Anti-Cannonism Made Action of Congress Possible.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The insurgents in the House of Representatives were responsible for much of the important legislation passed during the session of Congress just closed, according to Representative Murdock of Kansas, one of the leaders of the insurgent band. The Railroad Rate bill and the rest of the vital legislation passed were "effective and responsive to the public will," he declared to-night, "just in proportion as the Speaker's power was broken, his lieutenants overborne, and his machine scattered."

Mr. Murdock's declaration to-day was in reply to that made by Speaker Cannon last night just before Congress adjourned, in which the Speaker said that "the changes of rules have contributed to the pleasure and perhaps the power of some individuals in the House, but the current of legislation itself has moved on as usual, with little disturbance on account of a few new methods, and with little advantage therefrom.

"In his formal statement," said Mr. Murdock, "Speaker Cannon took pains to say that the constructive legislation of this Congress was the best in thirty years. He did not acknowledge, as he should, that it was the activity of those so-called insurgents in the House which touched all the major measures passed with a vitality that similar legislation has not had for years.

"The constructive legislation passed at this session has been reponsive to the popular desire, and the reason for it is that the manacles have been falling from the members of the House.

"The tendency there since last December has been toward free government. Tyranny in committees, brutal cloture in the House, arrogance in the Chair have been under constant fire. The tendency has been toward free government in the House. Legislation has become more and more the work of the whole membership, serving the whole Nation, and less and less the work of a political ring serving its own selfish purposes. It was the challenge to Cannon and Cannonism that made the legislation what it is, and every unprejudiced member of Congress knows it."

PANIC AT A PICTURE SHOW.

Woman Falls In Convulsions When an Indian Whoops and Will Die.

"The Forest Ranger" was on last night at the Regal Theatre, 2,028 Third Avenue, a moving-picture house. "The Forest Ranger" was described as a "big Western drama," and "Big Chief Rosa, head of the Apaches," had been employed to accompany the pictures with war whoops, dances, and bow-and-arrow work.

At 9:30 o'clock, after the "Big Chief" had given three or four blood-curdling whoops, the pictures meanwhile showing white men being scalped wholesale by Indians, a woman in the third row gave a shriek and fell to the floor, dropping her 18-months-old baby boy, who rolled around on the floor, screaming at the top of his voice. Through the dark house the word spread somehow that something terrible had happened, and in a few minutes the entire audience had stampeded for the doors.

When the lights were turned on the woman was found on the floor, going into one convulsion after another. The baby was crawling around on the floor, with two big lumps on his head, but satisfied. Policeman Gick, who had come in, could not find anything in the woman's purse to identify her. She and the baby were removed to the Harlem Hospital, where the surgeons said she would die. At midnight she was still in convulsions.

LOVE CAN'T BAKE BREAD.

Dr. Hill Tells His Flock That's One Cause of the Many Divorces.

"While men sleep, the divorce monster is growing," said the Rev. Dr. John Wesley Hill at the Metropolitan Temple yesterday morning, the last Sunday before his Summer vacation, "and this citadel of our civilization is being undermined and overthrown. The devil is foreclosing a mortgage on our country."

The clergyman said he thought marriage should be the outcome of judgment as well as of romance, "for love cannot harmonize incompatibilities, expand narrow minds, overcome physical disabilities, or bake bread, any more than the relations between husband and wife can be wisely and happily affected by love without judgment.

"To drink," he continued, "the devil of strength which drags men from home, the ruin of many families is attributed, and in the pale face in the kitchen and the hungry little mouths about the hearth stone the ravages of the evil can be traced.

"As an antidote for matrimonial infelicity, first of all, uniform legislation is proposed, so that it will not be possible to step across the line from one State into another, and upon a few weeks' residence in a city already made infamous by the countenance it gives to prizefighting, evade legislation against the divorce cobra which is encircling our National life and injecting its poison into our institutions.

"Marriage must be regarded in its true light of a divine institution, not created by man or otherwise. If it become a civil institution man may dissolve the relations with his wife just as with a servant or his cook."

THREE MORE SHOT IN A TONG BATTLE

Gun Men of Rival Chinatown Factions Open Fire on Each Other Near a Church.

PASTOR TO CALL ON GAYNOR

Police Round Up a Squad of Prisoners and Stop a Celebration—One of the Victims Dead.

The gun men of the On Leong Tong and the Four Brothers clan exchanged some forty shots yesterday afternoon in a running street fight in Chinatown, and when the smoke blew away it was found that three Chinamen had been wounded. One died last night and another is not expected to recover. This outbreak will lead to-day to an appeal to Mayor Gaynor by Father Diamond of the Church of the Transfiguration in Mott Street in the hope that he can find a way to settle the differences of the factions, or at least afford the peaceable element in Chinatown better police protection than they have been gettting.

The Church of the Transfiguration is only a few steps from the corner of Mott and Pell Streets, where the shooting began, and some of the bullets flew close to the heads of the Sunday School teachers and their pupils, who were just leaving the church.

Father Diamond will tell the Mayor all about it. He says he will also tell the Mayor that Chinatown has become the harbor for droves of women of the streets, and that the old-time conditions which prevailed before Police Capt. Michael Galvin gave the Chinese quarter a house-cleaning have returned.

Yesterday was to have been a big day for the members of the Four Brothers. They had planned to hold a dinner and reception at 5 P. M. at the Chinese Delmonico's, 24 Pell Street. All of the leading figures in the Four Brothers were to be there, for the occasion was to celebrate not only the founding of the clan but to make merry over the recent acquittal of a Four Brothers man, Chen Hen by name, who was charged with killing an On Leong Tong man at Park Row and Pearl Street on Sunday, April 10.

Tried to Make Peace.

This killing was one of four that day in the Chinese quarters of this city and Philadelphia, and inspired the ineffectual efforts of the Chinese Legation at Washington and Judge Foster to patch up peace between the rival tongs.

All Chinatown knew about the dinner which had been planned for Chen Hen. Word had gone around that old Sam Lock, leader of the Four Brothers; Lou Wee Yat, their President, and several other dignitaries were to make speeches over the rice wine and other delicacies. They were to make a hero of Chen Hen. Nearly a hundred invitations had been sent out.

About 4 o'clock the diners began to arrive. Joe Lock, said to be chief of the Four Brothers' gun men, had heard rumors that some attempt might be made by the On Leong Tong men to raise a disturbance in front of the restaurant while the dinner was on. So he picked some of his best men and stationed them along Pell Street near the main entrance.

The Joe Lock gun men had been standing guard for two hours or more before an On Leong Tong man appeared. About twenty diners had already arrived and were chatting in the dining room. Suddenly one of the Four Brothers gun men caught sight of an On Leong Tong man coming from Mott Street. He was followed by several more. The sentinels drew closer together across the entrance and waited.

Which faction actually fired the first shot is a matter of conjecture. The report of a shot reached the ears of the diners upstairs. Quickly another followed and the battle was on. There was the crash of glass as bullets sped through the windows on each side of Pell Street. A dozen big blue steel revolvers of heavy calibre flashed up and down the streets. Everywhere men were running for cover. Not a head showed in the windows which a moment before had been filled with Chinamen.

Expected a Charge.

The assembled guests in the restaurant clustered around one of the tables and waited, expecting to see a charging group of On Leong Tong men plunge through the door with revolvers drawn. But no On Leong Tong men appeared.

Police Capt. Hodgins, recently appointed to the command of the Chinatown Precinct, had passed the corner of Mott and Pell Streets only a few minutes before with Sergt. Magner of the Elizabeth Street Station. When Capt. Hodgins heard the first few shots he thought they were firecrackers, but soon discovered his mistake, for past him ran a dozen Chinamen, ducking their heads as they ran.

Capt. Hodgins and Sergt. Magner started for the corner full tilt, and were soon joined by Policemen Murphy and Williams, who were also in the neighborhood. The four met at Mott and Pell Streets. Although the shooting was over when they arrived, several Chinamen were still on the scene. Two or three of them were so badly wounded that they could not get away.

Capt. Hodgins grabbed a Chinaman who afterward said that he was Chen Pan, a laundryman, living at 63 Fourth Street, Long Island City. But the police say Pan is a fictitious name, and that he is no other than Chen Hen, the man who was recently acquitted on the charge of killing the On Leong Tong man. He had a bullet wound in his right thigh, and he could not run. There was a blue steel revolver lying only a few feet away which the police say belonged to him. All the chambers were empty.

Capt. Hodgins and Sergt. Magner also caught a Chinaman who some one said was Sen Jim, but whose friends said was Jim Foo, a Four Brothers man, who lives at 28 Pell Street. He had a bullet wound just behind his right ear and another in his neck. He was taken to the Hudson Street Hospital, where he died last night.

One Victim Will Die.

The police also picked up Ching Ging of 28 Pell Street, supposed to be a Four Brothers man. He was wounded in the abdomen. A bullet had ploughed clear through him, and soon after his arrival at the Hudson Street Hospital he was placed on an operating table. The physicians there say he will die.

By the time Capt. Hodgins and his men had gathered up the wounded men a dozen reserves from the Elizabeth Street Station arrived, also several plain clothes men from Headquarters. Then began a search for the gun men. One Chinaman they caught was Wong Hong of 18 Pell Street. The police say he was seen to drop a revolver in a doorway. Other captives were Hong Hong of 18 Mott Street, You Kom of 53 Park Street, and Young Tung of 41 Mott Street. You Kom, the police say, threw his revolver away just as they got him. Young Tung was pulled out from under a bed on the third floor of 41 Mott Street. Each prisoner was charged with felonious assault. The charge against some of them will be changed to manslaughter in the event of the death of either of the wounded men.

Three witnesses also were corraled by the police. They were Leong Lung of 41 Mott Street, Low Kung of 16 Main Street, Flushing, and Sing Young of 33 Mott Street. Half a dozen revolvers were picked up by the police. Capt. Hodgins put a stop to the dinner and celebration.

In order not to miss the many notable features in next Sunday's Times it is important to place orders with news-dealers to-day.

BLAZING STEAMBOAT STARTS MORE FIRES

The Poughkeepsie a Total Loss—Trolley Car and Switch Tower Destroyed.

HIGHLAND SHEDS BURNED

Flames Start Under Vessel's Engine Room—Discovered as She Docks, and Passengers Rushed Ashore.

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 26.—Late this afternoon the steamer Poughkeepsie of the Central Hudson Steamboat Company and the company's storehouses at Highland, opposite this city, were completely destroyed by fire. The motor boat Cardinal, which was used by Coach Ten Eyck of the Wisconsin Navy, was badly damaged. A trolley car of the New Paltz and Poughkeepsie Traction Company and a switch tower on the West Shore Railroad were burned. Traffic on the road was held up for some time. The total loss was about $125,000.

The fire started under the engine room of the steamer and was discovered by the crew just after the vessel docked at Highland. There were but ten passengers on the boat, and they were quickly got ashore. The crew fought the flames with fire hose, but the fire made such rapid headway that the steamer was completely enveloped amidships. The tugboat Annie, which was lying across the river, responded to the whistles of distress and towed the steamer into midstream. At this time the vessel was a mass of flames from stem to stern, and drifted up the river about a mile, after which she was beached by the tug, a complete loss.

The big storehouses on the wharf caught fire from the burning steamer before it was towed away, and the buildings were soon a mass of flames. On the north side of the wharf was the motor boat Cardinal, which also took fire.

The steamer Poughkeepsie was formerly the Daniel S. Miller. She was built in Brooklyn in 1862. Ten years ago she was completely rebuilt. The vessel was 182 feet in length, 34 feet beam, and 810 gross tonnage. She was insured for $50,000.

THREE EXCURSIONISTS DEAD.

Rest of 1,500 on Steamer J. S. Get Ashore When She Burns.

LA CROSSE, Wis., June 26.—Only three persons out of 1,500 lost their lives Saturday night through the burning in the Mississippi River of the excursion steamer J. S., according to officers of the Acme Packet Company, owner of the vessel, after a careful search and rechecking of passengers to-day. While five other persons were severely hurt in the panic, and fifty more were cut and bruised in escaping from the boat before it burned to the water, those who went through the experience of fire and water declare that the small number of casualties seems marvelous to them.

Prompt work by the crew and cool-headed men among the passengers in controlling the frantic people after the first alarm of fire was sounded was all that prevented hundreds of persons from jumping into the river in midstream. Mrs. Emma Randall of New Albion, Iowa, was the only one who broke through the guard on the edge of the decks. Twenty men had arms outstretched to grasp her when she plunged from the upper deck into the water and drowned. Her body was not recovered.

An unidentified woman was drowned while leaving the steamer. John Plane of Waukon, Iowa, was locked in the boat's brig in the hold for disorderly conduct, and in the excitement of the panic no one thought to release him. His charred body is in the river with the hulk of the steamer, which sank after the boat had burned to the water.

Many thrilling stories of escape are told by the passengers, who all reached their homes to-day after each had sought out friends and relatives from the confusion that followed the fire and the hasty landing on Bad Axe Island, twenty-five miles south of La Crosse, where the steamer was beached ten minutes after the fire started. It is said that a cigarette stub started the flames under a stairway, but nothing definite has been ascertained regarding the origin of the fire.

Although the scramble to shore on Bad Axe Island was hazardous and unpleasant, comparatively good order prevailed. All night long boats carried the stranded passengers to Lansing, Iowa, where most of them live, but it was well into Sunday before the last excursionist was removed from the island.

The loss to the Acme Packet Company is $60,000. Nearly every passenger on the steamer lost clothing, bundles, money, jewelry, and other valuables in the rush for land, and it is said that this combined loss will aggregate $10,000.

The steamer J. S. had been in commission many years as an excursion boat. It took its load Saturday from Lansing, Iowa to La Crosse and was returning Saturday night when the fire started.

THREE DIE IN HOTEL FIRE.

Seneca House and Adjoining Building in Seneca Falls Destroyed.

SENECA FALLS, N. Y., June 26.—Three persons lost their lives and another had a narrow escape from serious injury in a fire that destroyed the new Seneca House here to-day. A building adjoining the hotel was also burned, and the loss is estimated at $40,000.

The dead are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas White of Rochester and an unidentified man who did not register when he arrived last night. His body was still in the ruins to-night. About twenty persons were in the house, but the others escaped.

White had been working here for two weeks, and expected to return to Rochester to-morrow. His wife arrived last night to spend Sunday with him. The unidentified man had a room in the basement.

CARS CRASH IN BROADWAY.

Women Try to Leap Off When One Scrapes Another at 23d St.

Passengers in a Columbus Avenue car were badly scared last night when it was scraped by a Lexington Avenue car at Broadway and Twenty-third Street. Both cars were crowded and many women attempted to jump off.

The motorman of the Columbus Avenue car thought that the one ahead had cleared the switch and put on full power. The rear of the Lexington Avenue car was smashed in and the running board and guard rails of the other were ripped off for half its length.

Arthur Krausberg of 2,107 Classon Avenue, the Bronx, who was in the front seat, received injuries to his leg and face. He was taken to the New York Hospital.

PARACHUTE FAILING, HE DROPS 500 FEET

Taylor Lands on His Feet, but the Shock May Cause His Death.

CROWD SEES THE ACCIDENT

Injured Man's Partner, Though a Witness, Too, Successfully Performs Similar Feat Near Newark.

While essaying what had been advertised on the billboards of Hillside Park, near Newark, N. J., as a "Double Double-Parachute Leap," George Taylor of Philadelphia, one of the two performers in the act, was dropped several hundred feet to the ground yesterday afternoon when his second parachute failed to open. He received injuries which may prove fatal. His partner, Thomas Moore of Jacksonville, Fla., was compelled to wait on the roof of a house where he had landed until a neighbor had unlocked the doors, the family being away. He was kept there in forced inactivity for nearly half an hour, although he could see that his fellow-performer was injured seriously. Taylor was picked up by some bystanders and hurried in an automobile to St. Mary's Hospital in Passaic, where it was said the shock had caused a blood tumor to form on the spine and the patient might not recover.

Moore and Taylor have just come from the South, and were hired by the managers of the amusement park to perform their act. They tried it yesterday for the first time. Both men were to ascend in a large balloon and after a height of 1,000 feet had been reached, Taylor was to "cut loose" in one parachute, to which was attached another for use after he had gone half way to the ground. It was the failure of this second parachute to open which caused the performer's accident. Moore was to ascend still higher and then duplicate his partner's performance. Both men were friends of Fred Owens, the young aeronaut who recently astonished lower New York by appearing over it in a dirigible, and fetched up disastrously among the branches of a tree in Brooklyn. His apparatus was stored in Hillside Park and Moore and Taylor used parachutes that belonged to him in their performance yesterday.

The ascent was made shortly after 5 o'clock. The big balloon went up from a field in the park in good style with the two men clinging to its rigging. As it ascended it could be seen that it was drifting with the wind over toward Nutley. When it was so high in the air as to seem only a speck, a figure could be seen to detach itself and fall outward, check for a moment as the first parachute opened, and then start downward easily. It was estimated that Taylor was nearly a thousand feet in the air when he made his jump. When he had reached an altitude of about five hundred feet the spectators could see that he was making ready to cast off the first parachute and drop in the second.

The drop came, and every one looked for the second wind-umbrella to open and put an end to the speed with which he was falling. But it did not open. The performer squirmed and twisted on his ropes in an effort to jar the fastening loose, but he was helpless. The crowd gasped. Taylor was falling like a spent skyrocket. As he disappeared under the sky line the crowd rose and started on a run in the direction where he had been seen to fall. All thought of the second performer who was about to duplicate Taylor's feat was lost to most of their minds.

Taylor ended his drop in a field on the edge of Nutley, about a mile from the park. He dropped squarely on his feet and fell in a heap on the ground. The parachute fell on him. Up to the last minute he had been struggling with it, but the only service it had done him was to offer sufficient resistance to the wind to keep him falling feet first. If he had lost his nerve and let go, he would have landed on his upper body or his head and probably would have been killed instantly.

Several persons were near at hand when he fell, and these rushed into the field. To their surprise they found that Taylor was not dead. He was not even unconscious, and between the groans that he could not suppress they learned that his injury was in the back. He was carried to an automobile owned by J. N. Bartlett of Nutley and rushed on the twenty-minute drive to St. Mary's Hospital in Passaic. When the doctors examined him there they said that the sudden stoppage when he was in an erect position had sent a shock through the length of his spine, and it probably would be found that a blood tumor had been formed. They set about relieving this, and last night it was said that he had a chance for recovery.

Meantime, Moore, more than 1,500 feet in the air, had seen the accident to his partner, whose course he had been following. He could not afford to wait, however, and see the outcome, as the balloon was not only drifting, but taking him higher. He cut loose and made the first drop in safety. When he came within five hundred feet of the ground he jumped with the second parachute, trusting for a better result than Taylor had met with. His apparats did not fail him, and presently he landed half a mile from his starting place on the roof of a house in Whitford Avenue in Nutley owned by Otto Bluhm, a stock broker. After he had been let down through the house he hastened to the hospital to see Taylor.

DIDN'T NEED AN AIRSHIP.

Gas Explosion Sent Murphy Up 30 Feet, but He Came Down Suddenly.

Thomas Murphy of 168 Webster Avenue, an employe of the Edison Illuminating Company, was in the Brooklyn Subway excavation at Fourth Avenue and Tenth Street yesterday morning at 9:30 o'clock splicing cables. He had with him down there an acetelyne gas tank, and by his side were some tools and pieces of gas pipe. Murphy doesn't know what offended the gas tank, but suddenly it exploded.

Thomas Murphy came out of the hole suddenly. He rose up into the air some thirty feet, he thinks, and then came down again. The breath was out of him and he could not talk. Policeman Lush, who saw him go up, called an ambulance, which hurried him away to Seney Hospital, but there was nothing the matter with Murphy. He told the doctors that when he got his breath back, and went home.

When Murphy rose from the hole in the ground there came up with him the gas pipe and his stray tools. These entered into the parlor windows of William White's home, on the third floor of the house at 463 Fourth Avenue, and landed among the family. They made considerable noise and something of a muss of broken glass, but they injured no one.

Boy Husband's Marriage Annulled.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., June 26.—Justice Aspinall, sitting in Special Term in Chambers here yesterday, granted an annulment of the marriage of Charles and Jessie Robinson of 182 East Seventy-fifth Street, Manhattan. The couple were married by Justice of the Peace Edward Markley in Jersey City, N. J., on Dec. 23, 1909, the bridegroom being only 18 years of age. The action was brought by his father, Benjamin A. Robinson, as guardian.

ROOSEVELTS AT NEW HOME.

Young Theodore in San Francisco with Bride—Asks to be Left Alone.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., who is registered with his bride at a downtown hotel here, is anxious to avoid notoriety. He said last night:

"I do not care for unmerited prominence. We intend to settle down quietly and live as any young couple would on a limited income. We shall make our home in San Francisco and be San Franciscans. I went into the carpet business because I believe it to be a good, substantial business. I have no desire for inordinate wealth and all I want is to be left alone."

BRIBERY JURY STILL OUT.

District Attorney Insists That One Man Only Is for Browne.

CHICAGO, June 26.—Apparently no nearer a verdict than at the beginning of their deliberation, the jurymen in the Lee O'Neill Browne Senatorial bribery case are still out. They will pass the fifty-sixth hour at midnight. Judge McSurely was ready to-day and to-night to go to the Court House the moment there was a possibility of a verdict.

Both sides seem to have abandoned hope for a verdict, but the jury will not be discharged until to-morrow, and possibly not then. State Attorney Wayman still maintains that the jury is 11 to 1 for conviction, and that it has stood thus from the early balloting.

BOYS' ROMANCE SPOILED.

Police Raid Camp Established in Maine by New Rochelle Lads.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Me., June 26.—The efforts of two boys from New Rochelle, N. Y., to lead a frontier life came to an end last night when the Portland police raided the camp they had built in the woods near here. The police confiscated the boys' pistols and lassoes and took them to a police station. The boys are Theodore Teckmark, 16 years old, son of a hotelkeeper, and Harry Tilton, 15 years old, son of a milk dealer at New Rochelle.

The police had received word from relatives of the boys to look for them in this section, and learned of their camp through word brought by trappers. They had built a rough hut of small logs, and, as they had a little money, had been living well. They were loth to leave their comfortable quarters.

DUNNING NOTICES BARRED.

Words on Envelopes Indicating Delinquency Are Held Unlawful.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The Assistant Attorney General for the Post Office Department has decided that the practice adopted by some firms of putting dunning notices on the envelopes containing bills which they are impatient to collect is unlawful. Envelopes submitted to the department by a business concern of this city bore in one case the stamped impression:

"Past due. This account has no doubt escaped your notice. Will you please favor us with a remittance and oblige."

In another case the words "Collection Department," written in red ink, were submitted.

GREAT RUSH TO IDITAROD.

Ten Thousand Gold Seekers Arrive and Confusion Is Great.

Special to The New York Times.

TACOMA, Wash., June 26.—In the last week 10,000 goldseekers have been landed by steamers at the mouth of Otter Creek, on the Iditarod River, the scene of the latest Alaska gold stampede. Between 3,000 and 5,000 more are on the way. The landing of the thousands of newcomers with their baggage and thousands of tons of freight in the Iditarod wilderness has created confusion surpassing anything Alaska had previously experienced.

Several thousand "sourdoughs" who have mined in Klondike and Alaska camps know exactly what to do. They are spreading out on Otter Flat Willow and other gold-bearing creeks. Merchants from Nome and Fairbanks are erecting temporary buildings and starting business. The best of order is being preserved by Deputy United States Marshals Wiseman of Koyukuk and Sheppard of Ophir. These were sent to Iditarod by Marshal Crossly of Fairbanks on his own initiative. Otter City, at the mouth of Otter Creek, the metropolis of Iditarod, is being surveyed.

TWO WEDDED, THEN EXECUTED

Valladolid Rioters Allowed to Marry Before Facing Mexican Firing Squad.

MEXICO CITY, June 26.—Two brides were made widows a few hours after the wedding ceremonies were performed in the penitentiary at Valladolid, Yucatan, yesterday, when their husbands faced a firing squad selected to execute them in accordance with sentences passed after their trial by the War Department for sedition and murder, the accusation growing out of their participation in the recent uprising at Valladolid.

For several days a number of prisoners have been on trial. Three were sentenced to death and executed yesterday, after remaining in the death chamber all day. Three were sentenced to fifteen years in the penitentiary, with perpetual loss of citizenship, and four were sentenced to serve thirteen years in prison.

Immediately after the death sentences were pronounced on the three men charged with murder, two of them asked permission to marry before they were executed. Their requests were granted, and the young women went to the prison for the marriage ceremonies, knowing that within a few hours they would be widows.

SHOCKED TO DEATH ON TRAIN.

Poker, Carried by a Fireman, Touched a Live Wire Overhead.

Charles E. Spayde, a fireman on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, was shocked to death by electricity at New Rochelle yesterday afternoon when a big poker he was carrying came in contact with a live wire. Eleven thousand volts passed through his body.

Spayde, who was on a freight train bound for Boston, dropped the poker he had been using. As the train was running slowly he leaped from the engine, and, picking up the iron rod, he climbed on a box car and started to walk over the cars to the tender, carrying it on his shoulder.

He forgot the network of overhead wires, and the poker touched one of the wires. The current killed him instantly, and he rolled to the tracks, the wheels cutting off both legs.

Railroad men ran to him and found his clothing on fire. Coroner Boedecker of Mount Vernon found that the upper part of Spayde's body had been burned almost black by the electricity.

SUMMON DOCTORS TO CALM CHARLTON

Young Wife Slayer Suffers a Nervous Breakdown in the Hudson County Jail.

SCARES HIS CELLMATE

Burglar Calls Warden When Charlton Begins to Moan and Wring His Hands—Jail Physician Sure He's Insane.

Physicians were hurriedly sent for from the Hudson County (N. J.) Jail yesterday afternoon to attend Porter Charlton, the young man imprisoned there pending extradition proceedings to take him to Italy and try him for the murder of his wife at Lake Como. Dr. W. J. Arlitz, Police Surgeon of Hoboken, who has been retained by Charlton's relatives to investigate the prisoner's sanity; Dr. Charles B. Converse, the County Physician of Hudson County, and his assistant, Dr. A. P. Haskins, were summoned. Dr. Arlitz examined the prisoner at length.

When he left the prison Dr. Arlitz said he had found young Charlton in an extremely nervous condition, and on the verge of a physical breakdown. At no time since his arrest, he said, had the prisoner been in such a weakened physical and mental state. Dr. Arlitz had already expressed the belief that Charlton was insane, being a victim, in his opinion, of dementia adolescence, and his examination yesterday, he said, thoroughly convinced him that his first diagnosis was correct.

Charlton was removed to the Hudson County Jail last Friday, and ever since he has been growing moodier and more reserved. Saturday he ate heartily of the special prison fare supplied by Warden Sullivan and slept fairly well, but he gradually became uncommunicative toward the prison officials and kept away from his prison associates, including his cell mate, William, alias "Ulley," Burke, the convicted safe robber, who is awaiting the outcome of an appeal from a seven-year sentence.

Yesterday morning Charlton arose early from a broken sleep, and as soon as his cell door was opened he hurried into the corridor and began pacing up and down. This he kept up for several hours. He would not speak when addressed and seemed to chafe at his confinement. At noon he scarcely touched his food, and as soon as the meal was over he retired into his cell and buried himself in a new book that he had asked for on Saturday and which his counsel supplied. It is George Eliot's "Adam Bede." Warden Sullivan, who is keeping a sharp eye on Charlton, stopped to have a talk with him, thinking to cheer him up. To most of the Warden's questions Charlton answered surlily. Finally the Warden tried him on the book.

"Is it a good story, Porter?" he asked.

In an instant Charlton's mood changed. He looked up with a smile.

"It's good literature," he replied briskly. "I like it because I find something in at analogous to my own case. There is a woman in trouble, you know, and that appeals to me. It is more interesting than Bulwer Lytton's 'Last Days of Pompeii,' which I have just finished."

Seizing the hint that Charlton might be willing to discuss his life in Italy, the Warden put a more direct question.

"Now, you're trying to pump me. I guess you'd better go away," was the reply as the prisoner turned his back on the Warden. The Warden did not go again to the cell until a call from "Ulley" Burke brought him on the run.

"That fellow's sure crazy," said the safe robber. "I'm afraid to stay in there with him. He's moaning and going on as if he was going to have a fit."

Found Prisoner Moaning in His Cell.

The Warden found Charlton sitting on his bed with his face in his hands moaning. Suddenly he jumped up and began to wring his hands. A spasm seemed to seize him and he shook as with the ague.

The Warden thought it was time for medical help, and hurrying to the telephone he summoned Dr. Arlitz.

After he had been with Charlton about an hour, Drs. Converse and Haskins arrived. Dr. Arlitz told them their services were not required, and they withdrew. About that time the Rev. Emil Meury, pastor of the Dutch Reformed Church of Jersey City, who also acts as the prison chaplain, arrived to hold his regular prison services. Thinking religious influence might be consoling, Dr. Arlitz suggested to Charlton that he attend the services with the other prisoners in the corridor.

"No, cut out the religion," said Charlton, turning away, "I don't want any consolation."

Thinking the prisoner was weak from lack of food, Dr. Arlitz then sent out for a supply of fruit. Charlton paid little attention to it and the physician stayed with him two hours longer.

"Charlton is certainly a peculiar patient," said Dr. Arlitz. "It is hard to tell just what is the matter with him. He doesn't act normal at all. I have not made a complete physical examination of him yet, but I am positive that his father was right when he said the boy had consumption. His mind seems to be in a sort of haze. He has difficulty in remembering anything. I have refrained from discussing the murder or the events which led up to it with him, because I found that it made him exceedingly irritable. I did not think it necessary to prescribe opiates or other drugs, for those things are not good for a demented man.

"I found I could do more good by simply talking to him—not about the case, but about things in general. That method soothed him down right away. I don't want you to infer from that that hypnotism of any sort entered into it. Neither do I believe that he was self-hynotized when he committed the crime, as I have heard. The prisoner needs quiet and care more than anything else. In fact, if he doesn't get plenty of good care it will kill him.

Alienists Won't Discuss Findings.

"When I got to the jail to-day I found him in a terribly nervous condition. He would close his hands spasmodically with such force as to dig the nails into the flesh. Then he would laugh in an absent sort of manner, wander from the subject we were talking upon, and betray in many different ways the fact that he was holding himself in check with extreme difficulty. I have seen Charlton every day now since he has been under arrest, and I took part in the long examination the three New York alienists conducted last Friday. These alienists have not mentioned to me what their opinions are and I haven't asked them. I only know, from long experience with demented people, that Charlton betrays every evidence of not being in his right mind, and I do not think he was in his right mind when he committed the crime."

Dr. Edward B. Fisher, the New York alienist whom the elder Charlton engaged, along with Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton and Dr. Charles S. Dana, to examine Charlton as to his mental condition, said yesterday that he was not ready yet to make public what his findings are. He said the alienists would make another examination of Charlton on Wednesday.

"We agreed not to say a word about our examinations until we were all through with them," said Dr. Fisher, "and it would be manifestly improper to pass judgment now. We will not complete our examinations in time for the hearing before Judge Blair on Tuesday, but that will not make much difference, as I suppose it will be possible to get an adjournment."

Young Charlton's father, brother, and stepmother, who left on Saturday to attend the funeral of the latter's father at Baltimore, will return to the city to-day. This afternoon they will call upon the prisoner in company with their son's attorneys.

Emil Fuchs, who has been retained by Capt. Henry H. Scott to represent him at Tuesday's proceedings, when an effort will be made to take the case out of the hands of the Hudson County officials and turn Charlton over to the Federal authorities pending the outcome of extradition proceedings which have already been started by Gustavo di Rosa, Italian Vice Consul in this city, said yesterday that another large batch of Charlton's letters, written only a few days before the murder, had been forwarded by Mr. Scott's two married sisters, who corresponded regularly with their sister and brother-in-law.

"I will turn these letters over to Vice Consul di Rosa to-day," said Mr. Fuchs. "These letters show, even more than the earlier ones, how completely baseless is the assertion that young Charlton was insane while living in Italy. No saner letters were ever written. The writer tells enthusiastically of his and his bride's happiness, and through them all there runs a strain of humor which only a man in full possession of his faculties would employ. When these letters are produced in court I think they will go a long way to offset the opinions of hired alienists who have been engaged to make this young man out insane."

TAFT ENJOYS A QUIET DAY.

Has a Long Sleep and Ruminates on the White House Veranda.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26. — President Taft's last Sunday in Washington prior to his departure for Beverly and the Summer vacation was a quiet one, unmarked by political conference. He breakfasted late, for the strenuous day he put in yesterday signing bills and receiving members of Congress had demanded a good night's rest. He spent a large portion of the day upon the back veranda of the White House, contemplating the Washington monument and the Potomac. He attended church in the morning, and late in the afternoon he took an automobile ride.

Secretary Norton, who will accompany Mr. Taft to Beverly to-morrow, spent a portion of the day at the White house, and participated in the quiet hours the President spent upon the back veranda.

To-morrow will be devoted to saying good-bye to those members of the House and Senate who have remained over, as well as others who will pay a final call at the executive offices before the President goes to Beverly. At 5:35 o'clock he will leave for the Summer Capital, where he will arrive Wednesday.

BEVERLY, Mass., June 26.—Mrs. Taft and the other members of the Presidential family, Miss Helen, Robert, and Charles, went to church this morning and listened to a sermon by the Rev. Eugene J. V. Huiginn. This evening, after a quiet afternoon at home, the entire household, including college friends who are guests of Robert Taft, went for a ride in the big automobile.

The Sylph, the President's yacht, is being made ready for the trip to New London for the Harvard-Yale boat races. She will leave Tuesday, and the present plans are for all of the family to go.

QUIET DAY FOR ROOSEVELT.

No Guests at Sagamore Hill—Goes to Church with His Sons.

OYSTER BAY, June 26—The embargo which Col. Roosevelt has put on political news from Sagamore Hill was not lifted to-day, and in the absence of any visitor who might be connected even remotely with politics, there was no new development in the situation which the coming conference with Gov. Hughes has created.

Gov. Hughes's secretary is quoted as having said yesterday that the Governor will see Col. Roosevelt at Cambridge this week. It is thought possible that President Taft, Col. Roosevelt, and Gov. Hughes may all meet at some place near Beverley, Mass.

Col. Roosevelt spent a quiet day today, as there were no visitors at Sagamore Hill. He said that after a week of crowds, handshaking, and speechmaking he had at last the perfect seclusion for which he was pining. With his two younger sons, Archie and Quentin, he rode to church in an automobile. Some of his townsmen were on hand on the lawn in front of the church to see him, and he waved his hand to them as he walked into the building.

As he came out of church Col. Roosevelt stopped long enough to say that there was no one at his home except his family and to shake hands with two or three old friends. Then he went to Sagamore Hill.

WASHINGTON MYSTIFIED.

How Could Hughes Reconsider His Bench Appointment at This Date?

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—There was a good deal of mystification in Washington to-day over the reports from Oyster Bay that Col. Roosevelt intends to ask Governor Hughes to reconsider his acceptance of the place in the Supreme Court to which President Taft has appointed him in order that he may run for a third term as Governor of New York.

This report is contrary to all that has come with authority from Col. Roosevelt since his return from Africa. Moreover, it indicates a lack of information on the part of the Colonel as to what occurred between President Taft and the Governor before the nomination to the Supreme bench was made.

It is understood that the nomination of Mr. Hughes was not sent to the Senate until there had been a full consideration of the situation by the Governor, who had very carefully taken under advisement the question of his own obligation to the Republican Party in New York. He had made clear his determination not to run again, and had put it frankly on the ground of inability to stand the financial strain. The idea that he may reconsider does not receive much credence here, although some shrewd politicians said this evening that it would be a good thing personaly for Gov. Hughes with the country generally if he would make another campaign, even if he were defeated.

This opinion is based upon the theory that his acceptance of the Supreme Court place hurt him with the people, who are inclined to think he quit a fight before it was ended, and accepted shelter to get out of trouble.

DR. IRVINE ASSAILS FORCES OF MAMMON

Socialist Preacher in Farewell Sermon Traces Its Trail to the White House.

NOW THE PULPIT MEETS IT

The Power of Money, He Says, Has Put Its Hand on His Shoulder —Rector Praises Him.

There was not a vacant seat in the Church of the Ascension last night when Alexander Irvine, wearing the vestments of the Church for the last time, arose to say farewell in the pulpit where he may no longer preach, owing to the action of the vestry in declining to renew his contract.

Mr. Irvine, mindful of the decree of the Vestrymen that he was too much inclined to Socialism for the Church longer to harbor him, chose as his text, "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon." His sermon pilloried Mammon in America as a slimy beast called Money, that ruled the land and left a snaky, slippery trail up the White House steps in Washington and the State House steps in Albany. Toward the end of his sermon he raised his voice as he continued tracing Mammon's trail from the State House into the Church, and up to the pulpit, where he pictured its heavy hand as being on his shoulder.

When he had finished, the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, pastor of the church, under whom he had served as a lay preacher for three years, reviewed the labors of Mr. Irvine. He was warm in his praise of the preacher. He said that Mr. Irvine was going wholly because with his (Grant's) weak gift of oratory, he had been unable to combat the opinions of thirty Vestrymen and had failed to convince them against their wills that Irvine should be retained.

Tribute from Dr. Grant.

"You of the congregation who wish to follow Mr. Irvine," he said, "may go out from this church and hear him. Your sorrow at his going cannot possibly compare with mine, who must stay here within the church, separated from him and robbed of the comforting companionship of his voice."

In the congregation were hundreds of Socialists, who had come rather to welcome Mr. Irvine into their ranks than to bid him farewell from the pulpit he is to leave. The ritual of the church, preceding the sermon, was strange to them, and their awkwardness was apparent as they attempted to follow through the various hymns and prayers. After the principal speaking was over several of the Socialists arose in the congregation to voice their sentiment toward the church.

The Rev. Mr. Grant warned them before allowing them the privilege of speaking that they would violate the courtesy if they indulged in animosities. He said the church and he could stand them, but he did not think they would be in place. The warning for the most part was heeded, and the speakers were rather subdued in their comment, praising the church rather for keeping its doors open to Mr. Irvine for three years than for its final act in ousting him.

The gathering of the collection was one of the features of the evening. Sol Friedman, a Jew, who has spoken fiercely against all organized religion in its relationship to the Socialist movement, and the man who directed the thought of Mr. Irvine toward Socialism, presided over the function. The son of a Jewish rabbi was one of his assistants, and an Irish Socialist, who had first come to the church with a brick in his pocket and had become an Irvine convert, assisted him.

It had been intended to hold a "vestry meeting" after the regular service, but word was brought to the church in the course of the service that the parish house, at 12 West Eleventh Street, was so thronged that no one, not even an intending speaker, could crowd his way in. It was then announced that the parish house meeting would be abandoned, and the "after meeting" held in the church. It was at this "after meeting" that the voluntary speaking from Socialists in the congregation was indulged in.

Mr. Irvine to be a Free Lance.

Several of the speakers indicated the new field of activity they have in mind for Mr. Irvine. They plan to make him an itinerant "free lance," with a roving commission over America and a charge that shall require him to organize Socialist churches wherever he can find an opportunity. The Rev. Mr. Grant said that he had learned that the greatest church in Europe outside of Westminster Abbey had cabled Mr. Irvine a request that he come to join them. He had also learned of a dozen other demands, he said, so that he felt that he door that had been forced open for Mr. Irvine to depart from the Church of the Ascension was really opening a larger and a better world for his activities and remarkalbe gifts.

The Rev. Mr. Grant made it very plain that there had been a serious split among the vestrymen over the question of Mr. Irvine's departure, and he charged their decision, as finally made, to the fact that some of them could not disassociate Mr. Irvine's work from certain explosive phrases and ideas popularly and erroneously supposed to be associated with it. He blamed himself largely for the crisis that had ended in the separation and justified his staying with the church only on the ground that he preferred to do his fighting within rather than without the organization. His sympathies and fellowship he was willing to extend his departing assistant without reserve.

To Mr. Irvine's characterization of the forces which were eliminating him as controlled by Mammon, he made no reference. Mr. Irvine said in answer to a question after the service that his own immediate future was in the hands of a committee of his friends, of which Miss Caroline Dexter, who lives at the Martha Washington Hotel, is Chairman. It is her purpose to gain the support of certain "intellectuals" in the American Socialist groups in the movement to launch a distinctly Socialist church, with Mr. Irvine as its head. Until the movement takes shape Mr. Irvine will dwell in seclusion o nhis Peekskill farm, to which he will retire to-day.

In delivering his farewell to the church Mr. Irvine was gowned in the conventional robes, and spoke from the tall pulpit to the right of the choir seats. A full organ and choir service preceded his sermon, and near its conclusion he referred feelingly to his "friends in the choir, whom he knew were loyally with him in spirit."

"Critics of my work here," he said, "have said that I have been too sociological and not spiritual enough; that I have never here got really down to the bottom of the matter. That's what I am going to do here to-night. The bottom of the matter then is common, ordinary selfishness. That is the force that is driving us into warring factions and splitting the country into rival camps, whose guard lines are being more and more closely drawn.

"Jesus himself was sociological, and his greatest sermons teemed with economic truth. It is wrong to invite the splendidly dressed down to the front pews and let the poorly dressed stand up in the back. There is a portrait of Mammon down in the art gallery at Washington. He has the face of a hog and the ears of an ass. Look at him, if you ever go down there, and you cannot help seeing how his very countenance intimately resembles the ruling politician of our generation.

Substitutes Mammon for the Devil.

"Call Mammon what you will—avarice, idolatry, egotism, war, or crime—he is always the same. He is the devil within the world, and a much more satisfactory devil he is than the devil the Jews painted for us before the early Christians met and dealt with the power of money.

"We have been 2,000 years trying to do something with Mammon. And what have we done? Only 150 years ago an ideal of democracy was born in this country; it has been ideal in the intervening years, and now we are going to work to make it actual. That is your fight, my friends, and mine. That is the spirit that must quicken the Church, and quicken the State, and quicken the hearts of men everywhere they are found. As I see it to-night I rejoice that Jesus was neither a priest nor a politician, and I rejoice that I still may fight for a great multitude of people to win for the Church freedom from the slimy clutch of the money hand. I have only pleaded here these three years for freedom, and I wish to thank that great churchman, Percy Stickney Grant, for allowing me for three years to voice here the truth, before God, as I understand it."

The Rev. Mr. Grant, in following Mr. Irvine, said:

"I cannot think of this termination of our experiment here as a failure. When it comes right down to it, I haven't met another man like Mr. Irvine in my whole experience. I have heard our vestrymen say they would rather spend an evening in his company than in the company of any man they ever knew, and they have the pick of all New York. He has succeeded here; the only failure has been in my effort to convince the vestrymen that they were wrong in the action they have taken." The "after meetings," he said, would be continued and would as heretofore be open to lay speakers of all creeds.

Patrick Quinlan, one of the Socialists who spoke from the floor, said that so far as he could see into the trouble within the Church it arose from the fact that the ministers had no labor union among themselves through which to demand their rights from the Vestrymen. If they would organize a union, he said, they might make a united demand for a free pulpit and get it.

PASTOR RAPS THE STAGE.

Says There's More Rottenness in Plays Here Than Elsewhere.

In a sermon on Sunday theatres yesterday the Rev. Christian F. Reisner of the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, 104th Street, between Columbus and Amsterdam Avenues, said he believed that only through the church could one combat the effects of immoral plays.

"The rottenness of many of the shows on the American stage to-day," said he, "particularly in New York City, affords an opportunity for the women of America to cast effective votes for the uplift of morals by refusing to patronize them," said an editorial in a certain periodical. Few actors are classed as noted unless they have been divorced two or three times. A great New York daily says that stage talent "is now used to gild filth and bedeck moral garbage." Could a minister use stronger words?

"The Methodist Church long ago passed a restriction against its members attending the theatre at all, but it is a dead letter. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman of the Presbyterian Church arraigns the theatre more mercilessly than any one I have heard. The Baptist Church has been as a whole as opposed to it as any other. But to-day few professed Christians refrain from attending. It is foolish to say that the theatre is all bad. But the mass of the theatre is indeed rotten, and ought to shame decent people from attending.

"But can the Church compete with the theatre? Yes, most assuredly. Not with mere amusement, but by striking to reach the results that many people hope to get by attending the theatre—relief, rest, cheer, arousement of feeling, a lifting out of the rut of the every-day grind."

CONDEMNS GOSSIPING PRIESTS

Racetrack and Club Small Talk Not for Them, Bishop Lines Asserts.

At the ordination of Drs. Henry K. Denlinger and Hiram Van Kirk at the Church of the Holy Apostles, Ninth Avenue and Twenty-eighth Street, the Rt. Rev. Edward S. Lines, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Newark, yesterday morning said:

"The Christian minister should always be among his people. He should know their thoughts and share their difficulties and pleasures, but to require that he be a social force, familiar with the language of the race track and the club, is to expose him to serious temptations. If men find that their minister is unfamiliar with sporting and club gossip let them remember that he is familiar with the word of God. Such a man alone can worthily exercise the calling of priest."

In his exhortation Bishop Lines warned the candidates that their desire to write great sermons would soon disappear in the press of daily work. He added:

"We read much of those who by their clear vision of truth have power over men. We are told of men who proved themselves unordained priests and prophets, but there is still need of servants duly trained and ordained. The sun and moon and stars are more to be depended on for light than the comet that swings through the skies in a glory of radiance."

At the ordination service, in which the Rev. Dr. Olin S. Roche of St. Peter's Church assisted, Dr. Denlinger was invested as deacon and Dr. Van Kirk as priest. Dr. Denlinger will take part in the administration of the parish of the Church of the Holy Apostles.

DENOUNCES PRIZEFIGHTS.

Dr. Hill Also Blames Newspapers for Reporting Them.

Dr. J. Wesley Hill, pastor of the Metropolitan Temple, Seventh Avenue and Fourteenth Street, delivered a severe arraignment of prizefighting last night, which, he said, is a caricature of Christian manhood and is a stain on our nationality. The doctor also criticised the newspapers for printing, as he said, "what the people wanted to read."

"The papers," said he, "devote entirely too much space to accounts of prizefighting, and thus inflame the public mind and keep this worse than bullfighting contest always before the public eye."

Dr. Hill said that his sermon was occasioned by an approaching contest in which two human beings trained up to the best porsible condition of endurance were to endeavor to show which was the greater brute and able to stand the most punishment.

"The coming fight," said the speaker, "is a disgrace to our country, allowing, as it does, two creatures made after the image of God to use each other as a sandbag, and endeavor to spoil that image for the money which it will bring into their purses."

HELPED BY CARPET CLEANER.

No Ordinary Stomach Pump Would Fit Case of Queenie, the Elephant.

Queenie, one of the elephants in Bostock's Arena, down at Coney Island, was eating hay yesterday morning. That much is sure; what comes after is on the word of the man who sends out typewritten copy, mostly on Sundays, telling what he thinks the animals at Bostock's have been doing. Sagamore Hill is occupied, and this is a time for caution.

Well, Queenie, while she was eating the hay, noticed, or scented, a pound bag of smoking tobacco near the hay. On the tip of her tongue the tobacco tasted good, and she swallowed the pound. In a few minutes she was lying on her side, her little eyes bulging out, the tears running down her cheeks, groaning and moaning.

Dr. H. Ambling, the Bostock veterinary, decided that a stomach pump was needed, but all pumps that could be found were entirely too small to help Queenie. After a while some one suggested a vacuum carpet cleaner. With that Queenie was restored to her good spirits.

She will never do it again, the typewritten version of the incident says.

Held on an Abduction Charge.

Charged with abduction, a Plainfield (N. J.) man who said he was Charles Loveland was locked up in the East Twenty-second Street Station last night, and a 14-year-old girl found in his company, who said she was Marie Becker of 243 Third Street, Plainfield, was sent to the Children's Society on a charge of improper guardianship. Policeman Schmidt said that the man brought the girl here last night from Plainfield, and they attempted to register at a hotel at Twenty-sixth Street and Lexington Avenue. The clerk called in the policeman.

THREE MEN DROWNED IN WATERS NEAR BY

Two Fall from Boats and One Dies While Friends Watch Supposed Swimming Tricks.

GIRL RESCUES A WOMAN

Life Saver at Coney Gets One Man Seized with Cramps—Bodies of a Boy and a Man Recovered.

Three persons were drowned in waters near the city yesterday, and several more were rescued after they had nearly been overcome.

Frederick Grandell, 50 years old, a woodworker, of 1,633 Lexington Avenue, was one of a party of fourteen who went up Long Island Sound in a motor launch to fish. At 3:30 o'clock the launch was at the northeast end of City Island. Several of the fishermen decided they would go swimming, and the engine was stopped. Grandell, who was swimming about seventy feet from the boat, suddenly turned on his face.

His companions thought he was showing a new swimming trick, but finally Jacob Fultz of 5,757 Boulevard and Fred Schiem of 351 East 138th Street, both of the Bronx, swam out to him. They found he was dead.

It is supposed the man died of apoplexy.

Henry Seigel, 21 years old, a bookkeeper, fell from the stern of the launch Jennie of the Hudson River Bath and Fishing Club, when the boat was passing Fort Washington Point in the Hudson last night and was drowned. Seigel's home was at 72 West 107th Street.

The point in the river where he met death was where the actress, Winifred Snyder, (Marion Taylor,) was drowned last Wednesday night when a scow upset a boat she was in.

The young bookkeeper was returning with friends from Nyack. When the young man slipped overboard William Clayton of 501 West 135th Street, in charge of the launch, stopped the craft, but Seigel sank before they could reach him.

James Shamahan of 550 Fifty-fourth Street, Brooklyn, reported yesterday to the police at Fort Hamilton that Patrick Heaton of 407 West Twenty-sixth Street, Manhattan, was drowned. The two men had been out together in a launch off Fort Hamilton, and Heaton had leaned too far over the side. Before Shamahan could get to him to help him he had fallen overboard. He was drowned, and his body has not yet been recovered.

As John McKinney, an employe of Dreamland at Coney Island, was bathing yesterday morning off one of the beaches at the foot of the park, he came across the body of John Mullagy, an electrical engineer of the Edison Electrical Illuminating Company, who lived at 723 Prospect Place, Brooklyn. Mullagy was bathing last Tuesday off the Ocean Boulevard when he was drowned.

Charles Young of 282 Division Street, Manhattan, went bathing yesterday from Balmer's Baths, Coney Island. He was seized with cramps and yelled for help. Gus Jardolime, a lifesaver, stationed at the baths, went after him, and after a long fight brought him ashore.

Young was unconscious, and it took Jardolime and Dr. Lewis of the Coney Island Reception Hospital half an hour's hard work to bring him back to consciousness. He was taken to the hospital and was able to leave for his home last night.

FATHER SAVES ANOTHER'S BOY.

Sullivan's Children See Him Pull 10-Year-Old from Central Park Lake.

Edward Sullivan of 176 East 107th Street, an engineer in the power house of the Interborough Rapid Transit at Kingsbridge, rescued a boy from drowning in the Harlem Mere early last evening. The lad, who had rolled from the top of a crag thirty feet high into the deepest part of the mere, was Harry Greenberg, 10 years old, of 103 East 110th Street.

Sullivan chanced to be in the vicinity through having taken his three children, Gertrude, 9 years; Eddie, 7 years, and Helena, 4 years, to walk in Central Park. While the three children were enjoying themselves on the west shore of the mere the engineer took a nap on the grass a short distance away. Suddenly he was aroused by the cries of his eldest daughter, who ran to tell him that a boy was struggling in the water. When the engineer reached the shore he saw the Greenberg boy in the act of sinking at a point fully thirty feet out. His fall from the incline of the crag had carried him that far from the shore.

Sullivan plunged in and reached the youngster just in time to save him from drowning. He brought the lad to the shore and there revived him. After that the engineer took young Greenberg to the latter's home. The three Sullivan children watched their father make the rescue and joined in reviving the youngster.

GIRL SAVES DROWNING WOMAN.

Miss Scofield Held Up Mrs. Gorman Until William Wheaton Reached Her.

Miss Minnie Scofield of Newark, N. J., assisted by William Wheaton of Bement Avenue, West Brighton, S. I., saved Mrs. Johanna Gorman, 62 years old, of 14 Stone Street, Manhattan, from drowning at South Beach, S. I., yesterday. Mrs. Gorman was out near the outer lifelines when she was taken with a fainting spell and sank.

Miss Scofield saw the woman go down and dived after her. She caught and brought her up, but could not get her ashore. She held her, however, until Wheaton reached her, and between them they brought the woman ashore.

Mrs. Gorman was in a bad way, and after medical treatment on the beach was hurerled to the S. R. Smith Infirmary at New Brighton.

Saves Boy Who Fell Off Pier.

While playing on the recreation pier at the foot of West Fiftieth Street yesterday William Winestein, 11 years old, of 412 West Forty-eighth Street, walked too far out on the stringpiece and fell overboard. Capt. Donoghue of a stoneboat at the pier jumped in and brought the boy to the pier. The youngster in falling cut his jaw on a boat moored by the pier. Otherwise he was not much hurt.

Small Boy Who Drowned Unidentified.

No one yet has identified a boy, about 12 years old, who was drowned in Newtown Creek at the head of Ten Eyck Street, Williamsburg, Saturday evening. The police of the Stagg Street Station have sent out a description of the boy and of his clothes, which were found on a pier.

BOXES THREE MEN; DIES.

Negro Ruptures Blood Vessel in Effort to Emulate Johnson.

PITTSBURG, June 26.—Ernest Campbell, a young colored man and an admirer of Jack Johnson, died to-day from the exhausting efforts he made to defeat three of his companions in friendly boxing bouts, one after another. The contests, which were held at Negley's Run on June 7, were ended when in the last bout Campbell complained of sudden illness and withdrew. He fell unconscious on the street, and after nearly three weeks in bed died to-day from a clot which the rupture of a blood vessel had caused in his brain.

His three opponents, George Dunlap, Lewis Sands, and Ralph Hawley, all under 22 years of age, were taken into custody to-day to await the verdict of a Coroner's investigation.

SUSPICIOUS OF BIGAMY CASE.

Magistrate Says He Will Call It to District Attorney's Attention.

After holding a man on allegation of bigamy yesterday, Magistrate Connolly of Queens Borough paroled him, and later ordered all concerned in the case before him on Tuesday for another hearing. He announced that in the meantime he would report the case to the District Attorney.

Matilda Evans, 34 years old, of 281 Eleventh Street, Brooklyn, who said she was a governess, formerly of Schenectady, was the complainant. She said that David J. Evans, 60 years old, of 3,406 Jamaica Avenue, Richmond Hill, Queens, married her at St. John's Catholic Church, Schenectady, on March 8, 1902. They parted nine weeks later. On Oct. 2 of the same year Evans, according to the complainant, married Minnie Emma Tracey of Utica. She died in 1905, and in the following year Evans married Annie Lawnson, with whom he now lives at the Richmond Hill address, and by whom he became the father of twins.

Evans when arraigned said he had sent for a lawyer, but none appeared for him. The bail for a hearing was fixed at $2,000. Evans asked that this be reduced to $1,000. The Magistrate refused, but left the case open for the arrival of the lawyer Evans had sent for.

Court attendants told the Magistrate that Evans had been approached with a proposition of settlement for $250 or $300. The Magistrate questioned Evans, who said that the offer had been made. It developed that a divorce proceeding is pending, and that Evans has been ordered to pay alimony, and has failed to keep up the payments.

The court adjourned after paroling Evans and he left the room. A few minutes later Magistrate Connolly came back and took his seat. He was plainly angry. He declared he believed there was an attempt at extortion and blackmail. A lawyer named McCarthy, who represented Mrs. Evans, disclaimed any wrong and the Magistrate replied:

"You may be trying to do the best for your client, but how many assistants have you?"

McCarthy said none, and the Magistrate said the client was apparently taking advice other than from her counsel. The Magistrate did not explain what information he had obtained after the first adjournment of the case.

EXCURSION BOATS WATCHED.

Inspectors Keep a Sharp Eye on the Fleet in the Sunday Rush.

Excursion steamboats for all points out of Manhattan did a big business yesterday, beginning in the early hours of the day. Battery Park saw what was probably the biggest crowd it has held in a day this year. Extra details of police were stationed to handle the crowds for the Coney Island and Glen Island boats.

For the first time this season Customs Inspectors were on hand to see that excursion boats were not overcrowded and that other matters of steamboat safety that are mentioned in the Federal regulations were looked after. The Department of Commerce and Labor has supervision of the local Board for Steamboat Inspection, but the board has a comparatively small number of Inspectors at its disposal, and for that reason the Treasury Department for the last few Summers has been augmenting the service with the detail of customs men.

Deputy Surveyor McKeon was in charge of the work yesterday, and provided his men with automatic counting machines to see that none of the steamers was crowded beyond the authorized capacity. Up to a late hour of the day no serious trouble had been reported by the Inspectors in carrying out their work.

The steering gear of the new army ferryboat General Otis, which has replaced the General Hancock in plying between the Battery and Governors Island, went wrong as the vessel was bound to her pier on this side. She had a score of passengers aboard, including army officers with their wives and children. She drifted dangerously close to a Staten Island ferryboat that was crowded.

Capt. Paige, in command of the immigration cutter Immigrant, hastened to the assistance of the army boat and got hawsers to her in the nick of time. It was two hours before the disabled boat was ready to resume her trips.

DESPERADO KILLS OFFICERS.

Barricaded in His Home with Six Children, Holds Off Besiegers.

OCILLA, Ga., June 26.—Barricaded in his home, in the western part of Irwin County, W. H. Bostwick has resisted two attacks of officers to-day and has killed two and wounded three others. The local authorities have asked Gov. Brown for troops to storm the house, but a large crowd of men has formed and may take him first.

Those who died under his deadly fire are Chief of Police Davis of Ocilla and Deputy Sheriff Sheffield of Irwin County.

The wounded are Deputy Sheriff T. C. Bass, whose arm and abdomen were pierced by bullets, and Sheriff J. P. McInnis and Deputy Sheriff Tucker, less seriously hurt.

Bostwick, who has a reputation as a fighting man, is well armed and has a good supply of ammunition. In the house with him are his six children. He was wanted on a misdemeanor charge, and Sheriff McInnis, with Chief Davis and Deputy Sheriffs Bass and Tucker, went to arrest him early this afternoon. When they came within close range Bostwick opened fire and Chief Davis was killed and Bass wounded. The officers removed the two, summoned a posse from Ocilla and Irwinville, and surrounded the house. Sheriff McInnis, with Deputies Tucker and Sheffield, led a charge and Bostwick killed Sheffield and wounded the other two.

SKIPPER SHOPS FOR DETAINED FRIEND

Captain of the Prins Willem V. Comes to Aid of Wealthy Haitian Merchant.

HE MAY HAVE TRACHOMA

Inspectors Order Him to Ellis Island Pending an Examination—Cousin Goes Away Disappointed.

On suspicion that he is suffering from a contagious disease of the eyes, Michel Abrahams, a wealthy merchant of St. Marc, Haiti, was detained by the immigration authorities upon his arrival yesterday on the Dutch mail steamship Prins Willem V. He will be taken to Ellis Island and examined by three surgeons of the Marine Hospital Service. If they find he is suffering from trachoma he will be ordered deported, and on the same vessel which brought him North.

Mr. Abrahams is an Englishman, about 85 years old. He is said to be one of the wealthiest man in Haiti. Besides being a merchant, he represents a large Manchester concern and other business interests. Mr. Abrahams said that he came to this country to purchase stock. He was here about three years ago.

There were but few passengers arriving on the Prins Willem V., and the examination by the Government officials was thorough. The examining surgeon believed Mr. Abrahams was suffering from trachoma and ordered him held. The traveler was indignant. He declared emphatically that there was nothing the matter with his eyes. The ship's surgeon was sent for and he said that Mr. Abrahams was not affected by trachoma.

Capt. J. Aarents of the vessel added his protest. He said that he had known his passenger for some years. Abrahams had a letter of credit for $10,000, and he explained that he simply intended to spend a few weeks here purchasing goods. When it was found that he could not land, Capt. Aarents offered to make his purchases for him. The young man went into the smoking room and wrote out a list of the articles he had traveled from Haiti to buy. This list, with the letter of credit, he turned over to the skipper, adding other details of the purchases he wanted made. The latter agreed to get what articles he could, have them delivered on board, so that, so far as he could, Abrahams would go back with his mission accomplished, in spite of the immigration officers.

The Haitian merchant was sorrowfully watching his fellow-voyagers troop ashore when a very pretty young woman in a white lace-trimmed dress arrived. She caught sight of Abrahams, and the latter shook his head, to signify that he could not come ashore. Matters were explained to the immigration men, and the young woman was allowed to come on board. It was explained that she lived in Brooklyn and that Abrahams was her cousin. She was greatly disappointed when told that he could not land, and left the pier almost in tears.

WOMEN WATCH A FIGHT.

Gather in the Lobby of the Hotel Empire and Witness a Brutal Struggle.

Two negro employes of the Hotel Empire, Broadway and Sixty-third Street, had a fight in the lobby of the hotel last night. A ring of well-dressed men and women gathered around them and made no attempt to stop the fight until an ambulance and the police from the West Sixty-eighth Street Station arrived.

The manager of the hotel, Bartholomew Callan, wanted the policemen to choke one of the colored men who was swearing so copiously that he feared that some of the women who were looking on might be shocked. The policemen suggested that they withdraw, but they remained until the end, although one of the combatants was so badly used up that he had to be taken away in the ambulance.

The fight was between Alfred H. Williams, the night captain of the bellboys, and William Moore, who has the same post in the daytime. Moore was removed to Flower Hospital and Williams was locked up on a charge of felonious assault.

HELD FOR ABDUCTING MAN.

Sanitarium Proprietor Found with a Once Wealthy Patient.

SALT LAKE CITY, June 26.—R. M. Boyle, once a wealthy contractor of Pittsburg, is alleged to have been abducted by A. M. Quinn, lately proprietor of a Salt Lake City sanitarium. Quinn was arrested at Aberdeen, Wash., on Friday, it was learned to-night.

Boyle, in a clouded mental state, came to Salt Lake City last Fall and worked as a carpenter. His wife traced him, and at her request he was placed in Quinn's resort. His expenses were paid by his Masonic brethren and his mother, a wealthy woman of Silver Springs, Md.

Quinn and his charge disappeared on June 13. A search, begun by Mrs. Boyle, led to the discovery that they were at Aberdeen. The purpose of the alleged abduction is not clear. A trunk jealously guarded by Boyle and believed to contain important papers is supposed to have something to do with the case.

Father Fitzpatrick and the other priests at the homes escorted them to the main buildings of the Mission of the Immaculate Conception, where dinner was served. After a drill by the boys the visitors inspected the institutions.

WEDDED, DID NOT KNOW IT.

Dancer Says Ceremony Was Performed While She Was in Convulsions

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., June 26.—Mrs. Minnette Henry, a New York actress and dancer, late Saturday afternoon obtained a divorce in Judge Pike's court from Eugene Wallace Henry of Utica, Jersey City, and other places. She will take her maiden name, Minnette Price.

Mrs. Henry testified that while acting in Utica, N. Y., in March, 1908, she became ill, and went to her home at Newark, N. J., and that there she had nervous convulsions, and became so ill that physicians told her mother she would die. A minister was sent for, and when he arrived Henry was there. She learned afterward, she said, that Henry wanted to marry her, and her mother gave permission. This minister then performed the marriage ceremony. The next day Henry entered the room, and she asked what he was doing there, and he said he was her husband, and she would have to live with him.

She testified that once when she wanted to go home and visit her mother her husband tried to shoot her, and said if she went she would go in a box. She also said he tried to kill her in a room in Utica, and once entered the theatre in Utica while she was performing and attempted to shoot her as she was dancing.

Asked what her husband did for a living she said she found he was a confidence man, and always in fear of the officers.

WED AT 4 A. M.

Young Couple, Failing at Greenwich, Succeed at Port Chester.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., June 26.—Ayrille Meyers, aged 19, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolf Meyers of Navisota, Houston County, Texas, was married at 4 o'clock this morning by Police Justice Thomas F. Connolly of Port Chester, to Jacques Perlman, aged 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Perlman of New York City.

The couple, accompanied by a young man and a young woman, arrived at Greenwich at 3:45 o'clock this morning and inquired at a garage for the nearest Justice of the Peace. They were directed to the home of Justice Norman Talcott, whom they routed out of bed. When asked if they had a license they replied that they had not and that the reason they had come from New York to Greenwich was that they had been told that they would not have to get a license in order to be married in Connecticut.

Justice Talcott assured them to the contrary and communicated with Town Clerk Wellstood for the purpose of obtaining one. It then developed that the bride was but 19, and as a woman is not of age until she 21 in Connecticut, Justice Talcott could not perform the ceremony. He told them, however, that the legal age in New York State was 18, and directed them to the home of Town Clerk Stevens in Port Chester.

The party whirled down to Port Chester and, obtaining the license, went at once to the home of Police Justice Connolly, who married them.

PUBLIC HEALTH PROBLEMS.

Periodical Inspection of Vital Resources Urged by a Physician.

Dr. G. N. Linthicum considers some public health problems in the Journal of the American Medical Association. After reviewing the success of the past in the management of smallpox, yellow fever, cholera, scurvy, typhus, and diphtheria, and the increased average length of life due to the development of sanitary science, he considers the problems of the present and the future.

"The first of these mentioned is tuberculosis," says the publication, "and he says that when we realize that probably 90 per cent. of all persons are at some time in their lives affected with tuberculosis, and that only 10 per cent. die, we are justified in saying that in few diseases, not self-limited, is there a greater tendency to recovery. Owing to better housing and sanitation, the death rate in Great Britain from this cause is only one-third of what it was seventy years ago.

"The pollution of water supplies is the second problem, and it is becoming daily a more and more serious one, which must be met by proper legislation and sanitation. Pneumonia is another important problem, as it causes more deaths than tuberculosis at the present time in the United States, and it must be solved largely as a laboratory problem. Malaria is a preventable disease, and its prevalence is far greater than it should be, and the more formidable disorder as regards mortality, plague, is now known to be controllable if only certain domestic pests, like the rat, can be exterminated. Hookworm is another disorder that can be controlled, and the increasing prevalence of mental disorders, drug habits, as well as cancer, nephritis, (Bright's disease,) and diabetes, are all subjects for careful study.

"Of some of these we do not yet know the real causative factors, but we are hopeful that we some time will. The great problem of the future is the betterment of health by the education of the whole people as to its possibilities.

"Why, he asks, should not the physician take the place of an adviser in health? Would it not be an economical move to have an inspection of the vital resources at regular periods, as is done of the financial resources?"

INSANE OVER BIG FIGHT.

Kate Blancke, the Actress, Kept Sending Telegrams to Rickard.

CLEVELAND, June 26.—Insane over the Jeffries-Johnson fight, Kate Blancke, the character actress, was committed to the State Asylum at Newburg to-day. Since her arrival in Cleveland last Thursday Miss Blancke has been sending telegrams continually to James Gleason and "Tex" Rickard, promoters of the fight, begging them to take her to the contest. Her actions finally became so peculiar that her relatives were appealed to and after a medical examination she was adjudged insane and committed to the asylum.

Miss Blancke, who has played with Vaughan Glazer and in other companies, was recently engaged for a stock theatre in Toledo. Attention was first attracted to her behavior when she insisted on repeating her lines in German. She left the theatre and came here, apparently for the purpose of persuading a Cleveland man, who is arranging a special train to go to Reno, to include her among his passengers.

GRAND PRIX CROWDS HAIL BULGAR'S KING

Parisians Charmed with Ferdinand's Royal Air, Though Rain Spoils Great Race Day.

VANDERBILT HORSE SECOND

Nuage Wins—Americans Numerous, but Outnumbered by English, Who Hoped to See Lemberg Victor.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 26.—The Grand Prix de Paris was run to-day at Longchamps, and it was a day of wrath and tears. The women who had expensive hats and dresses ruined by the rain are weeping, and the English visitors who came over the Channel to back Lemberg, the Derby winner, and Charles O'Malley are gnashing their teeth. Only once for a brief interval during the day did the sun break through the clouds, which on their side broke at frequent intervals into torrential rains.

"It's all clouds to-day," said James B. Regan to a number of friends before the race, "and I'm going to back the horse called Nuage, for I am told Nuage means cloud in French."

Nuage won the Grand Prix easily, and the winner paid nearly nine to one at the Paris mutuels, Mr. Regan pulled off a good thing. L. Reinhardt of Chicago also did well by backing his namesake Reinhart, W. K. Vanderbilt's representative, which ran second.

Cheers for King Ferdinand.

King Ferdinand of Bulgaria came with President Fallières, and the Parisians who dearly love a visiting monarch cried "Vive le Roi!" with an enthusiasm that was quite extraordinary, considering the prevailing disheartening conditions. King Ferdinand, by the way, is meeting wth a specially warm welcome here. The French generally have a soft place in their hearts for him as the grandson of Louis Philippe, and he has made a deep impression on all who have met him personally. Besides, his career is regarded as a triumph of politcal craftsmanship. His fine figure dominated the Presidential box to-day, and the air with which he handled his single eyeglass was the admiration of the Parisian dandies.

Big crowds gathered for the royal arrival and departure, though the attendance generally was much below the average on a Grand Prix day. The display of feminine toilets was likewise below the standard of the day. In fact, save for a few mannequins who were sent out for advertisement, the women generally were sombrely garbed.

Americans Who Were There.

The Americans present seemed few and far between by comparison with the great crowd of English visitors. Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, who had lunched with Frederick Townsend Martin at Armenonville, was with Mrs. Spreckels; Mrs. W. B. Leeds came with Lady Paget, Mrs. William Post, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont, Mr. and Mrs. W. Guggenheim, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Chase, Mr. and Mrs. Cortlandt Field Bishop, and Mr. and Mrs. Gould Jennings were noticed on the stands, while Ogden Bishop escorted a family party with Miss Beatrice Bent and Miss Elizabeth Remsen.

Alfred Vanderbilt strolled around with a party of London friends, and Frank J. Gould confirmed a report that he had acquired Edmond Veil Picard's yearlings, a remarkable lot of fourteen youngsters in addition to that French owner's other horses.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Topping, recently married, the daughter and son-in-law of Daniel G. Reid, came out in a new open car clad in waterproofs and defying the elements.

New York City Chamberlain, Charles H. Hyde, was one of a group including ex-Mayor Robert Van Wyck, W. E. Corey, and James B. Regan. Louis N. Kramer said good-bye to several friends, as he is off to Carlsbad tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lewisohn, Col. and Mrs. Millard Hunsiker, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Blossom, J. Clinch Smith, Leslie Ward, Stevenson Scott, Paul Morton, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander O. Thackera, Jr., Judge Coyne, John Drew, Harry La Montagne, Francis Hamilton, and Mr. and Mrs. Jules Vatable were others seen here and there.

PARIS, June 26.—The Grand Prix de Paris was run to-day over the Longchamps course in a rainstorm, and was won by Mme. N. G. Cheremeteff's bay colt Nuage in a driving finish by one length from W. K. Vanderbilt's Reinhart. Baron de Rothschild's Bronzino was third.

The Grand Prix de Paris is over a distance of one mile and seven furlongs, the value of the stake being $60,000. The betting was 9 to 1 against Nuage, 20 to 1 against Reinhart, and 160 to 1 against Bronzino. The English cracks, Lemberg, owned by Mr. Fairie, who captured the English Derby on June 1 in record time, and A. P. Cunliffe's Charles O'Malley were made favorites in the betting, but they finished far back.

Although the King and Queen of Bulgaria were present, the heavy rain greatly reduced the attendance, and the exhibition of gowns, for which this event is famous, was disappointing. This is the first time that a woman has won the Grand Prix.

MANY HURT IN AUTOS.

Cape May, N. J., Woman Has Head Crushed in an Accident—Many Arrests

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bloch of Cape May were traveling along the country road three miles from town about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon when Mr. Bloch lost control of his auto. The car smashed into a telegraph pole, and Mrs. Bloch's head was crushed. She was taken in a special train to the Philadelphia Hospital and is not expected to live.

Two automobiles containing parties of Philadelphians summering at Atlantic City collided on Sugar Hill Bridge, near May's Landing, N. J., in the afternoon. Both cars were damaged badly. One contained G. W. Barker and his family; the other, J. Best and several members of his family.

A taxicab belonging to the New York Taxicab Company and containing two passengers collided with a trolley car at Madison Avenue and 124th Street, Manhattan. The machine was wrecked. William Fox of 272 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, and James W. Loeb of 257 West Ninety-second Street, the passengers, were thrown into the street but were not much hurt.

Eight arrests of automobilists for speeding were made on the Boston Post Road in the afternoon by three motor cycle policemen of Inspector Flood's staff. All of them were said to have been traveling faster than twenty-five miles an hour. One of those arrested was John Ryan, a college boy, son of James K. Ryan of 28 West Eighty-second Street. Young Ryan left a diamond ring worth $300 at the Bronx Park Police Station for collateral.

Another arrested was William Schaeffler of 1,486 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn. He was driving his father's car at the rate of forty miles an hour, according to the police.

A third was Joseph Samuel of 176 Waybassett Avenue, Providence, R. I. He gave the police a long chase, and, after his arrest, left $100 in cash to cover his fine.

CAR HITS AUTO; TWO DEAD.

Three Others May Die as Result of Crash Near Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, June 26.—Two persons were instantly killed, three dangerously injured, and two painfully hurt when a large automobile was struck near Charleroi this afternoon by one of the heavy suburban cars of the Pittsburg Street Railways Company.

The dead are William H. Hamilton, aged 43 years, an undertaker of Roscoe, and his son Roy, aged 22. Mr. Hamilton's wife, aged 40; his daughter Annie, aged 24, and Miss Blanche Matheny, a cousin, aged 19, are in the hospital to-night with injuries which may prove fatal. Robert Hamilton, aged 12, deaf and dumb, and Mary, aged 7, are also in the hospital, but are expected to recover.

The accident occurred at Beechwood Park crossing, about a mile south of Charleroi. The crossing is approached at a considerable down grade, and it is thought that Hamilton misjudged the speed of the approaching trolley car. The family was thrown as if from a catapult, Hamilton and his son, who were on the front seat, landing on their heads. The little daughter Mary was caught under the wreckage of the automobile, which rescuing her.

CAR KILLS MOTOR CYCLIST.

Victim's Husband Also Gravely Injured—Motorman Arrested.

LEOMINSTER, Mass., June 26.—Mrs. John W. R. Andrews was killed and her husband gravely injured in a collision between a tandem motor cycle, on which they were riding, and an electric car, this evening. The motorman of the car, Arthur Gauthert, is under arrest, charged with criminal negligence.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrews were returning to their home on Church Street when their view was shut off by a high hedge at intersecting streets. Without seeing the car, they ran their machine directly in its path. They were struck and dragged forty feet. Mrs. Andrews was about 50 years old.

ANXIOUS TO AID MOTHER.

Whole Family Volunteers to Give Blood to Save Mrs. Saltzman.

Mrs. Elias Saltzman of 108 Goerck Street was in a critical condition in the Har Moriah Hospital on Avenue A, near Second Avenue, yesterday, and the doctors, after an examination, said that only a transfusion of blood from the veins of some healthy person could save her life. This information was given to the husband of the woman and their five children, the youngest of the children being Moses, 6 years old.

"You can take all the blood there's in me, if it will save her life," said the husband.

"I, too, am willing to give mine," said Bessie, the sixteen-year-old daughter, and Bessie's younger sisters, Ida and Annie, said the same thing, as did also Max, a brother, who is 9 years old.

"I am only six, but mamma can have mine, too," said little Moses.

Dr. Benjamin Tilton and Dr. Israel Fleiss, the latter the house surgeon, looked over the family, and finally it was decided that the husband should make the sacrifice. Mr. Saltzman was then taken to the ward and there Drs. Tilton and Fleiss started the transfusion. It was successful.

It was said at the hospital yesterday afternoon that Mrs. Saltzman was doing well and that the transfusion had probably saved her life.

BABIES' HOME OPENS.

Children's Aid Society Also Will Open Its Bath Beach Home This Week.

The Children's Aid Society opened yesterday the Coney Island Health Home for Women with sick and ailing babies. There were 1,682 babies taken there last Summer, most of whom were suffering from cholera infantum, due to improper feeding or care. At the home the children receive pure milk and careful medical attention, and the mothers are instructed how to feed, wash, and dress them.

At Bath Beach is the Society's Children's Summer Home, which will receive to-day the advance guard of the 5,000 little ones it can accommodate in the course of a season. Next Friday the Home for Convalescent Children at Chappaqua, N. Y., the latest addition to the charities of the society, will be opened.

The society will require $50,000 to carry out its plans for the Summer.

HELD MORTGAGE; MENACED.

Martino Suspected Debtor of Black Hand Letters—He's Arrested.

Joseph Spiezio of 234 Union Street, Brooklyn, bought a banking establishment from Pasquale Martino of 634 North Second Street a month ago for $5,000. Martino received $2,000 cash and accepted a mortgage for the balance.

Not long afterward he received a letter demanding from him $3,000, the amount of the mortgage he held against Spiezio. The letter contained the usual Black Hand threats. Martino handed it over to the police.

Other letters followed when Martino showed no inclination to pay the sum demanded. He thought he noticed a similarity in the handwriting of the letters and the papers relating to the sale of his bank signed by Spiezio. He called the attention of this to United States District Attorney Youngs, and all the writings were submitted to a handwriting expert for his opinion. The expert said the letters and Spiezio's signature on the mortgage papers were in the same handwriting.

Spiezio was arrested at his home yesterday. He will be arraigned before the United States Commissioner in the Federal Building, Brooklyn, to-day.

Puff and Curl Makers to Strike.

The officers of the Human Hair Workers, who make wigs, fronts, and switches for the adornment of the heads of women, announced yesterday that they are about to start a movement for an increase in wages of the members, who now number 1,300. The union has a strike in the shop of the Diamond Human Hair Company, 327 East 119th Street, for an increase of 20 per cent. in wages.

COMMISSION ATTACKS SCHWAB STEEL PLANT

Laymen and Clergy Report that Labor Conditions at Bethlehem Are Oppressive.

MANY WORK SEVEN DAYS

Hundreds Also Compelled to Toil 12 Hours a Day—Local Clergy Sharply Criticised.

Charles M. Schwab's Bethlehem Steel Company, where labor conditions are under investigation by the Department of Commerce and Labor, is severely criticized for its treatment of its men in a report just issued by the Social Service Commission of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

The 6,000-word report bears the signatures, besides those of the investigating committee, of a score of well-known laymen and clergymen, among whom are Jacob Riis, President Herbert Welch, Dr. Graham Taylor, John H. Glenn, the Rev. Ernest H. Abbott, Dr. Hubert Herring, and Arthur B. Pugh.

The Government investigation of the steel plant was instigated by Congressman Rainey of Illinois, who in a speech in the House when the strike of last March was at its height denounced the Bethlehem management's treatment of its men, who make millions of dollars' worth of guns and armor plate annually for the Government.

The labor representatives also called on the President to look into the conditions under which $40,000,000 worth of Government work is done every year, and promised sensational developments. The strike was a failure, and most of the men went back to work after President Schwab had consistently refused to treat with them as a body.

The chief fault found by the Social Service Commission is with the seven-day week, which applies to 28 per cent. of the men regularly, the twelve-hour day, and the small pay. Incidentally, the report condemns the attitude of the clergymen of Bethlehem as favoring the corporation.

During the strike the labor leaders complained that the churches gave no encouragement to the men who were "fighting for a great moral issue." They declared that "the Protestant Ministerial Association as a body practically championed the cause of the corporation," and attempted to show the hold of the company on the clergy by a statement that "the company has taken money out of the pay envelopes of the laboring men without their consent to pay it over to the clergy, and that there is a standing offer to all of the ministers by the Bethlehem Steel Company to have the church dues collected through the company's office."

The report gives the ministers credit for efforts to have all unnecessary Sunday work abolished, and exculpates the Protestant clergy from having had the company collect church dues, but it finds grounds for the strikers' criticism of the ministers and the churches. The committee points out that the clergy censured the strikers, but that they could not find any corresponding rebuke of the company.

The committee's report on labor conditions calls the "situation with regard to Sunday work in Bethlehem worse than that found in the Pittsburg steel mills by the Pittsburg Survey. Dealing with the hours of labor, the report says:

> Just before the strike 4,725 men, or 51 per cent. of all the employes, worked twelve hours a day; 220 workmen had a twelve-hour day excepting on Saturdays, when their hours were either ten or eleven; 4,203 employes had a workday of ten and a half to eleven hours in length, generally with a half-day off on Saturday, and 47 worked on other schedules not specified.
> Beyond, and intensifying, the evils of a twelve-hour day, was the existence in many departments of a seven-day week. Twenty-eight per cent. of all employes worked regularly seven days in the week, but in addition were those who worked on Sundays regularly as overtime. While it is claimed by the management that Sunday and overtime work is, in some departments at least, optional with the men, it is nevertheless true that foremen and gang bosses have compelled men to work on Sunday against their protest upon pain of discharge.

Wages, the committee says, average less than 18 cents an hour for 61 per cent. of the 9,184 employes, or $2.16 for a twelve-hour day. Of the balance 31.9 per cent. earned less than 14 cents an hour, or less than $1.68 for a twelve-hour day.

In conclusion the commission urges the churches of America to initiate a movement for six-day legislation to have somewhat similar scope to the old movement for Sunday observance which was powerful in placing Sunday laws on the statute books of most of the States. It recommends that there should be laws requiring three shifts of working men in all industries operating twenty-four hours a day and requiring one day of rest in seven.

GIRL ACCUSES YOUNG MEN.

Says They Attacked and Threatened to Kill Her in a Carriage.

The police of Newark, N. J., arrested two young men early yesterday in that city on complaint of a young woman, who said that they had lured her into a carriage and attacked her. The prisoners gave their names as Henry Twardus and George D. Martin, both of Newark. The young woman said she was Ellen Hartman of 44 Liberty Street, Newark. They were all held pending an investigation.

The Hartman girl told the police that she was invited to take a ride. She accepted. Instead of going her way, as they told her they would, the young men drove in the opposite direction, despite her protest. She said that they threatened her with death if she made an outcry. Her screams attracted attention of pedestrians, and word was telephoned to Police Headquarters.

MISSING BANKER COMES BACK

Cuban Who Fled When Ceballos & Co. Failed Four Years Ago Returns.

Manuel Silveira, the Havana banker and agent of the New York banking firm of C. M. Ceballos & Co., who sailed away in October, 1906, a few days before the Ceballos firm failed, is in the city, and it was said yesterday by Francesco E. Fonseca, a friend, that Silveira will sail for Havana this week to straighten out his business affairs there and make a new start in business. Silveira arrived in New York from Europe on the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland last week. He made no effort to hide his identity, traveling under his own name.

When the Ceballos firm failed for $4,000,000 it was stated that Silveira had gone away with about $1,000,000 of the firm's funds. He sailed on the cattleship Carmelina, and took his family with him. For a time he was in Venezuela, and then went to Paris, where he stayed until he sailed for New York on the Deutschland. It is said that he has little money left.

Fonseca said that Silveira had paid all of his debts and was going back to Cuba to collect money that is due him. Had Silveira been in his right mind, he added, he would never have left Cuba as he did. He said that at the time Silveira, following an automobile accident, was out of his head for three months.

KNOWS HIS OWN KIND.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., June 26.—John Henry, a big gray horse in the service of the Montclair Fresh Air Home at Cedar Grove, constitutes himself a welcoming committee of one for the tired mothers and children of the New York tenements who come here for a brief respite from the heat and turmoil of the city. John Henry, up to a few weeks ago, was a toiler between the shafts of a truck in New York, but as he had arrived at an age where he was no longer able to bear the heavy burden of this work his owner, John Pantell of 434 Lafayette Street, arranged with the management of the Fresh Air Home to take him in charge and give him an easy berth for the rest of his life.

Now John Henry, attached to a light spring wagon, makes regular visits to the Erie Railroad station and conveys the women and children from the tenements to the home, where he has become a great pet with all the visitors. The horse, it has been observed, seems to know those who come from his former haunts. One day last week he was driven to the station to meet a party of women and children that were expected to arrive for a two weeks' stay at the home. After John Henry's arrival at the station a train pulled in, and a bevy of women and children got off. The driver, reasoning that they were the expected guests from the city, clucked to the horse to drive up closer to the platform, so that the visitors might get aboard.

John Henry was not deceived. The arriving travelers were a party of Sunday School picnickers from Newark, and the horse merely stood and surveyed them with an unconcerned air. Twenty minutes later when another train arrived and there alighted therefrom a typical group of "fresh-air kids," John Henry gave a welcoming whinny, and brought the wagon up to a convenient point for the reception of the visitors. Then, as he was driven toward the home, with the laughing load behind him, he flicked his tail with a knowing air, as much as to say that he knew his own.

UNDISTURBED BY POSTAL SUIT

Western Union Officer Says that No Merger Question Can Be Involved.

Officials of the Western Union and of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, which joined forces with the former last Fall, seemed undisturbed yesterday by the news from New Mexico that the Postal Telegraph Company in an injunction suit there had attacked the telephone and telegraph merger effected last November. President Robert C. Clowry of the Western Union said he knew nothing of this particular suit.

"It is likely that the legal action will come to our legal department here in due time," he said. "The papers will probably be forwarded by our Southern legal staff, probably from Texas, within a week or so. We are not at all alarmed."

George H. Fearons, general attorney for the Western Union, had this to say:

"While I have not been notified in the regular way of this proceeding in New Mexico, I have read it in the newspapers. This is entirely a local proceeding, brought in the District Court out there. No question of a merger is involved. There was no merger. The Postal Company knows that as well as we do. But, until I have seen the papers in the case, I am not in a position to discuss it."

TO AMEND COMPENSATION LAW

Carpenters' Union to Make Campaign Issue of Payment for Injuries Plan.

A notice was received yesterday by the New York locals of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners that as a result of a convention of the New York State Council of the brotherhood, held in Manhattan last week, the Council had drafted an amendment to the State Constitution providing for compulsory compensation for injuries to carpenters while at work. This will be presented to the State Legislature at its next session.

The draft of the amendment provides that one-sixth of the taxation for a fund for the compensation for injuries shall be levied on the workmen, three-sixths on the employers, and two-sixths on the State, the tax to be a yearly one.

The Council, it was stated, will make a campaign issue of the proposed amendment, and all candidates for the State Legislature will be asked how they stand toward such an amendment.

BANDIT MURDER NOT PLANNED

Saw Landregan Coming from the Bank and Decided to Attack Him.

LYNN, Mass., June 26.—The murder of Thomas A. Landregan and Patrolman James H. Carroll, who were shot down by bandits yesterday while on their way from the Lynn National Bank to Mr. Landregan's shoe factory with the weekly payroll, amounting to nearly $6,000, was not long premeditated, according to Baccini Wladoupski, one of three desperadoes. Wladoupski is locked up at Police Headquarters awaiting his arraignemt in the District Court to-morrow, while one of his companions, known as "Joe" Andtoik, is dead, and the other, "Andy" Abeson, is dying at the Lynn Hospital.

Wladoupski says the trio first went to Chelsea from Boston, and after hanging around that city for some time looking unsuccessfully for some one to rob, they went to Lynn. They saw Landregan and his guard coming from the bank with the heavy bag, and, suspecting that it contained money, decided upon the attack, which was carried out a few minutes later.

CORPORATIONS STILL DELAYING ON TAXES

Little More Than $3,000,000 of $27,000,000 Levied Under New Law Is Paid In.

TREASURY WILL BE FIRM

Concerns Which Do Not Pay After Ten Days of Grace Will Be Subject to Severe Measures.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—As June draws to its close the receipts on account of the corporation tax are picking up a little, and the Treasury statement for the close of business on Friday shows $2,541,447.88 collected this month, with a grand total of $3,238,153.18. It has been apparent for some time that the hope of the Treasury Department that the great bulk of the $27,000,000 assessed corporation tax would be received before July 1, so that it could go into the accounts for this fiscal year, was doomed to disappointment.

The amount received on Friday was $318,897.15. Under the law the tax is payable during the month of June, and with the total assessment set at more than $27,000,000 for this year the average daily payment would be almost $1,000,000. The best day's receipts thus far has been far below that figure, and the total is so much below the average that it would take daily payments aggregating about $6,000,000 for the rest of the month to get in the whole sum for this fiscal year. There remains to be paid of the assessment about $24,000,000, and there are four business days remaining in this month.

Some time ago the Internal Revenue Bureau made arrangements to facilitate the collection of the tax on the last day of the month. Collectors in the various districts were notified to arrange with their banks of deposit to take any sums that might come in late on June 30 even after banking hours and to account for them in the balances of that day. But both Treasury and Internal Revenue officials gave up the hope some time ago that the bulk of the tax would be in by then. The corporations were shrewd enough to discover the fact that they could safely wait another ten days before paying, without suffering any penalty.

The law declares that the tax must all be paid on or before June 30. Then the law makes provision for what shall happen if the tax is not paid by that day. That provision requires the collectors of internal revenue to send notice of delinquency to the corporations that have failed to pay up and to make formal demand on them for the money. If within ten days from the receipt of that formal notice and demand any corporation has not paid up it becomes liable, in addition to the regularly assessed tax, for a penalty of 5 per cent. of that tax with an extra 1 per cent. a month as long as the tax remains unpaid.

Railroads were the first corporations to discover that ten days of leeway, and to make dead sure of it they sent their attorneys to Washington to discuss the matter with the Commissioner of Internal Revenue. There was no gainsaying their contention. The Internal Revenue Bureau said nothing publicly about this state of affairs, but a number of other corporations made the same discovery. Then the word went around among the big fellows, and some time ago it became apparent to the Treasury officials that very few, if any, corporations whose business was large enough to make their tax reach any considerable figures would be likely to make their remittance before the last day. The corporations will figure that wherever the tax is enough to make it worth while they might just as well have the use of that money for the extra days as to turn it over to the Government interest free.

So the practical certainty is that the bulk of the $27,000,000 will not come into the Treasury until about the 8th or 9th of July. No time will be lost by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue in sending out his formal notice and demand. He is already preparing to have the notice go out on the night of June 30. Clearks have been busy getting it ready for some days. Just as soon as it appears to the Collector in any internal revenue district that any corporation has not paid its tax on June 30 the corresponding notice and demand will be sent to that corporation. That will make July 10 the last day for most of the corporations. A few may not receive their notices until July 2, and that will give them an extra day, as the ten days begin to run with the receipt of the formal notice and demand.

Corporations that disregard the formal notice of the Commissioner will find themselves in trouble. The next step will be simple but effective. The Commissioner is clothed with the drastic power to distrain, and he has made clear his intention to exercise that power in the case of any corporation that neglects or refuses to pay up. The Treasury officials have declared all along that the fact that the Supreme Court has yet to determine whether or not the corporation tax law is constitutional will not affect their course in collecting that tax in the least. They propose to get the money. The Treasury needs it, and there is to be no fooling about it. Until the law is finally declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court it stands on the statute books and will be enforced as thoroughly as any statute that has been passed upon by the court a dozen times.

The money will not help to make a good Treasury showing for this fiscal year, but it will come in mighty handy next month. July is the worst month of all the year for the Treasury, for then the appropriations for the next fiscal year become available and there is a jam from all sides to get a hand into Uncle Sam's pocket. The delay in collecting the corporation tax will help out that situation a lot, if the money comes in as expected, and having in view what the internal revenue officials are plannig to do if necessary, there does not seem to be any reason for expecting the tax to fail to come in. The seizure and sale of property can be made a very short and tidy job when the seizers are in earnest, and, judging by the talk one hears at the Treasury these days, there will be no shillyshallying in this matter if it comes to distraint proceedings. The prospects are, therefore, that July 10 will see practically all of the $27,000,000 in the Treasury.

Four days remain of the Government's fiscal year, which ends with the close of business on June 30. Uncompleted figures and estimates available at this time lead Secretary MacVeagh of the Treasury Department to express himself as well satisfied with the operations of his department for the year.

Mr. MacVeagh regards the new tariff law as having justified itself as a revenue-producer; internal revenue receipts have exceeded the estimates by approximately $10,000,000, and the year promises to end showing possibly a surplus in the ordinary receipts and expenditures, or splitting nearly even, instead of showing a deficit of $34,000,000, as was predicted.

Mr. MacVeagh last December estimated that ordinary receipts of the Government for the fiscal year would be $648,000,000; to date they have aggregated $641,355,593. He estimated the ordinary disbursements at $682,075,620; at this time they amount to $650,510,835. Customs receipts have been $326,562,242, the Treasury's estimate for the year being $335,000,000. There has been a material reduction from the estimates in expenditures in the civil, war, and naval establishments, and a decrease of $7,000,000 in the estimated postal deficiency.

THREE MADRIZ TOWNS TAKEN.

Estradist Forces Reported to be Within a Day's March of Managua.

BLUEFIELDS, Nicaragua, June 26.—A column of the Estradist forces under Gen. Arsenio Cruz has captured La Libertad and Juigalpa, important towns in the department of Chontales, within a day's march of Managua. This column is part of Gen. Mena's army, which was detached for the purpose of occupying advantageous points within reasonable distance of Acoyapa. Gen. Mena, with the great body of his troops, remains within gunshot of Acoyapa, which is garrisoned by several hundred of the adherents of Madriz.

Gen. Colon, another of the Estradist leaders, has taken San Ubaldo, one of the chief ports on Lake Nicaragua. He defeated 200 Madriz soldiers who were on their way to reinforce Gen. Vasquez.

Further reports say that the attack of Gen. Mena upon Acoyapa has been delayed in expectation of the surrender of Vasquez, who holds the town with about 400 men in his command. Gen. Mena intends to occupy all the surrounding towns, and reports that Vasquez is now unable to get provisions through the lines.

Dr. Julian Irias, Madriz's executive delegate on the Atlantic Coast, has issued a decree that the Custom House for the coast is now in the possession of the Government of President Madriz, at Pearl Lagoon, and that, hereafter any merchandise attempting to pass without examination by properly appointed customs officials shall be subject to seizure.

This would mean a double duty at Bluefields, and it is probable that the American naval officer in command here will refuse to recognize this decree, as was the case when Dr. Irias decreed that vessels would not be allowed to enter the Port of Bluefields without permission from the Madriz Government.

Reports have reached here that the Madriz steamers Venus and San Jacinto have bombarded one of the coast towns, Prinzapolca, where a few of Estrada's men were stationed. Heavy guns and rapid firers were employed and much destruction of property was caused, it was said. It is stated also that no notice of the bombardment was given or any call for surrender. The Venus left the port this morning to convey Dr. Irias, who is said to be suriously ill, to Greytown.

KAISER PREACHES SERMON.

Speaks Aboard Yacht Hohenzollern on Theme "Did Jesus Live?"

KIEL, June 26.—The Kaiser to-day conducted divine services abroad the imperial yacht Hohenzollern. He chose as the theme of his sermon "Did Jesus Live?" which has recently been the subject of much public discussion following the appearance of a pamphlet by Prof. Arthur Drews of Karlsruhe, in which Drews declared that Jesus never lived. Public lectures by Drews ensued, and debates in which many distinguished men have taken part.

The Kaiser's text was from St. Luke, twenty-third chapter, forty-fourth verse.

The Imperial Chancellor, Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg, and other high officials were present. After the service the Kaiser went abroad the Meteor.

NEW PORTUGUESE CABINET.

Teixeira de Sousa, ex-Minister of Finance, Forms a Government.

LISBON, June 26.—Following the request of King Manuel, Dom Antonio Teixeira de Sousa, the ex-Minister of Finance, has formed a Cabinet, as follows:

Premier and Minister of the Interior—Teixeira de Sousa; Minister of Marine—Marusco de Sousa; Minister of Finance—Anselmo Andrade; Minister of War—Gen. Raposo; Minister of Foreign Affairs—José Azevedo; Minister of Justice—Manuel Fatel; Minister of Public Works—Pereira Santo.

The Ministry under the Presidency of Francisco da Veiga Beirao resigned on June 17, after having recommended the dissolution of the Chamber of Deputies, which was opposed by the King as well as by the Liberals, the Monarchists, and the Republicans. Yesterday the King charged Julio Vilheno with the formation of a Cabinet, but he refused to accept the responsibility.

The Chamber of Deputies will be dissolved, and the new Chamber will meet in August and vote on the budget.

KOENIGIN LUISE CRIPPLED.

North German Lloyd Liner's Port Propeller Broken, Says Wireless Dispatch.

BREMEN, June 26.—A wireless dispatch was received here to-day from the North German Lloyd steamer Koenigin Luise, dated yesterday, stating that the steamer had broken her port propeller and was proceeding by her starboard propeller at a speed of 8 or 9 knots. The Koenigin Luise was at that time in latitude 43.23, longitude 44.49.

The Koenigin Luise left Brement for New York on June 18. She is one of the slow passenger boats of the North German Lloyd Line, usually making the voyage in ten days. Her position, according to the wireless dispatch, was about 1,100 miles from New York.

CHARGE AGAINST STERNBURG.

Austrian Correspondent Said to Have Delivered Secret Documents to Foreign State.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 26.—Baron de Ungern Sternburg, who was arrested yesterday after a search of his apartments, at which time various documents were seized by the political police, is charged with delivering secret documents to a foreign State.

Baron Sternburg, in addition to being correspondent of a semi-official Austro-Hungarian news agency, is the correspondent of one English and several Continental newspapers. He is held in strict confinement, but his arrest has been brought to the attention of Premier Stolypin by M. Belgard, the chief Government official dealing with the Russian foreign press, Baron Sternburg having made an appeal to that official.

MADRID, June 26.—The Government has received by telegraph another note from the Vatican, in which it is stated that the Vatican will reply to the full text of the Government's proposals, which has now arrived.

This leaves the negotiations between the Spanish Government and the Vatican relative to the subject of the Church and non-Catholic religious societies still in abeyance, and practically where they were a week ago.

HUGHES SIGNS 705 OUT OF 957 BILLS

Works to End of Thirty-Day Period Following Adjournment of Regular Session.

GAYNOR'S VIEWS UPHELD

No Measure Disapproved by Him Was Repassed—McGoldrick Expresses Satisfaction of City Authorities.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 26.—The thirty days succeeding the legislative session ended at midnight, and so did Gov. Hughes's labor on the bills which it left for his consideration. The Governor worked until far into the small hours of this morning, and after church returned to continue his labors until midnight to-night.

Among the last measures to receive approval were the Green bill to prevent extortion by employment agencies, known as the White Rats' bill, and the Cordts Liquor Tax law amendment.

The Legislature at its regular session this year passed 957 bills, of which the Governor signed 705, making the number which failed to receive his or city authority approval 252. During the legislative session there were pending 4,360 bills—1,679 Senate and 2,681 Assembly. In the Senate the number introduced was 1,180 and in the Assembly, 1,785; those of the Senate were amended and reprinted 499 and those of the Assembly 926 times, indicating that from the time of their introduction 1,425 changes were made in the various measures.

There were introduced 460 bills affecting Greater New York, 162 of them being amendments to the charter, and the other 298 affecting the city in one way or another. Only 142 of these measures passed the Legislature, 43 being so-called charter bills and 99 affecting the city but not amending the charter. This number does not include the bills which seek to amend the civil and criminal codes and the general laws of the State, in all of which the city is vitally concerned.

There were 97 special city bills transmitted to Mayor Gaynor, 42 being amendments to the charter. Forty of these measures were vetoed by Mayor Gaynor, and 57 received his approval. During the session no bill vetoed by Mayor Gaynor was repassed by the Legislature, so that no law was enacted this year which did not meet with his favor. Of the 57 bills approved by the Mayor and returned to the Governor 55 received executive approval.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward J. McGoldrick, who for the last three sessions has represented the New York City authorities before the Legislature and the Governor, stated to-night, when the Governor had concluded his labors on the thirty-day bills, that the city was deeply grateful for the consideration shown it by the members of the Legislature and by Gov. Hughes. When asked what was the most important piece of legislation enacted at the request of the city, Mr. McGoldrick said that probably the one of most interest was the so-called Debt Limit bill, which makes many millions of dollars available for the construction of subways.

Two constitutional amendments were adopted, one providing that compensation to be paid by the city in condemnation proceedings may be ascertained by the Supreme Court with or without a jury, in addition to the other methods now prevailing, and the other that when the city takes private property for public use it may also take additional adjoining or neighboring property under conditions to be prescribed by the Legislature by general law. These two constitutional amendments will have to be repassed by the Legislature next year.

Among several bills in which the Department of Finance was particularly interested are the Walker coal bills and the Green revenue bond bill. The former will save to the city about $50,000 a year, in that it may now purchase coal in the Spring instead of in January, as heretofore, while the latter, by changing the names "revenue bonds" and "special revenue bonds" to "certificates of indebtedness," will create a wider market for these securities by exempting them from taxation in foreign countries.

The bills which were vetoed after they had been accepted by Mayor Gaynor were relative to a site for the Kings County Court House and to the payment of fines to the Pedic Society, the State Dental Society, the Medical Societies, and the State Nurses' Association.

Two city charters failed, those for White Plains and Melzinga. Regarding the White Plains charter the Governor says it is decidedly important that the communities affected should not be incorporated into a city until it can be established upon a proper financial basis. The Melzinga charter lacked suitable provision for holding the first election, by which the officers of the new city were to be chosen.

As a reason for vetoing the Whitney bill to increase by $200,000 the issue of bonds by the State for the acquisition of a reservation at Saratoga Springs, Gov. Hughes says:

"There is no exigency which would justify this increase," and further that, "the litigation under the Act of 1908, with respect to pumping, is still in progress; and, while negotiations have been under way, the offers received have not been such as to permit a satisfactory arrangement for the acquisition upon reasonable terms of the properties essential to the reservation. There is no sufficient ground, in my judgment, for a further appropriation."

Some of the other measures vetoed by the Governor were those to encourage the growing of timber on barren lands by exempting them from taxation during the timber's growth; permitting the sale of skimmed milk and milk powder in New York City; to prevent deception in the sale of seeds; regulating the practice of undertakers; to incorporate the World Bible League; to establish a hospital commission for Yonkers; to repeal the law taxing the gross receipts of racing associations.

SPECIAL SESSION DRIFTING.

Plan Is to Get Down to Business Thursday and Adjourn Friday.

ALBANY, June 26.—The extraordinary session of the Legislature, called by Gov. Hughes to consider primary reform, amendments to the resolution providing for an investigation of legislative corrupt practices, and financial legislation, promises to drift along until Thursday in a perfunctory way with a daily session just long enough to create a legislative day. By Thursday night, however, every member will be expected to be in his seat prepared for business, as the leaders hope to adjourn finally by Friday, or by Saturday at the latest.

The fate of the Governor's legislative programme is in doubt, but the leaders predict the defeat of the Cobb Direct Nominations bill, and a failure to amend the investigation resolution unless something happens to upset their plans. The progressive inheritance tax bill and the measure imposing a direct tax to raise money to reimburse the general fund for contributions made to the canal and highway sinking funds are scheduled for passage, but the direct tax bill may run into a storm of oppostion.

Gov. Hughes's acceptance of Theodore Roosevelt's invitation to visit him at Sagamore Hill has added interest to the situation, and has been productive of much speculation as to what effect it might have on the legislative situation.

So far as the investigation resolution is concerned there appears to be no disposition on the part of either the Senate or Assembly leaders to change the phraseology which has drawn the Governor's fire. The Assembly Ways and Means Committee has promised to give those who think it should be changed an opportunity to present their views.

It is expected that the committees having bills in charge will reassemble on Wednesday or Thursday for their consideration.

A bill imposing a State income tax is being prepared and may be introduced, but if so without any serious intention of pressing it to passage.

TO INVESTIGATE PROMOTERS.

Supt. Hotchkiss Will Move Against Certain Insurance Holding Companies.

ALBANY, June 26.—Superintendent of Insurance Hotchkiss announces that among the bills recently signed by Gov. Hughes is one which authorizes his department to examine into the affairs of any corporation organized under the laws of New York, or having an office in this State, which is engaged in or claims or advertises that it is organizing or receiving subscriptions for, or is disposing of the stock of, or in any way aiding or taking part in the formation of an insurance corporation, or is in any acting as a holding corporation for insurance corporations, as voting trustee or otherwise. The purpose of the law is to permit an examination of all of the so-called promoting companies, a number of which are now operating in this State.

"During recent years," says a statement of the Insurance Department, "promoters and stock salesmen, particularly in the Western and Southern States, have been very active in the organization of insurance corporations. Many of these schemes have proved to be fakes, and even the best of them have resulted in the initial capital being reduced by a promotion expense of from 15 to 40 per cent.

"Insurance companies cannot, in New York, be organized in this way, it being necessary that their capital be paid in in full before they are authorized to do business. Of late, however, a means whereby the methods used in other States may be availed of has been devised, that is, through so-called promoting or holding companies, a considerable number of which are, through soliciting agents, now offering their shares to the citizens of New York. The promoting or holding company, not being an insurance company, can thus sell its stock and use a portion of the money realized therefrom for commissions and promoting expenses.

"It is the intention of the Insurance Department immediately to begin an investigation of each of the companies of this class concerning which it now has information, and the people of the State are requested to bring to the attention of the department all schemes of this kind now being promoted in New York, to the end that such investigation may be thorough."

BRIBERY INQUIRY IN AUGUST.

House and Senate Committees Likely to Work Together.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The Senate and House select committees appointed to investigate the charges of attempted bribery of Senator Gore and a House member will probably begin their investigations in August, though a definite plan of action has yet not been decided on by either committee.

The hurry involved in getting the resolutions of inquiry adopted on the last day of the session was so great that no attempt was made to get concerted action between the houses. The result is that two separate committees are appointed, instead of one big joint committee. It is likely, however, that some plan of co-operation will be undertaken.

The five Senators who were announced to-day by the Vice President as appointed to the committee are Messrs. Jones of Washington, Burton of Ohio, Crawford of South Dakota, Hughes of Colorado, and Percy of Mississippi. The House committee consists of Chairman Burke of South Dakota, Campbell of Kansas, Miller of Minnesota, Stephens of Texas, and Saunders of Virginia.

In the House committee there is one member from the State of the Senator who, it is generally understood, was referred to by Senator Gore as being interested in the Indian contracts concerned in the bribery charges. Mr. Gore also charged he had heard that there is a House member interested in the contracts. No Senator or Representative from the State of this alleged interested member is on the committee.

It is not likely that the hearings will need to be extensive, as the persons involved are few. J. F. McMurray of Oklahoma has been named by Mr. Gore as the principal offender, and already disclaimers have come from ex-Senators Thurston and Long. Mr. Thurston wrote to the Senate asking for a complete investigation, while Mr. Long, who is in the city, while acknowledging, like Mr. Thurston, that he has business relations with McMurray, denies any knowledge of a lobby maintained for interesting Congress in the contracts.

EXPORT RECORD BROKEN.

May a Banner Month for Manufactures—Japanese Imports Drop.

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Exports of manufactures in May were larger than in any previous month, their value aggregating $71,600,000.

Exports of manufactures for eleven months ended with May aggregated $699,000,000, indicating that June will bring the record for the fiscal year 1910 above that of any preceding year. Should June exports equal those of May the total manufactured exports for the year would be $770,000,000.

Imports to Japan from America and Europe in the first three months of the year 1910 showed a marked decline from the corresponding periods in 1908 and 1909, according to figures in the possession of the Department of Commerce and Labor. In the same period Japan's imports from Asia and Oceania increased.

Japan's American imports fell from $14,635,000 in the first three months of 1908 to $7,000,000 in the same period of this year; those from Europe fell from $25,500,000 in the first quarter of 1908 to $16,250,000 in 1910. Japan's imports from Asia and Oceania increased from $28,000,000 in the 1908 period to $33,000,000 in the 1910 period.

The falling off of imports from America is reported to be largely due to the cotton situation. Japan buys freely of American cotton when prices are low, but when prices are high, as has been the case in the last year or two, Japan turns to other parts of the world for cotton.

MIMIC WAR IN JERSEY.

New York Invaders Being Opposed by Local Troops.

Special to The New York Times.

VERONA, N. J., June 26.—Arriving here on trolley cars, Company B, First Regiment of the New Jersey National Guard, deployed to-day between here and Boonton to prevent the invasion of a "hostile" force, the Essex Troop, under command of Capt. William A. Bryant of Montclair.

The infantry represents the "blue" army, a New Jersey force, bent on repelling the "red" army which has invaded the State from New York.

The mimic warfare was observed by military men from New York and New Jersey, who accompanied the troopers. They included Col. Edward W. Hine of the Fifth Regiment, N. G. N. J.; Major Mackie of the First Regiment, N. G. N. J.; Major Lydecker of the Seventh Regiment, N. G. N. Y.; Capt. Olmstead, Squadron A, N. G. N. Y., and Capt. Doderlein of the First Regiment, N. G. N. 50,000 CLOAKMAKERS TO QUIT

Committee Preparing for a General Strike in the City.

A sub-committee of five was appointed yesterday by the Executive Committee of the Brotherhood of Cloakmakers to set the date for the coming general strike of 50,000 cloakmakers in this city, which will be declared at the mass meeting in Madison Square Garden on Wednesday evening.

The Executive Committee takes it as granted that the meeting will declare unanimously for a strike, but to test the sentiment of the cloakmakers on the subject a secret ballot will be taken after the meeting. A special committee of twenty-five was appointed to take charge of the balloting, which will take place this week at five halls in Manhattan and three in Brooklyn.

PROGRAMME READY FOR THE SANE 4TH

Parade, Exercises at the City Hall, and Fireworks Arranged for Monday.

CONCERTS IN MANY PARKS

Exercises in Each Borough—Playgrounds to be Opened, with Patriotic Souvenirs for the Children.

The committee appointed by Mayor Gaynor to arrange for a safe and sane Fourth has now got its programme into shape and has outlined a celebration which will cover every part of the city and will provide something to keep every one interested nearly every hour of the day. The chief events will be a parade and exercises at the City Hall in the morning, athletic sports in the afternoon, and fireworks in the evening.

The parade will assemble at 9 o'clock at Twenty-sixth Street and Fifth Avenue and will march down Fifth Avenue to Washington Square, passing under Washington Arch, and turn into West Fourth Street to Broadway, to City Hall Park, where it will be reviewed from the steps of the City Hall by Mayor Gaynor. It is expected that it will take two hours to pass. It will be disbanded in Park Row.

In the parade Squadrons A and C will escort the Grand Marshal and the National Guard will be under the command of Brig. Gen. George Moore Smith, who will be escorted by the First Company Signal Corps. Following Gen. Smith and his staff will march the Coast Artillery Corps of the Ninth and Thirteenth Districts, the First Battalion Field Artillery, with the exception of the Second Battery, and the Field Hospital.

The First Brigade will consist of the Seventh, Twelfth, Seventy-first, and Sixty-ninth Regiments. The headquarters of the Second Brigade will have as its escort the Second Company Signal Corps, and the regiments forming the brigade will be the Fourteenth, Forty-third, and Twenty-third. All organizations will wear the olive-drab service uniform. After the Second Brigade will march the Naval Militia.

The Twenty-second Regiment Corps of Engineers and the Second Battery Field Artillery will parade by themselves in the Bronx. The troops of the Eighth District of the Coast Artillery Corps are excused as they have been detailed for duty at the coast defense exercises.

High School Boys in Line.

Besides the regimental bands of the National Guard, which will parade in spite of the vigorous protests that have been made, eight bands will be in line. Among them will be a company of Scotch pipers. They will head the High School boys, who will form a strong battalion.

As the parade is approaching, historical exercises will be held in the Aldermanic Chamber of the City Hall, beginning at 9:30 o'clock. Mrs. William Cumming Story, President of the New York Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, will speak on "The Women of the Revolution," and she will be followed by Dr. Edward Hagaman Hall, Secretary of the American Scenic and Historical Preservation Society, who will speak on "The City Hall of New York and Its History."

Arthur Guiterman will recite an original poem on the City Hall, and then John Bigelow, the nonagenarian ex-Secretary of State, who was Ambassador to France in the civil war time, will speak on "The City Hall Park, Its Past, Present, and Future." An address by A. W. Colborne on "Patriotism" will close the proceedings.

When the parade is over, about 12:30 o'clock, Independence Day exercises will be held on the City Hall steps. It is historic ground, for in the immediate neighborhood George Washington reviewed the Continental Army. Here is the programme:

Music by the band of the Park Commission.
Address by Mayor William J. Gaynor.
Song, "America," by the People's Choral Union.
Reading of the Magna Charta by Dr. McNeil McPhatter of the Canadian Society.
"Yankee Doodle," by the band.
Reading of the Declaration of Independence by Col. William H. D. Washington.
"Hail, Columbia," sung by the People's Choral Union.
Lincoln's Gettysburg address.
"Dixie," by the band of the Park Commission.

Delegations from the patriotic societies and the Grand Army of the Republic will attend these ceremonies as a guard of honor.

Twenty-two Distinct Celebrations.

To provide a suitable observance of the day in all parts of the city, the Committee on District Celebrations has organized twenty-two separate programmes. They will take place in the forenoon to leave the afternoon free for athletic sports and picnics or visits to points of historic interest. They will consist of singing, games, drills, tableaus, the reading of the Declaration of Independence, and similar events.

The Committee on District Celebrations also has arranged for the opening on July 4 of the 240 playgrounds of the Board of Education, which will be in charge of a corps of teachers. To children, will be distributed a special leaflet, containing the Declaration of Independence and the "Electric Chord" of the Declaration taken from one of President Lincoln's speeches, 100,000 copies of which have been specially printed. It is hoped that every child in the city will be able to attend one of these 262 celebrations, which have been designed specially for them.

In the afternoon athletic games will be held in 18 parks under the direction of the Committee on Athletics, of which James E. Sullivan is chairman. Music will be provided at several of the parks to help along the programme. In addition there, will be band concerts in the afternoon in Prospect, Fort Greene, Highland, Sunset, Red Hook, Cooper, City, Bushwick, Saratoga, Irving Square, Winthrop, Carroll, Flushing, Jamaica, Corona, and College Point Parks, in Brooklyn and Queens.

At night there will be fireworks in 30 parks. To pay for these the Board of Aldermen has voted $15,000, which will be so divided as to provide a display in all boroughs of the city.

In the evening there will be band concerts from 8 to 10:30 o'clock on the recreation piers at West 50th, Barrow, East 24th, West 129th, Albany, East 112th, East Third, and Market Streets, Manhattan, and North Second Street, Brooklyn.

Subscriptions received by the Independence Day Committee now amount to $4,292. Among those who contributed on Saturday were Charles Francis Murphy, John D. Archbold, James Talcott, and the Realty Trust. Each sent $100.

FUNDS NEEDED for a Safe and Sane Celebration of Independence Day

The Independence Day Committee appointed by Mayor Gaynor to arrange for a safe and sane Fourth of July of the old-fashioned sort, appeals to the civic pride of New Yorkers to help toward its success.

Considerable funds are necessary in order to realize the object of the Mayor's appointment. The Committee is designing a Military and Civic Parade, arranging for district celebrations in the Parks and Playgrounds, and for exercises in connection with the hundredth anniversary of the opening of the City Hall.

Thus New Yorkers who take a pride in their great city are asked to give expression to their aspirations by contributing to the expenditure for appropriate decorations, bands, and entertainments, and the Committee anticipates a prompt and generous response to this appeal.

It is estimated that about $50,000 will be needed. Of this the city has given $15,000 for fireworks. The rest must be raised by popular subscription.

The programme of the day will include a reception in the Aldermanic Chamber to celebrate City Hall's Centennial.

Children's celebrations in 240 recreation centres.

Reading of Declaration of Independence from City Hall steps by Col. W. D. H. Washington, followed by patriotic ceremonies.

BANKERS' HOPES OF SPRING WHEAT

North and South Dakota and Minnesota Crops far from Ruined.

RECOVERY AFTER RAINS

Moisture Is Needed, but Estimates Range from 30 to 90 Per Cent. of Normal Crop.

MINNESOTA LEAST HURT

Replies to Times Telegraph Canvass Show Conditions in Principal Producing Counties in Spring Wheat Belt.

Leading bankers in the Spring wheat section of South Dakota, North Dakota and Minnesota, the three States which produce the bulk of the Spring wheat crop, replying to a telegraphic canvass made by THE TIMES on Saturday give a less alarming view of the effect of the drought on the growing crops than the scattered dispatches of last week. Rain has fallen over a large part of the section which suffered most heavily earlier in the month, and whereever it has come there has been a remarkably quick recovery of the plants. More moisture is needed over the greater part of the area, but the consensus of opinion is that a fair crop will be harvested.

Most of THE TIMES's informants telegraphed Saturday afternoon, but a few waited for developments until Sunday morning. In that time nearly an inch of rain fell in Central and Eastern South Dakota, and yesterday from 10 to 40 hundredths of an inch fell in Eastern Minnesota. North Dakota, which needs rain more urgently than either of the other two States, got no relief up to a late hour yesterday.

The weather bulletins sent out from Washington last night gave no promise of rain in North Dakota for to-day and predicted a continuance of warm weather, but promised for North and South Dakota "partly cloudy" weather for tomorrow.

The three States in question produced last year 78 per cent. of the total Spring wheat crop of the country, and conditions are best in Minnesota, the heaviest producer. North Dakota, which ranks next to Minnesota in the size of its harvest, brought out the greatest number of pessimistic reports. Estimates range from 30 per cent. of a normal crop to 90 per cent., the conditions varying sharply according to locality. In fact, one of the most striking feature of the canvass is the great irregularity in local conditions. In South Dakota rains have been more general and the conditions are correspondingly improved, the predictions of the local bankers on the average indicating a yield of some 75 per cent.

The Yield Last Year.

Last year Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota produced 226,895,000 bushels of Spring wheat, and of this amount Minnesota harvested 94,562,000 bushels, with the unusual yield of 16.5 bushels to the acre, which was 3.8 bushels ahead of the ten-year average. The returns from the canvass of bankers indicate that in sections of this State where rain has fallen the crop will run as high as 85 per cent.

In the Red River Valley, in the Western part of Minnesota, the drought still holds in sections, and with the prospects of rainfall from Saturday's weather conditions the majority of THE TIMES's informants in this section look for one-half a full crop. In the Minnesota River Valley there has been a break in the dry weather and predictions run as high as 85 per cent., although many look for no better than 50 per cent. The ten-year average in Minnesota is 92 per cent. The Sioux district has had satisfactory rainfalls recently and predictions run to average crops. In the upper Mississippi Valley the drought has been broken and there were heavy rains on Saturday, but rain is still essential in the lower sections.

The Red River Valley, across the line in North Dakota, still suffers also from lack of moisture. It is this section which produces "No. 1 hard," a class of wheat famous all over the world. Wheat in this State is by far the most important crop, and the fact that the drought there has been more serious than in any other of the three States is of greater local significance. In some sections of this region the local bankers do not hope for even a 50 per cent. crop without immediate rains, but some estimates range up to 75 per cent.

The southern counties of the State have fared best, and have had sufficient rains to bring the consensus of estimates up to a fair crop, though none predict more than 75 per cent. In the James River Valley there have been light rains, but the outlook is unfavorable, on the whole. The Missouri River section makes a favorable contrast, and illustrates the wide discrepancies in weather conditions. In many parts of this district a fair crop is predicted, estimates running from 50 to 70 per cent. The Cheyenne counties are still suffering, and here, as in the northern part of the State, rain is needed to assure a crop of 50 per cent.

Inquiries in South Dakota, which produced last year less than half the Spring wheat crop of Minnesota, the total being 45,050,000 bushels, were confined to the territory east of the Missouri River, which is the productive region of the State. Here rain has been general and estimates of the outcome are hopeful. In the Missouri Valley, particularly in the northern sections, the outlook is for a fair crop. Estimates in the Sioux Valley run as high as 90 per cent., and in the James Valley it is the average belief that there is no cause for alarm.

Increased Acreage May Help.

Even with the best conditions from now on till harvest, none of THE TIMES's informants expect a yield equal to last year's, but, as James J. Hill pointed out last week, the increased acreage will do much toward offsetting the decreased yield per acre. There has been no year since 1900 when weather conditions in the Spring wheat belt have been as disastrous as this June. In that year the condition of Spring wheat dropped from 87.3 per cent. in the month to 55.2. On June 1 of this year the average condition of Spring wheat throughout the country was 92.8 per cent. Spring wheat makes up, on the average considerably less than one-half of the total wheat crop of the country. Last year the total Spring wheat crop was 65 per cent. of the Winter wheat crop, which totaled 446,366,000 bushels. The replies to the inquiries sent by THE TIMES to bankers in each county seat of the principal wheat counties of the three States are appended:

PLOW STOPS BASEBALL.

Reduces Customary Grounds to Field Suitable Only for Crops.

Special to The New York Times

PITTSBURG, June 26.—After threats by the District Attorney had availed nothing, and a squad of constables failed a week ago to stop the big Sunday games of baseball just outside the city limits, which have drawn crowds of from 3,000 to 6,000 persons on every fair Sunday during June, District Attorney Blakeley had an inspiration yesterday.

He telephoned two farmers living near the field in which the games were held, who jointly have an interest in the property. He suggested that plowing would be a good thing for the improvised diamond.

When the Sunday crowd arrived at the field to-day they found four acres, the entire level space and hillsides of the natural amphitheatre, newly plowed. The promoters of the game sought in vain for another spot, and finally called off the contest.

CODE IN LABELS OF FOREIGN HOTELS

Broadway Clothier Thinks He Has Discovered in Their Placing Hints to Hotel Porters.

THE ANTI-TIPPER MARKED

Tourist with a Generous Hand is Passed Along and Fleeced with Hard Luck Yarns.

The cruel and calculating code cipher of the foreign hotel labels is now laid bare by a Broadway clothier, who has posted in his show window a full report, calling upon all readers to copy it, that at last the American traveler, armed with wisdom, may protect himself in some measure from the porter, waiter, chambermaid, and all the rest of the hungry horde until a new code is established. And that will be a growth of years.

The Broadway clothier says he discovered the cipher while traveling in Europe. In common with many another tourist, he had wondered how the employes of one hotel knew that he had been foolishly generous at the last one he visited, and how, at other times, they felt that he had been dyspeptically parsimonious at the previous place. He marveled that at hotel after hotel a weeping chambermaid had happened to tell a sentimental female relative of his a hard luck story and wait for a small gift.

The cipher is in the way the hotel labels are pasted on the trunks and suit cases, says the clothier. Here it is:

1—A label pasted squarely in the middle of the cover of a suit case or trunk signifies to the porters and other employes of the next house visited "that the owner is a mean-spirited, close-fisted person."

2—A label pasted on the covers at right angles with the long side of the parallelogram signifies "Look out. He has a bad temper and isn't at all disinclined to the use of his fists. An American especially."

3—A label pasted on diagonally across the cover signifies that the bearer can be intimidated into doubling his tip in case the "tippee" is not satisfied with the amount originally given.

4—A label pasted on the back of a suit case means that the next porter should pay no attention whatever to the bearer, because he belongs to the anti-tipping league.

5—A series of identical labels running all around the edges of the suit case on the back and front means that the bearer is an easy mark and a liberal spender.

6—A label with the corner torn off and pasted on the front side of a woman's handbag means sympathy, and is an indication that any servant with a hard luck bait to tell about the sufferings of a wife and six children will meet with a cordial and financially gratifying reception.

7.—A label torn in two before being affixed to a trunk or suit case means "delay this person's luggage until after train time. He never tipped a soul on leaving this hotel."

As to how the tourist is to profit by this information the discoverer leaves to the traveler.

THERE IS LAW ENOUGH.

The ink is not dry on the President's signature of the best railway law ever passed before Attorney General Wickersham's voice is raised in demanding legislation specifically refused by Congress authorizing Federal control of bond and stock issues. Is this not almost too much of a good thing? Would it not be well to give the law a trial before renewing an agitation which it has proved so much easier to start than to control?

It is not necessary to controvert his argument to make a plea for the withdrawal of it at this time. It may be that he is addressing the wrong tribunal. An argument which may have merit if addressed to the power which charters railways may have greater demerit if addressed to the Federal Legislature, which never has exercised and only doubtfully possesses the right to pass such laws. The argument that the right to water stock gives the right to charge extortionate rates is not good in railway economics, and certainly is not good where rates are controlled by public commissions, of which we have a few less than fifty.

It is all right to enact laws, but the Attorney General above all men should know that it is poor policy to enact lawsuits. A law which controls the conscience of those to whom it is addressed is a good thing, but we have enough laws which juries acquit corporation managers for breaking. Mr. Taft has addressed that remark to the world in general. He might with advantage address the same words specifically to his Attorney General.

BARGAINING ABOUT A SUBWAY.

The first municipally built subway has been boarded up for some months, and the city is now engaged in negotiations for its use by the only user in sight. In the words of the negotiators on behalf of the city "this particular subway is an important trunk connection in the heart of the city." Its cost was $10,000,000, making the interest charge at 4 per cent. $400,000, not to speak of any sinking fund amortization. The Public Service Commission rightly urges that the subway must be self-supporting if its cost is to be deducted from the debt limit. And it may be added that if this choicest and shortest link in the entire system cannot carry itself there is need of caution in any larger venture.

The idea that there can be any doubt about any subway being a gold mine may be a surprise to many. The offer for the portion required by the present bidder, about one-half, rises from $40,000 for the first year to a maximum of $200,000 in the event of many contingencies, which can only be realized after the expenditure of many millions more by the city. In the event that the city does not reconstruct the Williamsburg Bridge in a manner to permit the operation of ten-car trains, the above offer is subject to a proportionate reduction. And the city has the remaining portion of the subway for which there is no offer, and will not be for many years. It should be added that the $10,000,000 was spent in order that cross-bridge trains might be operated over a loop, and that the present proposal is for the operation of the trains into another stub-end terminal, such as has been an annoyance for a generation in the practice over each of a series of bridges of municipal construction. The result, therefore, is that the subway which was both to be cheapest in cost and most profitable in operation cannot earn its interest on any plan now in sight, and there is a failure of the operating plan which was the motive of the construction.

There is no fair ground for appeal to a private corporation to do anything for patriotism. It has a right to rest upon the financial merits of any proposal, and to decline any business venture from which the profit is not a fair risk. But the bidder does not rest upon this position. It makes a fair attempt to respond to the appeal to civic spirit made by the Public Service Commission. In reply to the suggestion that its offer is inadequate it replies that its proposal is "to incur an expense ranging from $240,000 to $400,000 a year for the privilege of performing an important service for the public without additional charge." In the alternative, it proposes a profit-sharing device, and as proof of both good faith and good will it engages that the city may take either as the future shall demonstrate to be for its advantage.

The incident is useful as demonstrating that the time to make a bargain for a subway is before it is built, when hopes run highest. When this subway was contracted for a better bargain could have been made. Now it is wondered how it ever came to be built. It would challenge igenuity to build an equal length in Manhattan to connect with fewer feeding or distributing routes, or add less to the facilities already existing. This subway will not take anybody south of the City Hall, or north of Canal Street, or west of Broadway.

THE CHARLTON PUZZLE.

While the friends of the self-confessed murderer, Porter Charlton, are endeavoring to have him declared insane, as he well may be, though his actions thus far have not denoted insanity, Hoboken, N. J., Washington, D. C., and Rome, Italy, are in a quandary. Charlton was arrested in Hoboken, and is now in the custody of the Hoboken police. Yet he clearly does not belong to Hoboken, and the murder was not committed there. Indeed Hoboken has only hearsay evidence that the murder was committed anywhere.

Washington does not know how to reply when Hoboken asks what shall be done with the prisoner. The question seems simple, but the answer is difficult. The Italian Government has not yet demanded Charlton's extradition. Until that demand comes our Federal Government can have nothing to do with the case. There are rumors that the extradition will not be asked for, and others that it will be asked for. Rumors cannot affect legal action in any way. If Charlton is not to be tried for murder in Italy, he will not be tried at all. He has committed no offense against the law in the jurisdiction of our Federal Government or that of any State. He cannot be deported as an undesirable immigrant, for he is an American citizen. It is all a puzzle, thus far, and Hoboken has the worst of it.

PURIFYING NEW YORK'S WATERS.

Saratoga Lake is rescued from the flood of sulphurous acid waste by a decision of Supreme Court Justice Kellogg awarding a riparian owner an injunction and damages at the rate of $312 for a series of years. According to the decision the testimony shows "the water to have been rendered by the mill discharge a red brown, highly odorous, injurious to fish and plant life, undrinkable for cattle or men, and damaging to farming crops." There is no legal right to be guilty of such barbarity. The defendant is bound hereafter to leave the creek which drains this waste into the lake as clean as it comes to him, and for the past defilement he must pay the sum named, which is not dear for such an outrage on neighborhood and decency.

The reformers who are rescuing our lakes and streams one after another are coming to the upper Hudson in due order, and it is full time. State Health Commissioner Porter has reported officially that the Hudson is a "public nuisance." What the lower Hudson is we know, although only few remember what it might be made once more. In the rescued up-State streams the fishermen are reporting better luck already, and the health conditions must improve wherever animal life revives. The curious thing is that the unregenerate way of manufacture costs money, and the reformed method makes money for those who are forced to be good to themselves by legal process. They begin by vowing to move their mills, and they end by recovering their waste for industrial uses. It tans leather. It makes good road binder. Other uses are under consideration. This is a sort of conservation which is practicable to-day, for us and not alone for our posterity. There is not a civilized word to be said in opposition to cleanliness at a profit, or in favor of defilement at a loss of decent self-respect as well as of dollars.

THE ANTI-VIVISECTION FAKERS.

Acting, apparently, on the principle that the public likes to be humbugged, and on that other principle that evil reports are more credible than good reports, the anti-vivisectionists are preparing "chambers of horrors" to be exhibited this Fall at the county fairs that will thrill rural sightseers with their depictions of degenerate cruelties practiced by the medical profession upon dumb animals.

Fathers and mothers who eagerly intrust the lives of their children to physicians, to be saved by methods learned through animal experimentation, will be asked to believe that these same doctors were trained by fiends and monsters of human depravity. There will be the array of stuffed animals; the pools of red-ink blood; the surgical instruments and operating tables; the gaping wounds; the contorted features and limbs of faithful Fido, and the diabolical faces of his tormentors as they pull out his nerves, wrench his muscles, mangle his quivering flesh, and break his bones. There will be the oven, heated by gas burners and containing the stuffed rabbit which represents the rabbit said to be baked alive. There will be the women attendants telling their harrowing tales of torture, and of the refusal of the physicians to use anaesthetics in their experiments. And there will be the pictures and testimonials of clergymen and literary men, misled by the circulars of the Anti-Vivisection Society, exclaiming at "this sin against the lives of innocent creatures."

The members of the New York Anti-Vivisection Society, after repeated hearings at Albany, failed to convince the legislators that there was need to place the leading men of the medical profession under their tutelage and espionage. Rebuffed by the Legislature, they hope to appeal to an uninformed electorate by their immoral shows. Their shows are untrue, deceitful, morally debasing, and degrading. We trust that the officers of the agricultural fairs will be made aware of the nature of these exhibitions in time to frustrate the designs of their promoters.

THE LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA STYLE.

The hobble skirt, or "jupe à l'entrave," the skirt with fetters, has no friends. It is not exactly a public nuisance, like the big hats. It compels its feminine wearer to walk in a graceless, ugly way; it is grossly inartistic, and, as has been mildly said, illogical. A French artist has been led by contemplation of it to declare that "human legs were made for movement." The locomotor ataxia effect produced by the hobble gown is not inspiring. But one may turn his eyes away. The hobble skirt does not obstruct one's view like the big hat. It is not dangerous like the huge pins in the big hat. In free and enlightened countries the women who want to hobble may wear the skirt that makes them hobble without stirring common folks to wrath.

The Paris cable dispatches to The Sunday Times indicated that the fate of the new skirt is in the balance. All the artists do not condemn it. One famous French dressmaker is endeavoring to lead a return of fashion to swishing skirts and frou-frou and that sort of thing. But the war against the narrow garment has lent to it fresh notoriety, and presumably the women who wear it crave notoriety above anything else. It is understood that the matter was settled yesterday at the Grand Prix. Some days must elapse, however, before the returns are all in. If the hobble skirt prevailed at the Grand Prix it will be the fashion all Summer. But let us not worry. There are faint indications that the big hats are going out, and the hair puffs, too. We may have something to be thankful for.

Much significance is attached to the fact that Congress adjourned soberly, without any of the usual child's play so common at the closing of sessions of great legislative bodies and financial exchanges. The sobriety was judicious. The Nation has a right to expect grave deportment from men who have voted to expend $1,055,000,000 of its money and a few trifling millions more.

Boston's Back Bay folks are naturally indignant because the Rev. C. W. De Lyon Nicoll, after a painstaking search, has discovered only sixteen persons in all New England who belong to "real society." A less generous investigator might eliminate the sixteen. It has been intimated that these favored personages will not thank Mr. Nicoll for the honor he has endeavored to bestow upon them. To live up to it will be rather difficult. But such critics of "society" in a democratic country serve a good purpose, after all, apart from appreciably increasing the gayety of people who do not pretend to be in society.

It is worthy of comment that the present Liberal Government of Great Britain has created forty-four new peers within the five years of its term, which beats all Conservative records. Peers are infrequently Liberals. Promotion to the peerage moderates a man's political views. Yet the Liberal Government has undertaken a radical reform of the House of Lords, while many Britons who habitually vote for Liberal candidates are in favor of suppressing the upper house altogether.

The relation of tetanus or lockjaw to the celebration of the anniversary of our National independence has been evident many years. But this year the agitation against maiming and destroying human beings by explosives began long before the Fourth of July, instead of after the compilation of its calamity list, as hitherto, and has been vigorously carried on. According to the New York Medical Journal there have been more than 1,000 deaths from lockjaw in this State within ten years. An effort is making to have a good supply of anti-tetanus serum ready for use on the Fourth, but there is ground for hope that there will be considerably less playing with fire than usual.

Mr. Bryan is entitled to all the consolation he may derive from The London Daily News's estimate of him as a less loquacious rival of Mr. Roosevelt, who, when he does talk, "has always gone deeper" than the ex-President. The depths of some of Mr. Bryan's earlier utterances, to be sure, were fathomless. But the whirligig of time brings its revenges. Mr. Bryan has impressed Great Britain in his recent visit as a quiet, thoughtful man. It was not his year for talking to the Englishmen, but we may be sure he has not lost the gift of speech.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Alcohol and Heredity. Attention is called by The Medical Record to the interesting and decidedly surprising results of an investigation recently made in England with the purpose of determining the physical and mental effects on children of alcoholism in parents. It has hitherto been held as indisputably true and "of common knowledge" that these effects are many and serious—that the drunkard's child has nothing like a fair start in life, and is, if not sure, at least very likely, to be a weakling in both mind and body. An examination by careful scientists of 3,000 children in Manchester and Edinburgh—where, if anywhere, the consequences of alcoholism could be found—discredits this old assumption.

The parents of half these children were sober people, and of half either the father or mother or both habitually drank to excess. The conclusions reached were: That the death rate among the children of alcoholic parents was slightly greater than among the others, the difference being most notable when the mother was intemperate; that the children of the sober were a little heavier; that the health of the two classes was about the same; that parental alcoholism is not the cause of mental defect in offspring and affects intelligence very slightly if at all; and that, for some inexplicable reason, the eyesight of the alcoholics was somewhat the better.

Nothing was decided as to the existence of a predisposition toward drunkenness in the children of drunkards, but it was shown, the investigators think, that what little superiority was found in the children of the sober was due, not to the abstinence of the parents from intoxicants, but to the better care and training which their children naturally received. In other words, in this case as in so many if not all others, it is early environment rather than heredity that counts, and there is no more of a pre-natal doom for the drunkard's child than for that of the consumptive.

The prohibitionists will not welcome these conclusions, and they can say, fairly enough, that the investigation was not broad enough to be decisive. They may even question the wisdom of publishing such statements, even if true. The truth, however, is never dangerous, while falsehood and inaccuracy always are. Experience has shown that the restraints of the old belief are ineffectual, and any lightening of that dark cloud of hopeless heredity, exploited by Zola and Ibsen, is certainly to be desired as tending to strengthen the sense of personal responsibility and to inspire ambition and effort.

A Defense of the Small Check. With what M. Huentsch, the Swiss banker, had to say in criticism of the American currency system and credit methods most of our financial authorities are in hearty accord, but when he scolded us for the extent to which we use checks in paying our small bills he entered upon a subject which he apparently has not thoroughly studied. While his objections to the custom may be sound enough, it will be generally held, we think, that he did not give sufficient weight to its counterbalancing advantages.

Even in this country far from everybody except the very poor has a checking account, but the number of people who do is undoubtedly greater than anywhere else, and unquestionably this habit decreases the amount of money in active, hand-to-hand circulation. That tends to increase the general stress in times of financial difficulty, but, on the other hand, it tends to prevent or defer such times by putting more money where it can be most conveniently and effectively used. The keeping of a bank account, too, gives a valuable business training to many people who would not otherwise get it, and as for the relative safety, from the individual point of view, of keeping money in a bank and of carrying it in pockets or hiding it away at home there is, of course, nothing to say except in favor of the habit, which M. Huentsch condemns.

The actual transference of cash is dangerous as well as troublesome, and it usually involves needless expense, of time if of nothing more. The payment of small bills as well as large ones by check, moreover, has the admirable effect of preventing many a petty squabble between debtors and creditors, since it is next to indubitable proof of a complete or partial settlement of accounts—better proof, in some ways, than the formal receipt which it so often supplements or replaces. Tradesmen like the check system, the banks are coming to encourage it more and more, and nobody who has once adopted it is at all likely to abandon it for anything that M. Huentsch may say about a vague and rather theoretical constriction of the currency which it produces.

The American abroad is sometimes amused, sometimes enraged, and sometimes disgusted by the insistence on cash payments which is so common in European countries. He knows that our almost constant use of checks, while it involves an occasional loss through forgery or "no account," is on the whole beneficial and vastly facilitates the transaction of ordinary business. Perhaps some of M. Huentsch's antagonism to the small check is due to the fact that in his experience they require the validation of a tax stamp. Ours do not, and that makes a big difference.

"Trained to the Day." Photographs of the pugilist Jeffries before he began his hard training and now, when he is ready to fight for a fortune, and, as he thinks, for the glory of his race, present a startling contrast. No two men of about the same height could be much more unlike in general appearance or facial expression than is the Jeffries of six months ago and the Jeffries of to-day.

The former was a big fellow, distinctly fat all over and as distinctly taking that good-natured, contented view of the world which the fat man is supposed always to take and usually does. The other picture is also that of a big fellow, but it is not so much his size that impresses one as his lean, emaciated, drawn look. The cheeks are sunken and furrowed, the lips are compressed and hint the weariness of overwork, and the eyes say something of pain and much of irritation. The "condition" of the man may be magnificent, as the experts in his profession say, and it may be exactly the one required for making a tremendous output of energy in a brief period. It is, however, a condition obviously pathological, not to be desired for any except the particular purposes of pugilism, and conducive neither to good health nor to long life.

The trainers doubtless know their business, but their business is that of preparing a man to fight once with his fists, not to live, and their methods, while necessarily efficient in the aggregate, are full of incidental and irrelevant absurdities. Nothing could be more grotesque, for instance, than their effort to "dry out" the object of their care by depriving him in these last days of drinking water and of baths, and some of their dietary rules are either useless or harmful. It is no wonder that prizefighters usually fall into excesses when they "break training," or that their professional careers are so short. They are physically wrecked, not by their fighting and the trivial injuries suffered in the ring, but by their methods of preparation for battle and by the reactions which inevitably follow victory or defeat.

A WALKING CLUB.

A Suggestion from Successful Organizations of Boston and Chicago.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Does not, as "M. S. H." suggests in The Times, New York City need a club like the Field and Forest of Boston or the Saturday Afternoon Walks of Chicago? The environs of Chicago are comparatively unattractive, and yet for three years on stated Saturdays, Winter and Summer, a group of from 20 to 200 people tramp about the surrounding country. There are also week-end and Summer trips offered for those who wish them.

Some New Yorkers tell me that their fellow-townsmen would not care for such group outings. But is it not quite probable that there is a nature-craving population in your city who, perhaps from lack of time, have not discovered places and the trains thereto, and who would like to ramble with a group of people who have the same taste? There is something surprisingly refreshing about being with people who have come together because they love the "open." The truly undesirable person never comes.

Are there not enthusiasts in New York who would be happy to go to the very slight trouble of forming such a club? It is not only the boy who needs scouting to take him back to the woods and fields. We grown-ups in these big cities are, most of us, shut-ins. We do not know how to get out, and need some one to show us the trail.

Information concerning the Saturday afternoons walk may be obtained from the Playground Association, 85 Dearborn Street, Chicago. D. A.

THE "ANTI-STOVE."

An Invention Which Will Make Some One's Fortune.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your fourth and fifth column "topic"-al philosopher has touched nothing more timely or more needed than in his plea this morning for the great necessity which we all feel of having some way to cool the rooms of a house, as well as to warm them. I have myself been writing on behalf of some device that will do this for many years, and, in spite of the fact that the need of one is overwhelmingly obvious, I have never before seen any allusion, except what my own pen has given, to this subject.

In one magazine article of five or six years ago I instanced a hypothetical community in Central Africa that had always protected itself against the lion, but never opposed the tiger. The former it invariably held at bay, but the latter it suffered to go lawless and effectively predatory. Dreadfully absurd and needless as this habit was, I urged that the barbarians who surrendered to it were no more ridiculous than the most civilized nations are in successfully extinguishing cold and yet helplessly accepting heat.

I believe the Madison Square Theatre did over twenty years ago pump coolness into its auditorium, and perhaps it does now, but it was probably by an expensive process. What is wanted, however, is an apparatus, which I have called an "anti-stove," that can be priced within easy reach and be made to fit all houses and the public rooms where people in hot days assemble. Just think of what this would mean for human comfort and for the saving of health and lives and of the power to work for all of us.

A mere statement of the situation is all the argument the plan demands. And why is it some inventive genius does not see this want, and by satisfying it grasp to a certainty both fame and fortune? JOEL BENTON.

A Real Estate Proposition.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Do you think it advisable for a man having an income of $1,200 per year and $2,000 in the bank to purchase a one-family brick house in Brooklyn, price $4,750?

The conditions are as follows:

Price of house	$4,750
Cash	1,000
Balance	$3,750
First mortgage	$2,500
Second mortgage	1,250
Interest on first mortgage at 5 per cent.	$125
Interest on second mortgage at 6 per cent.	75
Taxes	45
Water taxes	6
Insurance	5
	$256

Five years to pay second mortgage, payable $50 every three months on principal.

The only extra assessments to come are for a sewer. The property does not extend to the middle of the street, but only as far as the curb. The builder owns the street, but he promised to give the city a free and clear deed for same when all the houses are sold.

I now pay $18 rent per month. My family consists of three. You will note that I intend to leave $1,000 in the bank for emergency. Do you think I should take the chance and buy, or do you think the risk is too much?

The No-Coat Movement.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is there any legitimate reason why men should wear coats during the hot Summer months? I am only one of the many millions of sufferers who are compelled to wear coats and fairly melt. Of course there isn't the slightest doubt in the world that the women are responsible for this slow torture which we are made to contend with. There are very few women who wouldn't feel insulted if a man should appear in a shirtwaist, but at the same time do we ever see women wearing their cloaks these hot days? If The Times would start a movement to discard coats (which is bound to come sooner or later) every man in America would be indebted to it beyond comprehension. If there is any woman who can put forward a reason why men should wear coats during the extremely hot season, let her come out with an expression.

Summer Uniforms.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For the past two years the readers of this column have waged war against the use of heavy cloth uniforms in Summer. It may interest them to know that in one of the largest Broadway office buildings the elevator men and other officials have all been provided with cool and attractive uniforms of dark blue alpaca—a fact that has added very much to the comfort of the men and the satisfaction of the patrons of the building. The Honor for Mrs. Rice.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is a great blessing to many inhabitants of New York that they do not need to flee the city to be free from the horrible noise of the firecrackers, and that our National holiday will be celebrated without the usual deafening sounds and sacrifice of lives and property.

All honor to Mrs. Isaac L. Rice, who in speech and writing in the different papers and periodicals led such an energetic and untiring crusade against "Our Barbarous Fourth." At last, with the help of our good Mayor, she triumphed. H. W.

The Snark Was a Boojum.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The report of Senator Lodge from the select committee of the Senate, appointed to ascertain the causes of the high cost of living, makes me think of "The Hunting of the Snark." Upon the great search, it turns out that the what-is-it is, after all, just a plain, ordinary Boojum. R. G. DYRENFORTH.

VALUE OF SWIMMING.

Wants Instruction Provided in Education of Boys and Girls.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A short time ago a member of our woman's conference read in one of the daily papers a letter from John Nillson, in which he spoke of the importance of making swimming a compulsory branch of education and calling attention to the number of deaths reported every Summer from drowning, a large proportion of which might be prevented if the victims knew how to swim. At the suggestion of this member the matter was discussed by the club, and it was decided to write to some well-known paper, urging that the matter be brought before the public.

As there is, probably, no public money available for the purpose, perhaps some philanthropist could be found who would pay teachers to be employed at the swimming pools and beaches where children bathe. The boys and girls could be taught the simple strokes necessary to use in an emergency, how to take off clothes while in the water, if necessary; what to do when the drowning one hinders instead of helps his rescuer. In short, teach them what is taught to the men employed at life-saving stations. A statement such as that made by The World of Aug. 1, 1909, that in the June previous 1,176 persons lost their lives by drowning, ought to cause people to realize how useful such instruction would be to our girls and boys. This knowledge would not only prevent a great loss of life, but would save the poor mothers many anxious hours.

YOUNG MAN IN THE CITY.

Another Answer to His Problem of Living Well.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wonder if by relating my own experience in New York I could not help my fellow-Canadian, J. K., whose letter regarding "The Young Man's Problem" appeared in your issue June 14.

I came to New York a few years ago, a young man and a total stranger. I did not even have a "job." After somewhat discouraging efforts I finally secured a position along a line entirely new to me and, of course, had much lower pay than I had hoped to get in New York and even had in Canada. It was less than $25. And like J. K., I wanted companionship of the "right sort." I was boarding near a Y. M. C. A. branch. I had never been a member of the Y. M. C. A. and had seldom been inside their buildings. In fact, I had—I don't know on what grounds—a feeling that Y. M. C. A. men were more or less "weak-kneed sissies." I saw hundreds of young men go in and out of the building. They were decidedly of the respectable, manly type. I dropped in. I even "liked the looks" of some of these young men. I became acquainted with them; became interested in some of the things they were doing. I joined the association and gradually, not in one evening nor in one week, not by secretaries falling over themselves to make me feel at home, not by any lasso methods, (these are some of the "sentimentalities that hinder righteousness" about which Mr. Roosevelt speaks,) I came into the possession of a circle of friends and companions who have actually "shaped my career." I am no longer a member of that particular branch, but I count among its secretaries and members some young men of the finest type I have ever known, certainly of the "right sort."

As for "club privileges" for value received I have never heard of anything approaching the Y. M. C. A. in practical privileges. I do not believe my case exceptional. I know that there are thousands of young men in this city who could relate similar experiences. MAC.

BOYS OF CITY AND COUNTRY.

Thinks Former Are as Ready for Deeds of Nerve and Daring.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. John C. Collins in a letter states that the "city boy is not in it when an adventure calls for physical nerve and daring" in comparison with the country boy. I do not think so, and believe there are enough exceptions in each case to reduce the difference to nil, at least.

It is true that the city lad is in danger of arrest for petty offenses such as standing on corners, throwing things around, or disturbing people in other ways, and also that he must watch cross streets carefully in order to escape injury or possibly death from automobiles, &c. This, however, only tends to make him constantly on the alert and ready to act on the slightest impulse. I speak from actual experience and observation and know that the boy who risks arrest in petty matters enjoys the fascination of it, and it does not "scare the life out of him." It is just this agility and headwork that enable the city boy to keep out of harm's way when crossing streets.

Let the city boy and the country boy change places. Within a short time the former will have become familiar with his new surroundings. Any difficulties he may meet in the country are tame beside those he has experienced in the city, while, on the other hand, the country boy is absolutely "green" in the city, and nearly everybody knows what that means. He can get over it, of course, but it takes much longer than it does for his city cousin to become accustomed to the environs of the country. GEORGE SUMNER.

BOY SCOUTS MOVEMENT.

Calls It a Step Toward Militarism and Barbarism.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On May 18, the principals of all the public schools in the City of New York held exercises in their respective schools, celebrating the anniversary of the opening of the first Hague Conference to prevent war and promote peace among the nations of the earth. At these exercises the boys and girls were impressed with the needlessness and horrors of war, its cruelty and injustice, &c. Their attention was called to the utterances of public men, such as President Butler and ex-Secretary of State Foster, at the last Peace Conference at Lake Mohonk. In short, an attempt was made to inculcate in them love of peace and hatred of war.

But now the boy scout movement is being organized here, and is being commented upon favorably by some of the newspapers! Is it not rather absurd, if not hypocritical, to talk of the glories of peace, and at the same time encourage militarism and its accompanying brutality? We, the older people, are in the majority of cases influenced by tradition, and can but in a slight degree accomplish the noble ideals to which humanity is striving. It is the younger generations, our boys and girls, who are the main hope of the future; and instead of developing instincts that make for peace and universal brotherhood, some of us, evidently dissatisfied with their lack of bloodthirstiness, wish to cultivate traits that make for retrogression to barbarism.

The organizers of the movement will undoubtedly talk of the resulting healthy outdoor life, love of nature, &c. But these can, and, in fact, do result from life on a farm, in a camp, &c., without guns, swords, brass buttons, smart uniforms, and other similar paraphernalia, appealing to the savage part of our make-up.

What an excellent scheme this is of realizing "peace on earth and good will to men."

Swimming Around Glen Island.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I regret to say the honor of being the first woman to swim around Glen Island does not belong to Miss Eleanor Merton. I was in a boat that followed three young women of New Rochelle, Miss Katharine Brown, Miss Frances Sayre, and Miss Frances Wilson, when they performed that feat in the year 1904.

ENTHUSIASTIC OVER MISSION CONFERENCE

E. E. Olcott, First American Delegate to Return, Says World's Gathering Was Marvelous.

TALKS OF STATE POLITICS

Best Way to Defeat the Black Horse Cavalry Would Be to Persuade Hughes to Run Again.

E. E. Olcott, President of the Hudson River Day Line, accompanied by Mrs. Olcott, arrived yesterday on the Anchor liner Caledonia from Edinburgh, Scotland, where he had attended as a delegate of the Reformed Church in America the World's Missionary Conference, which was in session there from June 14 to 23. Mr. Olcott is the first of the 600 American delegates to return. Ex-President Roosevelt was to have attended as a delegate of the same Church, but sent a letter of regret, saying that he was called back to America.

Mr. Olcott was told that Col. Roosevelt wanted Gov. Hughes to run again for Governor.

"That would be the best thing possible for Republicans in this State," he said. "From my experience with politicians in this State I can say that just as soon as it was announced that Gov. Hughes was going to the Supreme Court bench the Black Horse Cavalry rode into Albany and set to work to run things their own way. Men of that class fear Mr. Hughes, for he carries the true spirit of righteousness with him and fights without fear or favor. He is needed too much for public good to be put aside."

Mr. Olcott talked enthusiastically about the World's Missionary Conference.

"There were 1,200 delegates there," said he, "representing 160 churches and societies, with more than 100 missionaries in addition. I was impressed by the co-operation of the Catholics, though they were not represented formally by delegates.

"It was a marvelous conference. The Assembly Hall, seating 3,000, was not nearly large enough to hold all those who wished to attend, and there were two continuous overflow meetings—one in the City of Edinburgh's Synod Hall and the other in the Assembly Hall of the established Presbyterian Church of Scotland, each holding about 4,000 people.

"All these representatives of all Christian denominations were in Edinburgh to bring what information they had about missionary work and to carry away all they could get there. And we got a treasure of information. For two years eight separate commissions, representing the ablest thinkers and workers in missions, have been considering reports sent in by missionaries from all parts of the world, and this collected information was digested and put in form easy to grasp.

"The conference had no executive power; it could only recommend. The three most prominent things that were learned there by all the delegates, in my mind, were these:

"First—The need for co-operaton of the different churches against the heathen, so that a Baptist, for instance, shall not duplicate the work of a Methodist on the same ground.

"Second—The need to recognize more generally than has been done the good points in the religious and philosophies of the people we wish to evangelize, being sure that we take all the good that are in them, substituting Chrstianity's better tenets for their weaker ones.

"Third—The need to give independence just as soon as possible to Christian churches founded in a foreign land, encouraging them to stand upon their own feet and go forward with the work on which the parent churches have started them.

"It is estimated that 1,000,000,000 people are in the world. Of that number 325,000,000 have been reached by the Christian religion. That leaves 675,000,000 still to be reached. For those standing behind the Christian religion to bear the expense of reaching out the word of Christ to this tremendous number of people seems like a great burden. A little story told at the conference by Chen Ching Li, a delegate from China, represents the Christian attitude on this point.

"A missionary saw a little Chinese girl out on the road, carrying in her arms a lusty baby boy who seemed to be about as big as she was. 'That is a heavy burden you are carrying,' said the missionary. 'This is not a burden,' she replied. 'He is my brother.'

"H. Carl Kumm said that there were more people in Northern Nigeria than in Canada and not a single Christian missionary to oppose the spread of Mohammedanism there. That is carried forth vigorously by Mohammedan merchants. Christian merchants do not talk much religion when they go abroad. It was urged strongly that vigorous missionary work be carried on among the Mohammedans of all Africa, Arabia, China, and the East Indies."

THOUGHTFUL MEN SCARCE.

Rev. Mr. Black Says Most Voices Nowadays Are Echoes.

HANOVER, N. H., June 26.—The Rev. Hugh Black of Union Theological Seminary, New York, delivered the baccalaureate sermon to the seniors of Dartmouth College to-day in the college church.

"The sin of New England in religion is the same as the sin of Scotland," he said. "We make religion merely an intellectual problem.

"Let no man here say that he has paid for his education. It has been wrung out, drop by drop, from the blood of ages. Remember that your hands are soft because the hands of your fathers are horny, and that your backs are straight because their backs are bent.

"Nothing is rarer than a thoughtful man. We read books to avoid thinking. We seldom hear a voice nowadays which is not merely an echo of what some one else has said."

RECORD IMPORTS OF GEMS.

More Than $45,000,000 Worth Brought Here in the Year Ending June 30.

Imports of precious stones, as reported by the customs officials this month, have sent the total for the fiscal year ending June 30 above $45,000,000. The highest prior record was $43,602,476 for the year 1907, the total for this port alone being $41,112,371.

About 85 per cent. of the imports of precious stones this year have been diamonds, one-third of these being uncut. Fully 60 per cent. of a diamond is lost in cutting and polishing, which represents about one-third of the cost of the finished article.

About 75 per cent. of the cut diamonds come from Amsterdam and Antwerp, in which cities 13,000 men, women, and children are employed in cleaving, cutting, and polishing.

Although the number of diamond cutters and polishers in New York is less than 500, the diamonds they finish are of as much value as those cut by several thousands of European workmen. The reason is that the American workmen handle only stones of larger size and of better grade.

SALOME'S MUSIC GIVEN IN THE PARK

Nahan Franko's Orchestra Introduces the Strauss Opera to Sunday Saunterers.

8,000 IN THE AUDIENCE

Park Commissioner Stover Plans to Give a Series of Concerts on the City Bridges.

Without the aid of Mary Garden or Olive Fremstad to fling fluttering veils to the breezes, Salome and her Dance of the Seven Veils, as musically portrayed by Richard Strauss, made her début in Central Park yesterday afternoon. About 8,000 persons gathered in front of the band stand.

Nahan Franko was responsible for this innovation in park music, and, judging from the attitude of yesterday's list of auditors, it is likely that from henceforth "Salome" will be as popular in the Park as, say, "Madama Butterfly" or "Carmen."

Up to now the "Salome" music has been heard only at the two opera houses and in Carnegie Hall in New York. The Boston Symphony and other orchestras have played the famous dance, but have not tried to make use of the other music in this lyric drama to fill in their programmes.

Mr. Franko decided that New York was still anxious to hear "Salome" in one form or another, and events proved that he was right.

Before he had put in an appearance in the band stand the square at the head of the Mall was black with people. Every available space on the few benches which the city provides for this purpose was filled, and there were as many standing as could stand within a hearing radius. As the grass in Central Park is not meant to be stood on under any circumstances, the policemen kept people off.

They also gave this section of the Park the regulation appearance of any place of amusement when anything labeled "Salome" is on the bills.

The programme began peaceably enough with the allegretto from Beethoven's Eighth Symphony, the Prize Song from "Die Meistersinger," the "Meditation" from "Thaïs," and like numbers. Finally the placard No. 5 was put up. No. 5 was down on the programme as a Fantasie of "Salome," arranged from Richard Strauss's music drama by Doebber.

When Nahan Franko rose to conduct the orchestra, it could be seen that that body had been considerably augmented. There were a few extra "trap" men, musicians who play triangles, bells, and drums of divers sorts. Other instruments not often seen in a park orchestra were skillfully placed here and there.

Absolute silence spread through the crowd when Mr. Franko raised his baton. The fantasie included nearly all the duet between Salome and Jockanaan; all the interlude which follows this scene, a bit of Herod's music when he begs Salome to dance, the greater part of the dance, and finally the final bars of the score. The selection occupied just twenty-five minutes in playing, and as the entire opera only lasts an hour and twenty-five minutes it can be seen that yesterday's audience heard at least a third of it.

When the Oriental strains at the beginning of the dance commenced the listening tension became even greater than it had been before. A few of the more eager auditors nudged their neighbors at this point to indicate that the famous passage was being played.

After it was over the enthusiasm of the crowd expressed itself in wild cheering and hand-clapping, and it is probable that Mr. Franko may feel called upon to have Salome dance in the park once more, even without the aid of Olive Fremstad or Mary Garden.

It should be stated that Mr. Franko was a member of the orchestra which Mr. Hertz rehearsed thirty times for one performance of the music drama at the Metropolitan Opera House, and that therefore he is familiar with the score. His reading of it yesterday indicated that.

With the additional music appropriation granted to his department recently Park Commissioner Stover intends to inaugurate a series of concerts on the city bridges. The first will take place on July 4. One will be given under the New York approach to the Queensboro Bridge, while the other will be given on the New York anchorage platform of the Williamsburg Bridge.

"This concert will be really a promenade concert," said the Commissioner in explaining his plan. "It would not do to have the people stand where the musicians are playing on account of the narrowness of the promenade. Therefore they will have to keep moving, perhaps to the centre of the bridge, where the return can be made."

WORK OF WOMEN DOCTORS.

In a Year 2,250 Lectures on Health Topics Were Delivered Under Their Auspices.

Dr. Rosalie Slaughter Morton of this city presented the report of the Public Health Education Commitee at the recent meeting of the American Medical Association in St. Louis. According to the Medical Record, this committee had not been appointed with due regard to parliamentary law, and was therefore not an integral part of the American Medical Association. The committee, which is one year old, was not aware of this, however, but nevertheless had prosecuted a vigorous campaign in educating the public in matters of health and hygiene.

Courses of lectures, Dr. Morton reported, were given under the auspices of the women of the American Medical Association, working through their various county societies. In all, 2,250 lectures were given in forty States, and were listened to by 102,575 persons. They were given on twenty-eight subjects chosen by the committee.

"Dr. G. W. Wagoner," Dr. Morton said, in his Presidential address before the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania, said that doctors were losing confidence and receiving the criticism of the laity, and this was due to the fact that throughout the country the public was being exploited by pseudo-scientists who affirmed that the so-called drug doctors were commercially interested in keeping the people ill while they were working to prevent disease.

"The laity is interested in public health education," continued Dr. Morton. "The psychological moment has come, and it will be a serious reflection on our profession if we do not educate the public to an appreciation of the position of the doctor as the protector of the health of the community. The fact that such a movement is being carried on under the auspices of the American Medical Association carries much weight with it. We feel sure that another year will give opportunities for a wider usefulness.

"We have had the co-operation of the United Charities Association, and we are helping to extend the work of the Special Committee on the Prevention of Blindness."

Evidence was presented to show that the work was commended by physicians who are leaders in the profession. They had refrained from a discussion of vivisection in their lectures until the aims of their work should be better understood, as the opening of controversial questions might lead to misconstruction of their motives and thus limit their influence.

The House of Delegates voted to make provision for a continuation of this work when revising the by-laws.

RADIUM SCARCE IN LONDON.

Directors of the British Institute Worried About Getting a Supply.

According to information received in this country, the medical men of London are wondering where the supply of radium is to come from with which to stock the British Radium Institute, now nearing completion. This element is said to be valued now at about $3,000,000 an ounce.

The Radium Institute was projected early in 1909. At that time it was believed that no difficulty would be experienced in obtaining an ample supply of radium for its use. The element is to be used there as a therapeutic agent for the treatment of epithelioma, lupus, and other maladies as may be found to yield to its influence. Something like five and a half grammes is needed to equip the institue properly, but it is said now that the firm which undertook to supply this amount is unable to live up to the contract. Experts have informed the Directors of the institute that there are hardly so much as 1,000 milligrammes of radium in England. A part of this total has been loaned by the Austrian Government, and is to be returned in September. The Institute will be opened in October, if the present plans are carried out.

The contracting firm made an effort to obtain an adequate supply in Paris, but the price asked was too high, it is said.

PLAYS BY SCHOOL CHILDREN.

The Educational Playhouse Association to Extend Its Work Next Season.

The Educational Playhouse Association, which has interested a large number of young men and women in amateur theatricals, has begun active preparations for next season, with a view of extending its field of usefulness to the public schools throughout the city. The children of Public School 43, who participated in the performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at Morris High School on June 17, are so enthusiastic over the work that they have besieged Mrs. Emma Sheridan Fry, who directed the production, to repeat it early next Fall. The Board of Education has given full sanction to the enterprise.

Among the plays in contemplation for next season is "The Little Princess." Rehearsals for this will be held in the open at Bronx Park, the same as was done in the case of "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

The association has headquarters at 226 Fifth Avenue.

PHASES OF HEREDITY AND ENVIRONMENT

The Alleged Rapid Deterioration of Human Stock in Congested Cities Is a Serious Problem.

THE SITUATION IN EUROPE

Rejection of Undesirables in United States and Canada Said to Render Situation Abroad More Acute.

The serious discussion of heredity and environment is taken up by The Medical Record, the arguments being based on the proposition that congested cities are producing a physically and mentally inferior stock at a rapid rate. The writer says:

"As the earth becomes more populated, far-seeing persons are turning their attention to the conservation of its natural resources. The question of public health is closely allied to the conservation and care of natural resources. It is for both the material and the physical welfare of man that the country should not be wholly denuded of its forests, and it is certainly for the good of his health that rivers, lakes, and streams should not be foully polluted.

In the United States and Canada the principles of conservation have been adopted, and it is to be hoped that in the near future the water supplies in the entire continent of America will be thoroughly safeguarded against contamination. When this has been done a step in advance as regards public health will indeed have been made, but there are other matters intimately related to public health which also call for immediate notice.

"The cities congested with people are producing a physically and mentally inferior stock and at so rapid a rate that the average ability and capability of the whole community are being lowered. In Europe the situation has reached the acute stage, but it is only in England that the question has been seriously considered from the standpoint of eugenics.

"Emigration used to afford a safety valve to some extent, but now neither this country nor Canada will admit those termed undesirables, the people that Europe is most anxious to get rid of, so that the problem of how best to deal with this class must be faced at home.

"The problem is intricate. In Europe, and especially in Great Britain, and in this country in a lesser degree, the state of affairs is this: In the large cities, and in the poor parts of these in particular, the population in increasing by leaps and bounds. That is to say, the most prolific urban inhabitants are, generally speaking, wretchedly poor, and not infrequently vicious and criminal. The point is, what is to be done to stay this form of propagation of the human species, or perhaps, what steps shall be taken to uplift the masses?

"The decision to be arrived at is whether the next generations of city dwellers are to be recruited from the five-cent show, the music hall, the skating rink, the unsanitary dwelling and factory, or from a healthier, purer, and more elevated environment and class. In brief, it is a question of breeding and environment.

"Galton says that the possibility of improving the race of a nation depends on the power of increasing the productivity of the best stock. This, he believes, is far more desirable than that of repressing the production of the worst. Civilization has done away with the elimination of the unfit to a great extent. The days when an individual who could not earn his living or get his living had to die have gone, and man is no longer subject to the unrestrained laws of natural selection. For example, he prevents some diseases and cures others, makes life possible for the feeble, the ailing, and the malformed, and affords them the opportunity of propagating their kind.

"By some of his laws and customs, indeed, he sets the principle of natural selection at defiance and seems to pave the way for physical and mental deterioration and even for degeneration.

"Rousseau and his school held that civilization involved degeneration, but without going so far as this it may be said that where civilization is there also is degeneration. Are the schemes of Galton and of others for improving the human stock feasible or, if feasible, desirable? The measures suggested up to the present time for improving the human stock by judicious mating or by judicious repression of reproductivity do not come within the sphere of practical politics, or, at any rate, the mass of the people are not educated to that point as yet; nor if feasible are these measures altogether desirable.

"After all, man is more dependent upon brains than upon muscle. The mental powers of a Pasteur, a Koch, or a Lister are worth more to the world in every way than the muscles of a Jeffries, a Johnson, a Grace, or a Hanlon. The puny, sickly, or deformed child, which in primitive circumstances would have succumbed to the law of nature known as the survival of the fittest, may possess—often, indeed, has possessed—the brain of a great discoverer.

"As a matter of fact, such a child in civilized life is as fit to survive as the primitive splendid animal. Both are creatures of their environment. Physical excellence is to be desired and every legitimate means should be taken to attain it for a race, but this does not prove that it would be wise, if possible, to try to improve the species by select mating and by methods to prevent the breeding of the unfit.

"Manifestly, there are congenital animals and persons suffering from certain physical and mental diseases who should not marry, and it would be to the benefit of all if such were not permitted to propagate their species, but to lay the ban upon those wishing to marry because some scientists might say they were unfit will not, in existing circumstances, meet with the assent of the laity.

"The most potent remedy for the present condition of things is to render it easy for people to live under healthy conditions, in the country for choice, but if in the city in as healthy a manner as can be attained therein. If little or nothing can be done now to improve the breed by the methods discussed above, much can be effected as regards environment in country as well as in town."

ON THE HUNT FOR AN AUTHOR.

Henry B. Harris Wants to Know Who Wrote "A Matter of Money."

If an author who sent a play called "A Matter of Money" to Henry B. Harris, the theatrical manager, will call upon Mr. Harris he will hear something to his or her advantage. Mr. Harris has the play and this morning he is advertising for an author to fit it. He has selected the piece for the use of Elsie Ferguson next season, but that is only incidental to the fact that the person or persons who wrote it failed to put a name or address on the front page.

The manuscript was received at the Harris offices some time ago, and after reading was put aside as a possibility. Mr. Harris said last night that he had considered a number of plays for the use of his youngest star, and that he had finally determined upon this one.

Last week, when he began to plan for its production, he found the author's name and address had not been put on the manuscript, and the wrapper in which the sheets arrived was missing. No one in the office knew who had sent the play, and nothing in its style could make it recognized. Rather than go ahead with his preparations without giving the owner a chance to consider terms the manager decided to advertise and to await results.

The play is a "straight" drama, said Mr. Harris, and not a comedy. He thinks it is particularly well suited to Miss Ferguson, and he is very anxious to find out who wrote it.

ST. MARK'S HOSPITAL.

IMMEDIATE HELP NEEDED.

The charitable work of the Hospital has increased 25 per cent. during the last five years, the expenses increasing correspondingly; 64,169 patients have been treated since 1890, the year of its foundation; 50,801 free meals were given to the poor applying at its doors since 1900. This non-sectarian Hospital is for the needy sufferers of all creeds and nationalities and no sick poor are ever refused admission. The annual contributions have remained stationary, causing a heavy debt to accumulate. The work can only be continued if charitable citizens will give generous aid immediately. The sum of $20,000 must be raised at once to pay off pressing creditors. We appeal to the good people of New York to keep up St. Mark's Hospital, its benevolent work, its Maternity Ward, its Dispensary, the Training School for Nurses and the feeding of the poor. Unfortunately the Hospital possesses no endowment fund from which to draw for deficiencies. Contributions will be received at St. Mark's Hospital, 177 Second Av., and acknowledged in the Herald.

JEFFRIES SPENDS SUNDAY FISHING

JOHNSON IN PLAYFUL MOOD

Negro Champion Puts In Fairly Full Routine of Work—Reno Fast Filling Up.

BY JOHN L. SULLIVAN.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., June 26.—This was about the most restful day that Jeffries and Johnson will have until their contest on the Fourth of July. There is, of course, one more Sunday coming, but on that day there is bound to be a feeling of unrest and suppressed emotion in the two camps, which is only natural, being practically on the eve of the battle.

This Sunday, or the second before the fight, finds the critical stage of the training passed, and the last good test, physical and mental, that the men will enjoy until one week from to-morrow night. I spent most of the day at Moana Springs, going out there early and staying until this evening, sitting around on the lawn beside Jeff's cottage most of the time, until the active Corbett took us all over across the road to the baseball grounds, where the late afternoon was devoted to a baseball game and wrestling matches among the attachés of Jeffries's camp. Most of the newspaper men who are here for the fight played, and the affair resembled a playground with a lot of animal cubs capering around it more than anything else.

The group on the lawn with Jeffries—Corbett, Choynski, Muldoon, Farmer Burns, Sam Berger, Jack Jeffries, Bob Vernon, Hector McKenzie, Roger Cornell, Dick Adams, Walter Kelley, the Virginia Judge, and Mrs. Jack and Mrs. Jim Jeffries—made interesting pictures. The photographers, who were out in force, took advantage of the opportunity, and we were snapped from all sides of Jeffries's camp. The situation of Jeffries's quarters makes this feature of sightseeing more possible than at Johnson's, because of the easier accessibility of the former than the latter, and it would suit Jeffries mightily if conditions were reversed. Johnson does not object to the gaping as much as Jeffries does. The big fellow does not like it worth a cent, but the hasty preparations on account of the change from Rowardennan to this place make this objection unavoidable. If "Jeff" had his way there would be a fence fifty feet high around the house and grounds.

The heat here to-day reminds us of our own homes back East. We have all been led to believe that in this high altitude, with snow-capped mountains surrounding us on all sides, we would not notice any high temperature that would happen to come along, but everybody I have met to-day complained of the heat. I saw on one thermometer this afternoon about 1 o'clock that it registered 87 degrees in the shade.

"Jeff" and I had quite a little talk over the old and new training methods. While I uphold the way we used to train, I had to fall in with "Jim's" ideas about the new improvements that have been in effect during his course of training. Naturally he had the better of me in one feature of the argument. I had to admit that my unwillingness for hard work kept me from accomplishing the immense results that he has made in himself during the last year. As a atter of fact, I do not know of any fighter who has ever stuck to the strenuous grind that "Jeff" has just gone through. Even Corbett, who is a very willing worker, passed up a stunt or two when the activity was making his nerves raw. We have heard a lot about Jeffries's fishing trips and Johnson's auto excursions, but from the fishing jaunts that "Jeff" described to me to-day I came to the conclusion they must have been some of the best parts of his training.

One would have to be in corking fine condition to do the tramping and climbing he does on some of these trips. He told me that he enjoys them more when the tramp is the hardest. The high temperature which has prevailed during the last few days has suggested to many that there is going to be a deal of discomfort in the arena on the Fourth of July, and already attention is being directed toward this feature of the coming contest.

New ways and means are already being planned for the atmospheric conditions, and schemes have been proposed to offset the heat waves, but Messrs. Rickard and Gleason will probably be thankful if the arena is in proper readiness by that time, and they will likely not concern themselves with any outside features. They have a big enough job on their hands as it is, and they are working like a couple of trojans to get ready. This particular point, though, may get some attention which will be of benefit to the principals. However, there is one little detail that cropped up to-day that might receive serious attention. Muldoon, Berger, and myself, in talking about the conditions at Carson City thirteen years ago, recalled many little features of that affair, with the idea of discovering if any improvement could be suggested for the coming event.

We remembered that the glare on the white canvas at Carson City was very trying on the eyes. Muldoon said that Mrs. Fitzsimmons, the only woman in the inclosure, advised her husband's seconds to tell Bob not to cast his eyes downward. Fitzsimmons's eyes were naturally weak, anyway, and any sort of a glare would give him pain. I turned to Corbett and asked him if the glare that day affected him any. He said: "No, it didn't, as he remembered, he was not bothered by the heat or any other atmospheric conditions." Muldoon suggested, however, that some sort of dark colored canvas would be better for the ring here than a white one. The suggestion appealed to Berger, and he will probably make some tests along this line. I know the glare on the ring on that memorable day bothered me quite a little.

Johnson worked to-day both in the morning and the afternoon, but he had but one session of boxing, and that was with his white sparring partners, Kaufman and Monahan. Apparently the heat does not bother Johnson one bit. He was more than willing to go to his work to-day, even while his trainers were not insistent on it. He did some shadow boxing, medicine ball throwing in the morning, and about 3:30 in the afternoon he boxed seven rounds.

The trains still continue to add to the quota of sporting celebrities. The train from the West this morning brought about forty more enthusiasts, among them being Jim Coffroth and Tiv Kreling of San Francisco. The influx is just about beginning to create apprehension among those of the town whose duty it is to see that every man has a place to lay his head. They are hopeful, however, that everybody will be cared for, and the slogan is, "The more the merrier."

JOHN L. SULLIVAN.

JOHNSON IS CONFIDENT.

Negro Champion Discusses His Chances of Defeating Jeffries.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., June 26.—Jack Johnson was the only working man besides the carpenters around Reno to-day. He put in two sessions of activity, and while they were not strenuous, his work materially differed from that of Jeffries, six miles away across the country.

Johnson went on to his platfrom in the morning and indulged in about an hour's work of shadow boxing, throwing the medicine ball, and punching the bag. In the afternoon there was a large crowd at Rick's to see the champion, and while he had not intended to engage in any work at all he ordered out his two white sparring partners, Al Kaufman and Monahan, an ex-amateur middleweight. He boxed three rounds with Kaufman, which consisted mostly of clinching, pulling, and pushing, and four rounds with Monahan. There was quite a little ginger injected into the set-to, and Monahan was considerably mussed up at the finish.

Jeffries spent a very quiet day at Moana Springs, going fishing in the morning and directing affairs at the baseball grounds in the afternoon. This part of to-day's programme entertained an immense crowd. Of course these trips with the crowd always must include a peek at the retired champion. He dislikes this sort of thing, but is gradually getting over his shyness in this respect, though, and by being more accustomed to the gaping crowd.

He sat around on the lawn for fully two hours, surrounded by a large crowd of old friends. He and John L. Sullivan had quite a lengthy pugilistic discussion. Naturally the crowd around the fence was thickest during this little episode.

In the ball park in the afternoon there were several wrestling matches and a baseball game. About every newspaper here was represented in this contest, so that it differed in many material particulars from a real baseball game. In this respect at times there were fifteen or sixteen men out in the field, but the official score showed the newspaper men had defeated the fighters. Bob Armstrong was the hit of the game. He played first base, and amused the crowd by his good-natured antics. Corbett pitched the last inning for the athletes, and he was batted all over the place.

Johnson's air of confidence is the most surprising thing at present in connection with the coming big contest. In a confidential talk he had this morning with an old friend he gave out what is probably the only prognosticated plan of action in the ring that either of the fighters has talked about for the battle of July 4. Billy McCarney, an ex-amateur lightweight, who used to live in Philadelphia but now resides in San Francisco, is quite a friend of Johnson's. McCarney talked with the champion this morning and the latter unbosomed himself in no uninteresting way. He asked McCarney what he thought of his chances.

McCarney more jokingly than seriously said: "If this fight were going to take place in Central Africa you would win in a walk; there wouldn't be a doubt in my mind; but here in Reno, with the possibility of some hot-headed rioter being in the crowd, if you show any evidence of forging to the front he may feel it incumbent upon himself to take a hand in the proceedings."

Johnson showed his gold teeth in a broad derisive smile and said: "Good Lord, Billy, you don't think any one would shoot me, do you?"

McCarney, seeing that the conversation was taking a serious turn, said: "Certainly not, Jack, I don't think anything of the kind. I was only joshing you."

Johnson came back with: "Well, I might just as well be a dead nigger as a defeated one. I have gone along pretty well in the past few years, and I have about $100,000 cleaned up. I have a good insurance policy, and I have looked out for my mother pretty good; she is the only one I care for in this world, anyhow. I know there are lots of people who are jealous of me, owing to the way I have come up, and I have raised as much rumpus as anybody doing it; but if I go out on the Fourth of July either at Jeffries's hands or in some other way I will be perfectly satisfied with life; but I am not going out. I'm going to win; and I am going to win any way I can.

"I hear a lot of the wonderful condition of this fellow Jeffries and the wonderful things he has done to bring himself to his fine physical condition; but that does not worry me one bit. He is not going to hit me. There has been a lot of people telling me how this big, burly fellow is going to beat my arms in attempting to get to my body, but I am not going to let him do that to me. I am not going to fool around anything like I did yesterday with Kauffman and Cotton. I am going to step around a little, and I am going to make that big fellow miss me. You know he never fought a fight in his life that he didn't miss, and I will tell you that he will miss me, and I am going to let him. I was never more confident of anything in my life, and honest and true, I have not got any fear."

When McCarney told this little story to some friends and old sports here it produced a profound sensation. Every one who knows Johnson knew that he was confident, but expressing himself in just this manner is so reassuring to those who fancy him in the coming contest that a lot of doubt that has existed about him has been dispelled.

Another thing which has added to this reassurance is the possibility of Mike Murphy, the noted athletic trainer, joining the Johnson camp. What good Mike could be in the few days remaining before the fight does not appear to the experts, but the idea of him taking an active part in the last stages of Johnson's preparation adds to the confidence in Johnson which has been lacking in certain quarters. "Mike" would not discuss the matter, but the fact that he has had several long conferences with Tom Flanagan, the physical director of Johnson's camp, seems to portend something of importance. Any little thing like this at the present time that would tend to set Reno all agog for the coming fight is the all-important feature of the city's daily life, as there are only a few who know about Johnson's talk with McCarney and the getting of Murphy for Johnson.

Work on the arena is progressing rapidly, and even to-day there was no let-up, with fully fifty workmen on the job. The lines and stakes are all in place, so that the actual erection is all that is left. It is understood that the arena will be finished before the end of the week at the latest.

Reno is now the busiest spot in the United States of America for its size, with over 300 newspaper correspondents, as many sporting men, and a score of wine agents busy every minute. The town has taken on all the appearance of bonanza days.

Hardly a hotel in the city has a room to rent, and those who are staying in the hostelries have no idea of what they are being charged. New restaurants are springing up all over town, and by to-morrow it is expected that the dining facilities will have been doubled. A syndicate from California has rented all of the available rooms in town and advertise that they have 1,000 on their list. Furnished rooms and lodgings command as much as choice hotel rooms did two weeks ago.

Automobiles also appear in greater profusion than ever before. Scores of cars from all parts of Nevada, San Francisco, and Salt Lake have arrived already, and a good portion of these have been put in the rental service and are used as taxicabs. The regular fare for a trip to Rick be Barnardis, where Johnson is training, and to Moana, where Jeffries is training, is $5. Neither camp will charge the public anything for admission during the rest of the time that they train here.

The most activity is being expended in resurrecting ancient gambling apparatus. In the old days, when Goldfield and Tonopah stock quotations were known by every man, woman, and child, when fortunes were made over night in the fluctuations, there was no more gambling than there is now.

All of the gambling houses, with the exception of the bars, closed over Sunday, and by to-morrow the equipment of most will be doubled. The old constituents of the temples of chance will scarcely know them. At Rick's, for instance, where a nickle-in-the-slot machine was formerly the only gambling device, four roulette wheels, a faro bank, two crap tables, and a Klondike table have been installed. It is expected that a rich harvest will be reaped from the gamblers; enough to pay for a quarterly license in ten days.

The same is true of Moana Springs. Spare rooms in the only café there have been jammed with gambling tables of every description. Five roulette wheels will be run there, two faro banks, and several other games.

The price of everything at these roadhouses has soared wonderfully since the advent of the fighters. Both food and drink have mounted to exorbitant prices. Wine agents have secured cottages, which will be kept open day and night. One company has rented the house that was supposed to be reserved by a rich New York woman, expected here about a month ago. Japanese servants and waiters have been hired, and the corks will pop day and night.

All arrangements for the reception and handling of the crowd have been made, and it is expected that none will have to sleep on billiard and pool tables, as was prophesied. But they will have to pay fancy prices.

BETTING FAVORS JEFFRIES.

Heavy in San Francisco at Odds of 10 to 6.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26.—Betting on the Jeffries-Johnson fight was heavy to-day, with odds remaining at 10 to 6 in favor of Jeffries. A large amount of money poured into the poolrooms, but it was so evenly distributed that the odds were not affected. Local bettors still control the situation, but it is expected that an influx of Eastern money during the next few days may change the odds.

One Run Wins Game for Buffalo.

Billy Smith's Buffaloes finished their mid-season series yesterday in Jersey City against the Skeeters with an even break, beating Jersey City, 1 to 0, in the get-away game. George Merritt duplicated Kissinger's success of the day before with a win against his former team mates. It was Merritt's first trial against his old associates, and he whitewashed them. Manser threw the game away on a base on balls to Corcoran and a wild pitch in the seventh inning, Corcoran getting home on McCabe's infield out with the only tally. The score:

Bronchos Shut Out Newark.

Eddie Lafitte shut out Joe McGinnity's Indians in Newark yesterday in the final game of a series. The score was 4 to 0, and the locals got but two hits, both of them having been garnered by Jack Kelly. The Broncho curvologist had his entire assortment of curves with him yesterday, and was in fine trim, as his opponent, the "Iron Man," found the going too much for him, and retired in the eighth inning, after the run making was over. Joe had worked too hard pitching in all three games of the series, and the visitors quickly solved his offerings. Moeller started the scoring by rapping out a home run in the fourth. In the eighth the "Iron Man" allowed two hits, a sacrifice fly, hit Moeller, and passed Tooley, which netted the three other tallies. The score:

Special Boxing Show at Fairmont.

Thirty rounds of boxing will be served to the members of the Fairmont Athletic Club to-morrow night. Jack Dorman, the best lightweight in the Bronx, will tackle Danny Goodman. This bout may be of short duration. Dorman has been promised another meeting with Jack Goodman, but the match hinges on the result of the bout to-morrow night. He must score a decisive victory or he will be passed up by Goodman. Dorman lost to Jack Goodman by a small margin about two months ago. In another ten-round bout Matt Wells, an English champion in the welterweight class, who has never been beaten in this country, will take on Charley Lawrence of the Bronx. These two bouts and a six-rounder between Young Ahearn and Mike Grady, as well as a four-round bout, will be offered members in good standing at popular prices. The Directors of the club have arranged to obtain the returns of the Johnson-Jeffries battle by special wire on July 4. Two well-known heavyweights will be in the ring to illustrate each blow. There will also be several boxing exhibitions.

SHEPPARD MAKES RECORD ON TRACK

Lowers Mark Made by Harry Hillman in 550-Yard Event at Celtic Park.

Melvin W. Sheppard added another world's record to his list of triumphs yesterday when he covered the 550-yard distance at the Clan-Na-Gael games at Celtic Park in 1:05. The best previous performance was by Harry Hillman, and the mark made by Sheppard clipped four-fifths of a second from the record of the Dartmouth track team coach made in his amateur days.

There were two other athletes on the mark with Sheppard—T. Chesnut and George Schaff, the race being put down on the programme as a special. At the flash of the gun Chesnut went to the fore and set the pace for the first half of the distance. Then Schaff took a turn at the leading position. Not until the last hundred yards did Sheppard show any inclination to go away from his companions, and then he left them as if they were tied. He came down the stretch with a tremendous burst of speed and the record went by the board.

The performance is all the more remarkable in that "Shep" was hindered to some extent by a brisk wind which blew in his face on the back stretch.

The only other noteworthy race was the three-mile run, in which F. Masterson of the Mohawk A. C., from the 110-yard mark, romped in an easy winner. He came to the front as the last two laps were to be completed, and from then on was never seriously threatened.

One of the novelties of the meet was a middleweight all-around championship, and in this Jack Eller carried off the honors. His total of points was 5,109. W. Beekman of the New West Side A. C. was second with 4,769, and B. E. Trerise came third with 4,493½ points. The summary:

1,000-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by H. E. Cloughly, unattached, (42 yards;) R. Buist, Pastime A. C., (22 yards,) second; R. R. Ogg, Mohawk A. C., (18 yards,) third. Time—2:19 2-5.

100-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Won by A. Pinkerton, Loughlin Lyceum, (7 yards;) J. J. Mullooly, M. A. C., (7 yards,) second; D. Ferris, Loughlin Lyceum, (6½ yards,) third. Time—0:10 1-5.

300-Yard Run, Handicap.—Won by R. Fristivi, Pastime A. C., (10 yards;) R. Stevenson, Pastime A. C., (15 yards,) second; G. Schnabel, unattached, (11 yards,) third. Time—0:32 1-5.

Three-Mile Run, Handicap.—Won by F. Masterson, Mohawk A. C., (110 yards;) J. Powers, Irish-American A. C., (150 yards,) second; F. C. Joyce, Mohawk A. C., (150 yards,) third. Time—15:10 2-5.

Throwing the Discus, Handicap.—Won by Martin Sheridan, Irish-American A. C., (scratch,) with an actual distance of 134 feet 11 inches; E. Payne, Mohawk A. C., (15 feet,) second, with an actual throw of 107 feet 3½ inches; J. J. Flanagan, Irish-American A. C., (5 feet,) third, with an actual throw of 116 feet 10 inches.

Throwing 16-Pound Hammer, Handicap.—Won by J. J. Flanagan, Irish-American A. C., (scratch,) with an actual throw of 181 feet 3 inches; S. Gillies, New York A. C., (8 feet,) second, with an actual throw of 163 feet 6½ inches; B. Sherman, third, with an actual throw of 143 feet 9 inches.

550-Yard, Special.—Won by Melvin W. Sheppard, Irish-American A. C.; G. Schaff, Irish-American A. C., second; T. Chesnut, Irish-American A. C., third. Time—1:05.

YACHT WANDER IV. WINS.

R. B. Budd's Craft Victor in New York A. C. Run to Block Island.

BLOCK ISLAND, R. I., June 26.—Wander IV., owned by R. B. Budd, won the 100-mile yacht race of the New York Athletic Club to-day from Whortleberry Island, New York, down Long Island Sound to West Harbor here, finishing with three-quarters of an hour to spare over the next boat, the Interim. Twenty-six yachts competed.

The Elmo II. was the winner of the motor boat race that took place over the same course at the same time.

Light weather was encountered by the yachts on their way down the Sound, but good time was made. With the exception of the Surprise, which broke down and put into Greenport, the motor boats all had successful runs.

WESTWARD WINS AGAIN.

American Yacht Captures Jubilee Prize in Race at Kiel.

KIEL, June 26.—In a stiff breeze to-day the American schooner Westward, owned by Alexander S. Cochran of New York, won the Jubilee prize, defeating Lieut. Krupp von Behlen und Halbach's Germania by one minute and forty-two seconds. Emperor William's American-built Meteor, with the Emperor on board, finished third, only a few lengths behind the Germania.

Hans Lobert's Wrist Broken.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 26.—An X-ray examination and photograph of the injured wrist of third baseman Hans Lobert of the Cincinnati National League team here developed to-day that the large bone had been broken, and as a result Lobert will not be able to play for at least two months, if at all during this season.

KRAMER'S MILE RACE.

NEWARK, June 26.—In a spectacular finish here to-day at the Velodrome bicycle track Frank L. Kramer, the cycle champion, took the one-mile national championship race when it looked as if he would go down to defeat. His nearest competitor was Eddie Root, who gave the champion one of the hardest fights for racing honor in a long time. From the crack of the starter's pistol Root gave evidence that he was after Kramer's scalp. He kept right after the champion, and the latter never gained more than a yard during the entire race.

John Bedell and Peter Drobach made strenuous efforts to overhaul Kramer in the third lap of the race, but the champion smiled and demonstrated that he had the key to the situation, and the spurt of speed that Bedell and Drobach made was more than overshadowed by Kramer's. Root kept right after the champion whenever there was anything doing in the sprinting line.

In the bell lap Root gained a lead of a few feet on the champion, and Bedell pulled up and tried to pass Kramer, but failed in the attempt. Drobach then tried to get the champion's wheel and he, too, failed. The riders were then about one hundred yards from the finish and Root was leading by a few feet. About fifty yards from the tape Kramer made one of his old-time sprints and pulled up even with Root. The champion crossed the tape by the margin of an inch, probably less, but enough to capture the race. Bedell got third place and Drobach fourth. The summaries:

One-Mile Professional National Championship.—Won by Frank L. Kramer of East Orange; Eddie Root of Boston, second; John Bedell of Newark, third; Peter Drobach of Boston, fourth. Time—3:11.

One-Mile Amateur, Handicap.—Won by E. J. Hollister of Springfield, (60 yards;) Werner Beck of Newark, (70 yards,) second; Courtney Peer of Newark, (100 yards,) third. Time—2:03.

Two-Mile Amateur, Handicap.—Won by J. Pettit of Newark, (220 yards;) Werner Beck of Newark, (100 yards,) second; S. Rein of Newark, (220 yards,) third; I. Cone of Newark, (240 yards,) fourth; H. Abbott of Newark, (200 yards,) fifth. Time—4:17 4-5.

Unlimited Australian Pursuit Match Race Between Frank L. Kramer of East Orange and Alfred Gonlette of Australia.—Won by Gonlette. Distance—14 miles 2 laps. Time—34:45 1-5.

Three-Mile Professional, Handicap.—Won by Jumbo Wells of New Zealand, (210 yards;) Edward Rupprecht of Newark, (210 yards,) second; Worthington L. Mitten of Davenport, Iowa, (185 yards,) third; Tommy Smith of Newark, (250 yards,) fourth; Paddy O'Sullivan Hehir of Australia, (35 yards,) fifth. Time—6:03 1-5.

BICYCLE RUN TO RYE BEACH.

Nearly 400 Members of Century Road Club Take Annual Spin of 50 Miles.

The annual bicycle run to Rye Beach under the auspices of the Century Road Club of America was held yesterday and proved to be one of the most successful of the long-established runs of the club. Judging from the number of starters, it may be seen that bicycling as a sport has lost none of its popularity with the members of the Century Road Club, for nearly four hundred of them assembled before 8 o'clock yesterday morning in Columbus Circle.

The cyclists were divided into four divisions of nearly one hundred riders each, the slow riders going away in the first group. In this division were four women, who were the only members to appear to make up what the club had hoped would constitute a female division. The four fair riders went along with the early starters and made the entire trip of fifty miles.

The first division started at 8 o'clock, and the others started at intervals afterward. It was shortly before 11 o'clock when a few members of the fast division arrived at Rye Beach, and soon the whole club had assembled at the rendezvous. After taking dinner at the beach a coasting contest was held, in which there were a dozen entries. The riders coasted down hill on wheels from which the chains had been removed and the competition was very close. A slow race was also held, which furnished no end of amusement.

The club started on the return trip about 4 o'clock and pedaled into Columbus Circle shortly before 6 o'clock. Aside from a few punctures and snapped chains there were no accidents, and all the members finished in good condition.

WORLD'S BICYCLE RECORD.

George Wiley Rides 41 Miles and 3 Laps in One Hour Behind Motor Pace.

Special to The New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., June 26.—George Wiley of Syracuse defeated Elmer Collins, the American pace-following bicycle champion, by two laps in a thrilling one-hour match race at the Clifton Stadium to-day. Wiley rode 41 miles 3 laps, breaking the former world's record behind the small motor cycles, held by Collins, by three laps.

Collins set a new mark for one mile, covering the first six laps in 1:18. He also smashed his own twenty-mile record by 7 seconds, and the thirty-mile record, made by Menus Bedell last year, by 20 seconds.

Wiley took the lead after the thirty-sixth mile, and was 48 seconds ahead of the record at forty miles. He rode the last four and one-half miles in 5 minutes 9 seconds, and lapped Collins twice during this time. Bob Schultz of Newark beat Carl Ruden of Manchester by two yards in a hair-raising three-mile motor cycle match race.

HABITUAL INTEMPERANCE
And What Medical Science Has Done to Provide a Remedy.

It is a recognized principle of medical practice that correct diagnosis must be the basis for all treatment. In fact, it is of the most vital importance that the true nature and extent of the disease be definitely known before treatment is attempted.

Habitual Alcoholism has been the curse of the world for ages. To it much of the sorrow and distress of civilization can be directly traced. In spite of its terrible blight, however, no serious attempt was made to control or eradicate it until comparatively recent years.

It is thoroughly recognized and well understood by the medical profession that Intemperance is a disease of the nervous system, which will respond to proper treatment the same as any other disease of the nerves. The trouble has been that the country has been flooded with advertisements of pocket nostrums purporting to cure drunkenness, until the public has been almost educated to believe that there is no merit in any treatment for Intemperance.

It was Dr. Isaac Oppenheimer who first gave to the medical profession the proper system for diagnosing the disease of Alcoholism, determining definitely its pathological status among the diseases which affect mankind. This system of diagnosing represents many years of labor on the part of Dr. Oppenheimer. Definite diagnosis being assured, the remedy could be effectively applied.

The Oppenheimer system of Treatment is soothing, convenient and not expensive. It involves no publicity, no detention from business and no unpleasant or objectionable features of any kind.

If you find that your drinking habit is growing on you, that it is interfering with your business, that it is your duty to yourself and your family to take steps to overcome the abnormal craving for liquor.

PLANNING THRILLS FOR AIRSHIP MEET

Tilting at a Captive Balloon Is One of Those Proposed for October Next.

BOMB CASTING CONTEST

An Endurance Competition, Slow-Speed Trials, and Several Other Novelties Are Under Consideration.

The programme for the international aviation meet to be held under the auspices of the Aero Club of America at Garden City for the two weeks beginning Oct. 22 will be the most varied ever presented anywhere, so Gage E. Tarbell, general manager of the meet, said yesterday. The idea of the Plan and Scope Committee of the Aero Club, of which Mr. Tarbell is Chairman, is to include in the list of events the most searching tests of heavier-than-air machines that it is possible to arrange.

In the very nature of things, however, the committee and the general manager are working somewhat in the dark, for with the exception of the international meeting at Rheims last Summer—when the only competitions on the programme were those of speed at various distances—there is no standard or fixed guide by which the selection and arrangements of events can be governed. So new is the aeroplane and yet so rapid its development that a complex problem was presented in arranging a thorough, safe, and spectacular schedule.

Included among the events, Mr. Tarbell said yesterday, there will be every kind of competition hitherto utilized in aviation meets anywhere; there will also be a number of new contests. A series of exhibition stunts, some of them more or less familiar and others on which the curtain will be rung up for the first time, will serve to fill in the gaps between actual competitions.

With the exception of one day to be entirely devoted to running off the contest for the James Gordon Bennett Trophy, emblematic of the world's speed championship, and another which will probably be utilized for a sunrise to sunset endurance contest, the remaining sessions of the meet will be filled with slow-speed races, a line of development believed to be highly essential to the progress of the art of aviation; flights for height records; tilting at captive balloons from the decks of passenger-carrying aeroplanes; several aeroplanes trying to scrape over one captive balloon set in the centre of the field at the end of a 400-foot rope, with victory going to the machine that first just touches the top of the air-bag; dropping bombs (small sand bags) from varying altitudes for accuracy prizes; aerial quadrilles, weight-lifting competitions, and a host of other such contests.

An Aerial Gymkhana.

"An aerial gymkhana," is the term Mr. Tarbell employed to describe the scope of the proposed programme.

The conditions of the James Gordon Bennett Cup race, won for the first time by Glenn H. Curtiss, call for twenty circuits of a five kilometer course a total of 100 kilometers, equivalent to 62.137 miles. The track to be laid out, therefore, will be slightly more than three miles in length, its boundaries being marked by uprights fifteen or twenty feet high, from which flags of brilliant colors will be flown. The turns will be watched by patrol judges to see that contestants do not cut corners.

This race is not run with all of the entrants in the air at the same time. The fastest circuit of the 100 kilometers determines the winner. As the competition was conducted at Rheims last Summer, every contestant has three trials, his fastest being entered for record.

With the exception of this race and possibly one or two more of shorter duration, competitors will leave the ground together on the firing of a pistol and circle the track at the same time. This condition will be notably applicable, of course, to the endurance contest, which will be held, if possible, on either the first Saturday or the Sunday of the meet. These conditions should develop some thrilling spectacles as well as dangerous attempts for the fliers, for the consensus of opinion among aeronauts is that the wash of a fast-flying aeroplane is far more hazardous than a sudden gust of wind not created by a rapidly revolving propeller.

In the endurance contest, as many descents as the competitors desire will be permitted, and any repairs that become necessary will be allowed. Fuel, lubricants, and water may be taken aboard whenever the contestants wish to do so. The greatest number of laps made in the hours during which the race is held will determine the winner. There will be second and third prizes based on a similar accounting. As nearly as possible the conditions of this race will be such as govern a twenty-four hour endurance contest among automobiles.

"Slow Contests" to Show Weaknesses.

The slow-speed races will undoubtedly exert a tremendous influence on the future of heavier-than-air machine flying. Just as long-distance races and endurance contests are bound to develop reliability and strength of motors, so will slow-speed races bring about an improvement in the platforms on which these power plants are carried.

It was pointed out at a luncheon held recently by men interested in aeronautics that in the last five years there had been hardly any improvement in the surfaces, elevating plane, or rudder and tail planes of heavier-than-air machines. These remain in almost the same stage of development as when first the Wrights gave their invention to the world. Almost every modern aeroplane, particularly those of biplane construction, it was remarked, had a common curvature of the main surfaces and the same relative fore-and-aft and lateral dimensions.

"But beyond changing the size of the ailerons, the adoption of one-surface or two-surface rear controls, and the expanse of surface in the elevating plane or deflector," it was said, "how little difference there is among the aeroplanes that are now being turned out. True, the Wrights warp their wings and do not employ ailerons, but how much have the Wright biplanes of to-day changed from what they were in 1905 or 1906? And Curtiss, Voisin, Farman, and all the rest are building their engine platforms and lifting surfaces along almost identical lines, with rapt attention paid to the motors and almost none at all to the bird part of their machines."

Working on this principle and believing it to be practically correct, Mr. Tarbell has arranged for slow-speed contests. Although the stability of an aeroplane is dependent upon the speed with which it is forced through the air or upon the speed with which the wind travels past it, in the case of head-winds, little attention has been paid to finding out how slowly a biplane or monoplane may safely glide along the air lanes.

It requires a speed of thirty or thirty-two miles in still air, for instance, for a Wright biplane to retain its force and air balance, while the Curtiss machine, with a much smaller expanse of lifting surface, is compelled to travel proportionately faster or topple over backward. The same thing applies to the Farman, Voisin, Sommer, Bleriot, Antoinette, and other aeroplanes of the present day. The changes necessary to permit slow speed must come in the way of improvements in the lifting surfaces, and so a series of slow speed contests will be arranged, designed to emphasize this at present neglected phase of heavier-than-air machine travel.

Altitude Flights.

With three methods at hand for determining the altitude to which an aeroplane may rise, it has been practically determined to employ all three, but to base records on the triangulation method. For this purpose two civil engineer's transits are used, one being placed at each end of a base line, say 2,000 feet long. Operators at each transit simultaneously train their instruments on the aviator and at a given signal note down the vertical and horizontal angles, that is the angle between the aeroplane and the ground and the angle between the base line and a point directly under the aeroplane. The transits are so constructed that these measurements can be obtained in one operation.

The results of the observations are telephoned to the operator in chief, who, by means of a specially constructed chart, determines immediately the exact altitude. The chart or diagram used in this process, called a three-dimensional chart, is a recent invention and greatly facilitates the otherwise tedious computations.

The tilting at captive balloons should provide some real hair-raising thrills. With the aeroplane itself, never too stable and secure for the operator alone, the passenger seat on the lower surface of a biplane is a mighty treacherous and unsteady perch. Conceiving the machine to be traveling at a rate of forty or more miles an hour at a height of perhaps 500 feet, it will require no end of skill for the operator to pilot his machine close enough to the swaying gas bag for his passenger to tilt at it with a bamboo pole. And it will keep the tilter very busy preserving his balance and not interfering with the stability of the machine at the same time that he reaches out with his pole.

Danger in Tilting Plan.

The idea of sending a number of aeroplanes aloft at the same time and having them all try to scrape the top of a captive balloon 400 feet in the air originated in Wilbur Wright's brain. He proposed this as a part of the programme for the recent Indianapolis meet. He did not receive much encouragement, however, and so did not press his "circus plan," as he called it. The picture of four or five swiftly flying biplanes manoeuvring in a very restricted area—in which their "wash" may cause endless trouble and perhaps fatality—all trying to be the first to touch the balloon's top, is one that in the mere imagining brings out a tremor. If Mr. Tarbell actually sticks to his present plan of employing Wilbur Wright's suggestion, there may be a few bad moments at the international meet for some of the most skilled sky pilots.

It has long been the contention of aeroplane builders that their machines would prove tremendously useful in warfare, both for the purpose of photographing and scouting along the enemy's lines and far in advance of their own forces, and for the purpose of dropping bombs on fortified and intrenched positions. With good-sized squares whitewashed upon the grass, aeronauts at the international meet will have an opportunity to try their skill in dropping sand-bag bombs on these areas. They will also carry passengers aloft and have them do the bomb-casting. The squares will diminish in size, and the competition will be an eliminating one, the victor being he who first gets his bomb squarely on the smallest marked-out surface, after working through the larger squares down.

To Carry Passengers.

In addition to carrying passengers aloft, the aviators will be asked to try their machines' capacity by adding sand bags to the passenger's weight, until every machine has been thoroughly tested in this regard. Some of the machines will undoubtedly take up more than one passenger at a time, and their weights will go far to determine the winner in this competition.

Although, as has been said, a definite programme has not yet been arranged, Mr. Tarbell is collecting the suggestions that are pouring into his office, and will go over them with practical aviators before placing any of the proposed contests on the schedule of the international meet. But he said yesterday: "There isn't much doubt that we'll give the crowd something to look forward to and to remember."

Dorello Wins Corinthian Race.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., June 26.—Last to start yesterday afternoon, the thirty-eight-foot sloop Dorello, owned by George L. Batchelder of Boston, was the first to finish to-day of the nineteen yachts participating in the annual ocean race of the Corinthian Yacht Club. The race this year was from Marblehead to Cape Elizabeth Lightship, off Portland, Me., and return, a distance of 145 miles. The Dorello, averaging better than six miles an hour, finished the race in 23 hours 18 minutes 6 seconds. She had more than an hour leeway over the schooner Verona, owned by E. J. Bliss, the second boat to finish. These yachts were winners in their respective classes.

NEW SNAKE KILLERS TESTED AT THE ZOO

Secretary Birds from South Africa Make Short Work of the Biggest Reptiles.

THEY DON'T EAT 'EM ALIVE

A Quick Dash, a Foot on the Crawler's Neck, a Sharp Peck or Two, and Breakfast Is Ready.

Two official snake killers, who have been added to the collection at the Bronx Zoological Garden, gave an exhibition yesterday of how serpents can be slain with neatness and dispatch. The snake killers are known to ornithologists as secretary birds. They hail from South Africa. These two got here on Saturday. They are the first ever acquired by the Zoo management.

The Zoo keepers had read a lot about the way in which the secretary birds kill snakes, but they had never seen the birds in action. Keeper Riley of the monkey house was a little skeptical about their exploits.

"Well," Keeper Charlie Snyder told him, "there are several no-account snakes lying around loose in the storeroom back of the reptile house. Let's give the secretaries a chance to show us."

They did. Snyder gathered up a small bundle of snakes, put them in a bag, and a call was made on the newcomers.

Snyder opened the bag and pulled out a three-foot water snake. The momenet it touched the floor the snake darted toward the closed window, and both secretary birds made a dash for the snake. The male reached the reptile first. Down came the foot of the secretary bird on the snake's back just behind the head, and in an instant about two feet of tail was twisting around the bird's legs. There was a savage peck or two, and little was left of the water snake's head.

The tail slowly unwound itself, and both the male and female began to make a meal of the dead reptile.

"That's about the quickest work I ever saw," said Snyder, and Riley admitted that his doubts had been removed.

When the birds had finished their meal another snake was released, and the performance was about the same. Two more reptiles met with the same fate, and then the secretary birds had eaten their fill.

After their probationary period of quarantine is over they will be put on exhibition in the ostrich house. They will have a runway alongside the ostrich corral, so that they can get all the air they want in Summer. The birds have very long legs and necks. At the base of each of their skulls is a long tuft of feathers, which gives them the appearance of having a quill pen stuck at the sides of their heads.

With them in the same shipment from South Africa came a pair of hyrax, a small animal somewhat resembling a woodchuck. The hyrax, says Director Hornaday, is really the coney referred to so often in the Scriptures. It is carnivorous. Both specimens arrived in excellent condition, and will be placed on exhibition soon.

In the collection were also an African porcupine, two zorillas, small, skunklike animals, with white stripes along their sides; a springhaas, which is described by Col. Roosevelt in his last story in Scribner's as looking like a big jackrabbit, except for its long tail, and two small monkeys, one a Diana, the other known as a velvet monkey. These last are very susceptible to cold, and will be hard to keep here.

Wind Prevents Mineola Flights.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., June 26.—Several thousand spectators came from Manhattan, Brooklyn, and many other places this afternoon to witness aeroplane flights on the Hempstead Plains. A heavy wind made it impossible for the aeroplanes to go up.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION. | THE MARKETS OF EUROPE.

Securities markets were submitted last week to the test of a "crop scare," the first of the season as regards wheat, and came off, upon the whole, with much success. It must be added, too, that while exaggerated the reports from the three great Spring wheat States had a rather uncomfortable percentage of fact for their basis and were supported by striking advances in wheat prices on all grain markets. For a number of weeks the two Dakotas and Minnesota, where the bulk of our Spring wheat is grown, have been without adequate rainfall. The situation has not been so bad in Minnesota as in its neighboring States, but in all three wheat had been forced forward rapidly by the moist, cool Spring, and was, therefore, particularly susceptible to the dry, hot weather which came upon it and has endured so long. On Wednesday, following two days of a sustained rise in wheat and an irregular stock market, scattering rains were reported over the Spring wheat country, and the relief felt by the financial community and by the grain trade was reflected in the strongest movement of securities witnessed in a long time and corresponding recessions on the produce markets. On Thursday reports from the fields were somewhat less cheerful, and in consequence securities markets returned to a more sober mood, while the grain markets quickly responded with further advances in wheat. "Crop scares" are annual features of June and July markets, and it is not necessary, therefore, to place too much emphasis upon the present somewhat unsatisfactory situation in the Northwest. It must be watched, of course, but it is well to remember that Nature has a way of her own in adjusting these matters, and the position of those dependent upon her benevolence is exactly that described by the late Mark Twain when he said that he heard a great deal of complaint about the weather, but no one seemed to do anything about it. If the present scare passes, as have so many of its predecessors, without serious effects it will have at least served to emphasize the veering of sentiment in the financial community toward a moderate state of cheerfulness. In varying degrees the responsibility for this may be placed upon the liquidated position of the securities markets; the near-by adjournment of Congress; the evidence of ease, at least in Eastern money centres and to a striking degree in London, to which we may look for gold later in the year in case of need; the signs, necessarily contemporaneous with easy money markets, of a liquefying of the general business situation, most obvious in the slowing down of the steel and iron, cotton, woolen, and other great trades, and, finally, to the abatement of anxiety over the effects upon the railroads of the bill which has now become law, and the simultaneous evidence that in connection with its appearance upon the statute books opportunity has been offered and accepted for the substitution of friendly for the hostile relations long existing between railroads and shippers.

When the railroads and the great packing house interests of the Middle West, which control, it must be remembered, an enormous miscellaneous traffic and are influential figures in a hundred business enterprises in that part of the country, reached a compromise last week upon the proposed advances upon packing house products a basis was undoubtedly obtained for agreement between the railroads and other shippers. It seems fair to assume that following this precedent adjustments will be made and new and uncontested tariffs filed with the commission and promptly accepted. If this proves to be the case it is hardly possible that the railroads will overlook the lesson it contains for the future. Hereafter when they feel the need of increased revenues conferences with shippers will probably be sought and an amicable basis found for advances so that the provision of the new Railroad bill, allowing the Inter-State Commerce Commission ten months within which to investigate new schedules, which was so hotly opposed, will be found to be without practical effect. The commission will hardly refuse an advance which the shippers have accepted and where an agreement between these two interests has been impossible the roads themselves will hesitate to go before the commission without convincing arguments to support the advances they ask. Under the circumstances the new law supplemented by the new and better relations which it is making for between the buyer and seller of transportation may prove an undisguised blessing to the railroads and all those interested in their welfare. Such an outcome to legislation at first bitterly assailed is not without precedent; it was especially true of the Hepburn law, the workings of which have been so satisfactory that it would be difficult indeed to find to-day a railroad executive willing to return to the old era of wholesale rebating and its attendant evils. Another development of the week affecting the railroad world while of less spectacular form than the agreement between shippers and the roads is nevertheless of genuine importance. Reference is made to the traffic agreement concluded between the Southern Pacific and the St. Louis & San Francisco roads. By this, without the construction of a single mile of new road, two great Western systems have secured additional mileage, connections, traffic, and terminals which would have involved the expenditure of not less than $75,000,000 if they had been secured by means of entirely new lines. The present arrangement is simplicity itself. The Southern Pacific secures the use of the 'Frisco tracks from its Texas terminal to Kansas City, while the 'Frisco for its part gets a right of way over the Southern Pacific's Texas line to Galveston, where it makes connection again with its Brownsville line, isolated since the rupture of the Rock Island relations. All these advantages are secured without involving a dollar of new financing, and the fact should be like a beacon light to those railroad executives who have been storming the money markets for capital to accomplish results identical with those obtained under this agreement.

Local money markets continue to display marked ease in respect to day-to-day money and firmness in the longer maturities, disclosing in this way the indisposition of bankers to speculate upon the Autumn money markets and betraying, by inference, at least, a suspicion on their part that conditions later on may become rather stringent. Evidence to the same effect is found in the commercial paper market where unusually high rates are demanded and received for the best notes, while brokers handling such paper find it almost impossible to place a great mass of offerings with the banks around such an attractive figure as 5½ per cent. or slightly more. The West is still the point of interest in the banking world. Deposits in the banks of the larger Western cities are down to Fall levels, a fact which seems to foreshadow an unusually heavy call upon Eastern points when the crop moving season sets in. As a result of the anxiety of the past week in the Northwest over the Spring wheat outlook there is said to have been a very considerable movement among the banks to curtail the extension of credits and even to insist upon the liquidation of loans already made in connection with the long continued land boom. This is promising, of course, but must become more general before it can carry any assurance of a lessening of the strain which threatens the Eastern banks this Fall. So sharply pronounced did the ease in the London money market become that predictions of a further reduction in the Bank of England's discount rate were made before the meeting of the bank's Directors on Thursday, but no cut was made, although the return was again of an exceptionally favorable character. A very sharp break in the foreign exchange market, coupled with the strong position of London, encourages the belief that gold may readily be obtained from the English capital later on if the position of our own money markets requires it.

LONDON FEELS ENCOURAGED.

Thinks Unfavorable Influences on American Securities Have Spent Their Force.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 26.—The continued accumulation of gold at the Bank of England has made the situation stronger than ever and there seems to be every reason to look for a superabundance of money in July with the possibility of a reduction in the bank rate to 2½ per cent. Discount rates have been weak, but the money market must remain tight until the end of the current month.

On the Stock Exchange there has been a complete change of feeling. Instead of the discouragement so prevalent a week ago, there now prevails a great confidence in the immediate future. Regarding American securities, especially railroads, it is felt that unfavorable influences have spent their force and a general improvement is looked for.

BERLIN PRICES DECLINING.

Operators See No Ground for Expecting an Early Rise.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, June 26.—Dullness and declining prices were the features of the market last week. The approach of the quarterly settlement caused a general realization movement and many holdings changed hands at lower prices.

Discussion of the general trade situation led operators to conclude that there was nothing in sight to justify expectation of an early upward movement. Canadians fell again on strike rumors. The Imperial Bank's report makes a favorable showing, but is discounted by the knowledge that the cash reserve is destined to be depleted by Autumn money needs.

PARIS PRICES IRREGULAR.

Spanish Situation Partly Responsible —Wall Street More So.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 26.—Though prices show a slight advance the general tone on the Paris Bourse through the week past has been hesitating and irregular. The approaching settlement and the Spanish situation are held partly accountable, the latter because a rupture between the Vatican and the Government of a country like Spain would, it is thought, entail consequences of far-reaching political and economic import.

Wall Street, however, has been the most important factor influencing the Bourse, and American prices have been followed with the keenest attention. The Journal des Debats states that even a couple of months ago Paris was insensible to such an influence.

STEEL'S SUMMER DULLNESS NOW ON

Trade Is Finding Out How It Stands as to Production.

STRUCTURAL LINES BUSY

Railroads Taking More Bridge Material Than Anticipated—June Lettings Double May's.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, June 26.—The effects of the usual midsummer lull already are felt in the steel trade. Shipments of crude steel have fallen almost to the zero mark, with preparations by the finished product plants to shut down for the usual July stock taking and repairs. The lull has brought to the attention of the trade as well the fact that engagements of crude steel for third quarter are away below what was anticipated.

Many consumers of the semi-finished product confess that they are holding off on third quarter contracting, waiting for some concessions in crude steel prices, as a result of the continued decline in pig iron. Thus far the prices in effect at the opening of the second quarter are pretty well held for third quarter and last half contracts. Price recessions in crude steel, in an informal way, may be expected between now and the middle of the third quarter. There will be a radical curtailment in crude steel output during July.

Though the plate and shape interests have been raising the cry of bad business as an excuse for price cutting for more than sixty days, the facts seem to be that they are comfortably filled until well into September, with the exception of a few small independent interests. The latter have been making the noise and doing most of the price cutting. June's structural lettings, not including the Panama Canal contract with its 58,000 tons of steel material, were almost double those of May. The railroads have taken more bridge material than was anticipated.

Specifications went to the structural interests at the close of last week on 18,000 tons of the 30,000 tons of bridge work to be used on the Western Maryland extension to Connellsville, Penn. Nearly all of this work must be fabricated yet this year. Riveted pipe contracts now before the trade will call for 25,000 tons of heavy steel plates. Shipments for dock work at Baltimore and on the great lakes will absorb large quantities of plates, which are now under engagement at Pittsburg mills. Although less of this large work is closed than is usually the case at this time of the year, the situation would seem to offer little excuse for extended price cutting. The last half of the third quarter is expected to bring with it a buying movement heavier than the one that gave the industry its momentum last Fall.

Tin plate and merchant steel plants promise to make a record midsummer output. Sheet mills and wire plants are not so well off, and considerable curtailment of output is already being planned. The pipe interests already have curtailed. The National Tube Company last week closed down its Riverside plant at Wheeling, West Va., for two months, with both its blast furnaces at that point.

Pig iron at the low levels established a week ago is proving an attraction to consumers. No. 2 foundry iron at the basis of $14.35 to $14.50, valleys; basic at $14.75, and Bessemer at $15.50 to $15.75 are in demand for forward deliveries. Merchant furnaces that have not their own ore supplies, however, cannot touch this new business except at a loss. One valleys interest which two months ago contracted to supply 3,500 tons of Bessemer a month to a neighboring interest, the contract based on the monthly average price of pig iron, has asked to be released from its contract temporarily.

It is regarded as practically certain that the few merchant interests in the valleys which are able to make a profit on pig iron at the present prices will not be able to supply the demand for the latter half of the third quarter. Inquiries in the market at the close of the week included the Oliver plow interests, which want 18,000 tons of Bessemer and basic for delivery over third quarter at South Bend, Ind.; an Ohio Valley steel interest, which is inquiring for 15,000 tons of basic, last half delivery, and a Pittsburg consumer, who wants 10,000 tons of basic. In foundry iron, the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company, which established a new low point of $14.35, valleys, for No. 2 foundry for the last third quarter delivery on contract for 14,000 tons of foundry grades a week ago, is in the market for 12,000 tons more for the fourth quarter. Sales of foundry iron during the week totaled 8,000 tons for prompt and near-by deliveries, all on the basis of $14.35 to $14.50, furnace. Coke producers in the Connellsville region continue to operate at a rate of 400,000 tons a week or a little better. The total production for last week was 404,000 tons, against 401,000 tons the week preceding, this in the face of a demand that is fully 50,000 tons a week under production.

BOSTON COPPER GOSSIP.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 26.—The combined output of the Calumet & Arizona and Superior & Pittsburg in May was 2,472 tons blister copper.

Arizona Commercial's drift 610 has encountered ore 3 to 5 per cent. copper. This is on the Black Hawk's 600-foot level.

The west winze from Superior & Boston's fourth level continues in 8 per cent. copper ore at a depth of 125 feet.

"We are not getting any copper, but the rock is a very promising, healthy-looking amygdaloid," reports Treasurer Graves of Victoria concerning the new shaft of that company, now 270 feet deep. The mine in general, he says, has been much better the last two months.

Wyandotte management is busy drilling and cross-cutting in the expectation of striking one or all of four lodes on its property.

A shaft is to be sunk on the New Arcadian property, as the result of diamond drill discoveries.

Good ground is reported on the 14th level of the Hancock mine.

The shaft at Algomah, though only 15 feet down, is in rich ground, growing richer with depth.

Mass Consolidated resumed sinking in Shaft C this week, developments in the drifts indicating that favorable results may be obtained.

A new shaft was also started this week on the New Baltic property.

Another shaft is expected to be sunk by Giroux on the Richard Ely ground.

Five steam shovels and seven churn drills are at work in the Copper Flat pit of Nevada Consolidated, removing overburden.

Steam shovels are about to begin shipping ore at Chino. Mill construction has already begun.

The high-grade ore in Mexico Consolidated is nearly all exhausted, there being but 17,000 tons remaining, enough to keep the mill going, however, with a percentage of custom ore for about a year. After that period, working on low-grade and custom ore, a net profit of $100,000 per year should be realized. These estimates are based on a report made by Mining Engineer Rogers of New York, who examined the mine several months ago.

COBALT CENTRAL TO BE INVESTIGATED

False Dividends, Stock Juggling, and Office Boy Directors Charged Against Company.

MANY OTHERS INVOLVED

Stock of Subsidiaries Used to Pay Dividends Is Charged in Complaint to the U. S. Circuit Court.

Following the already long list of over-promoted mining companies whose stock and bond holders have become suspicious of those most directly concerned in the management, the Cobalt Central Mines Company and its subsidiary corporations will receive an overhauling. Stock jobbing, office-boy Directors, and the payment of false dividends are mentioned in the complaint of Hector M. Hitchings, filed in the United States Circuit Court.

The stock of the company, amounting to $5,000,000 in dollar shares, was floated on the curb market, and later a $1,000,000 corporation was formed, owning only a lease on the Cobalt property, whose shares, with many rosy promises, also went out on the dollar basis.

In his 15,000-word complaint Mr. Hitchings charges that stock in a subsidiary company was sold merely to pay dividends on the stock of the parent concern, and that as a consequence 8,000 stockholders have been defrauded out of not less than $2,000,000.

An accounting is asked from the officers, the Cobalt Central Mines Company, and the Standard Cobalt Mines, Limited, of Canada. All stockholders have been invited to join Mr. Hitchings in his demand, and to share the cost of prosecuting it. It is hoped to oust the present officers from control of the company and to institute "such proceedings, civil or criminal," as the stockholders may desire.

The law firm of Hitchings & Pallister of 100 William Street has charge of the case for the complainant, and it expects to receive the indorsement of a large majority of the stockholders.

The property involved, according to the lawyers' claims, is located in the Cobalt mining district of Canada, consisting of 777 acres of mineral lands, held by the Standard Cobalt Mines, Limited, and the Wright Silver Mining Company, both of Canada. The Cobalt Central Mines Company of Maine was organized as a holding concern for the parent companies, and its $5,000,000 in shares were widely sold in this market. The last curb quotation on them was 9½ cents per share.

There have been three dividends on the Cobalt Central stock, one of 2 per cent., on Feb. 1, last year; 1 per cent., May 15, and 1 per cent., Aug. 15. The officers are Thomas A. Nevins, President, 37 Wall Street; Thomas J. Maloney, Vice President and Treasurer, of Orange, and E. F. Eldredge, Secretary and Assistant Treasurer, 37 Wall Street.

Eldredge is declared in the complaint to have been the office boy who had millions to spend on transactions in high finance. A minor clerk in Nevins's office, he bought, it is alleged, a mining company from men named Farah and Murphy, in December, 1906. That was the beginning of a series of transactions culminating in the demand for an accounting.

Eldredge sold the company a few days later to his employer, Nevins, who capitalized it for $5,000,000, and "succeeded in selling most of the stock." The price paid to the two men from whom the property was bought was not more than $105,000, the complaint avers, while on information and belief Hitchings places the price at $85,000. The $5,000,000 corporation was the Cobalt Central.

Immediately afterward the Standard Cobalt Mines, Limited, came into existence with a capitalization of $2,000,000, "fully paid." Of this sum, it is alleged, $1,600,000 was paid in stock to Eldredge, who transferred it to Nevins.

The Argentum Company at 37 Wall Street came into existence as the next step. It was a $1,000,000 flotation, solely the enterprise of Nevins and his associates. All it owned was a lease on some of the Standard Cobalt property, but its dollar shares were absorbed readily on the Curb. The proceeds, it is alleged, were used to pay dividends on Cobalt Central stock.

The litigation had its origin last April in the Supreme Court, when Mr. Hitchings demanded an accounting. Nevins retained Samuel Untermyer, who entered a general denial and obtained an order removing the case to the United States Circuit Court.

The matter has been brought also to the attention of the courts in Canada, where the Standard Cobalt Mines Company has been forced into liquidation.

MARSHALS APPEAL TO COURT.

Ask Municipal Justices to Bar Fake Process Servers.

The Marshals' Association of the City of New York has asked the Board of Municipal Court Justices to aid it in its fight against the unauthorized persons who assume the duties and rights of Marshals. Eugene Odell, President, and S. L. Poyser, Secretary, of the association have written to the Justices, asking them to grant the Marshals a hearing on their grievances.

The matter has already been brought before the Municipal Court Justices. Last January the Marshals asked the Justices to refuse to issue to persons not qualified the processes of the court, to recognize the Marshals as officers of the court, and to give them desk room in the Municipal Court buildings. It was suggested at the time that the Justices could help oust the intruders materially by refusing to sign for them precepts for summary proceedings.

WHO KNOWS PACES FAST.

Hackett's Horse Defeats Coast Marie in Speedway Brushes.

In the second of a series of brushes yesterday on the Speedway Christopher Hackett's Who Knows, 2:11¾, defeated James A. Murphy's Coast Marie, 2:11¼. The pair met in two close brushes on the previous Sunday, each winning one heat, but yesterday's result left little doubt as to the superior speed of Who Knows. In both heats, after passing the quarter, Coast Marie was urged, but was unable to catch the fast-traveling Murphy mare.

The sport opened with a brush between William O'Neill's Lady Tasteful and the Yonkers trotter Dandy Oakland, driven by George Gerringer, with the former winning by a good margin. Lady Tasteful was started against John Morris's pacer Fitzgerald, winning twice by close margins. Trixie, driven by Gus Osborne, and Dick Williams, with John Shoemaker in the wagon, raced two heats, the first being won by Trixie, the second being a dead heat. Instead of racing a third heat Mr. Shoemaker agreed to engage in a three-heat contest next Sunday.

Although the two Speedway Cup winners in the pacing division, Louisa E. and B. Ontime, were out, they did not clash. Louise E. captured two brushes from Arthur Mullady's The Aristocrat, but the latter won a three-cornered contest with James Holloway's Fandango and Charles Urbin's Dandy C. O. Trixie H. easily disposed of Toby Axtell, driven by William Stoeltzing, but when started against E. Benson's fast trotter Elliot B., 2:17¼, he was left far behind, even the Speedway veteran pacer Americus being unable to head off Elliot B. in a fast brush. The last-named horse was driven by Trainer Rue Clark, who will race him during the Summer season at the fair grounds.

Miss Katherine Korpf of Yonkers arrived early on the drive with her favorite horse Dockwood, while her fifteen-year-old brother William drove Dickie. They engaged in several interesting brushes, all of which were won by William Korpf, who trailed to near the finish and then pushed to the front. In two brushes Trainer Gerringer joined apparently with the purpose of helping Miss Korpf, but their combined effort did not break the boy's run of victories.

A number of horses have been shipped to Parkway track, Brooklyn, to be prepared for the opening of the New York-Parkway Clubs' matinée Saturday. New York will be represented in these matinées by the speediest horses raced on the Speedway this season.

The match will take place in December in Australia.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

The last week has made a radical change in the wheat situation. The weather has been extremely unsatisfactory in the Northwest, temperatures have been excessive, and the weather very dry, following an extended period of dry weather. The reports which have been received have been of a sensational character regarding the amount of damage done. On the first of June the promise of the Northwest crop was an average one on the increased acreage. The weather the first two weeks was very trying, but not distinctly unfavorable. The precipitation in the Northwest, including the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, and Nebraska, has since March 1 been from 25 to 75 per cent. short of normal.

The conditions early were very favorable. Seeding was done under the most advantageous condition as to the soil, and the season was a long one, so that there was ample time for great care in the seeding. All reports agreed upon this. The crop germinated well and developed fairly satisfactory, although subject to several frosts during April and May. The rainfall since seeding time has been very scattered and very limited. The conditions were undoubtedly such as to promote a deep root growth, but there is a certain limit beyond which there is a rapid deterioration. From all reports received it is evident that there has been injury. The most conservative authorities have admitted that the condition was very critical, and generous rains at an early date were needed to prevent serious damage. Reports sent out by speculative interests were sensational to a degree, and the market has been violently excited and extremely irregular over the conflicting reports. Fluctuations have been from 2c to 4c a day, and one day the Minneapolis market advanced 6c.

The indications on the Government report June 1 were for a crop of between 250,000,000 and 260,000,000 bushels for the three States. There have been claims that the deterioration so far amounts to fully 25 per cent. in the three States, which would bring the crop promise down under 200,000,000 bushels. A few sensational estimates have been made as low as 150,000,000 bushels. Such estimates are undoubtedly based on the theory that there will be no more rain, and the most disastrous results will be seen.

The effects of rain are most surprising on the wheat plant. It will be remembered that this Spring the Kansas and the Southwestern crop was theoretically ruined on account of dry weather, so dry that the ground was cracked open and the situation was most serious, yet there came good rains, and the crop seems to promise a fair result. A few years ago there was a two months' drought in the Winter wheat belt, lasting up to the end of May, and yet the yield per acre was the largest on record that season. A few years ago the Kansas crop was estimated by experts at only 30,000,000 to 35,000,000 bushels on account of the drought, and the crop turned out nearly 70,000,000 bushels. With such history it is difficult to credit the extreme damage claims.

Weather conditions across the border in Canada have been very favorable. The weather conditions in the Winter wheat belt for the maturing and cutting of the crop have also been very favorable. Harvest is making rapid progress northward, and new wheat is being secured under favorable conditions.

Foreign markets have been influenced by the American excitement to some extent, but have shown no special gain, and the disparity between Europe and America has not been narrowed during the week but rather increased. There is no export business in new hard Winter wheat, while American Spring prices, taking Minnesota and Winnipeg as a basis, are from 10 to 13 cents above the Canadian level for the same grade, precluding the possibility of any export business. Weather conditions have been reported much improved in the Argentine, in Russia, and in India. The weather conditions in Europe have continued fairly favorable. There is, therefore, but little to stimulate foreign interest in the American markets from their standpoint, as the improvement in the weather in Argentine and Russia and the good weather in Europe could easily make up for the damage in America. The American damage is apparently at the outside in sections raising 250,000,000 bushels, while the favorable conditions abroad are in sections raising over 2,000,000,000 bushels.

The corn and oats markets have been excited and strong, particularly oats, on account of the weather conditions in the Northwest. The rise in corn has been largely of a sympathetic character, although the weather has been dry in Iowa and Nebraska, but the conditions as a whole have been very favorable for the rapid growth of the crop and cultivation, so that the backwardness of the crop is being rapidly overcome, and the crop is being put in fine shape. These conditions possibly offset the influence of the dry weather in the Upper Missouri Valley. Oats have been, however, subject to much more trying conditions. The great deficiency in rainfall this Spring in the sections where the hot weather has been recently seen are in the States of large production. Oats are very sensitive at a certain period of growth to dry, hot weather, and there is a possibility of quite serious deterioration. The crop of Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin, and the Northwest is a very important one. On the basis of the last Government report these six States had a promise of about 600,000,000 bushels, or more than 50 per cent. of the entire crop. This will show how seriously important the weather conditions are over this vast area.

The provision market has been a very narrow affair, and without much feature. Fluctuations have been somewhat irregular, and there has been a little disposition to sell the market on predictions of an increased movement of live hogs. The packing operations for the last week were in excess of last year for the first time in months, and the average weight of hogs was about 10 per cent. over a year ago.

COTTON.

The cotton market continues to mark time and drift. There is no speculation in the old crop deliveries excepting a little room trading and an occasional transaction for outside account. The situation in these deliveries has been recognized as tied up so completely that no one cares to interfere with the big fight and transactions are very limited. The bull interest is steadily shipping the cotton out, and there has been a decrease in the stocks for the week of nearly 50,000 bales. The outward movement will keep up for 10 days or two weeks longer, and there seems to be absolutely no question but that the stock of certificated cotton will be well below the 100,000 bale line before the opening of July.

The cotton is being distributed from this point so rapidly that it will leave little cotton to be financed during July, and there seems to be no special effort to bring cotton this way for delivery on contracts. Receipts are light and the trade has recently been showing a disposition to believe that the outstanding contracts in the July delivery are much smaller than estimated two weeks ago. There seems to be very little expectation of any sensational development, particularly with the Government indictments hanging over the market and the possible effect on a jury if there should be any sensational outcome to the great bull speculative movement.

There was a great deal of interest expressed the recent decision of the Court of Appeals in the case over a suit for the recovery of losses sustained through an error in transmission of a telegraphic order. The holding of the court was that the transaction was a gambling transaction, and as such there was no ground for recovery. Point, however, was made that a person had a right to sell goods for future delivery whether he had them or not, provided that he intended to deliver them at the appointed time. This decision brings into the market question a very important distinction between what might be considered a legitimate transaction for future delivery and the illegitimate sale for future delivery. As a decision some years ago by the United States Supreme Court in the case was that settlement by offset was a legitimate settlement and did not invalidate transactions, holding in the recent case caused a good deal of surprise. Exchange contracts have been recognized as contracts which must be fulfilled under any and all circumstances, either by the delivery of the actual goods or by the purchase from another of a contract as offset. This decision seems to raise the possibility of enforcement.

Weather conditions during the week have been much more favorable. There have been further rains throughout the East, but not of a serious character. There has been, on the other hand, a good deal of complaint of dry weather in Texas and Oklahoma, although there were showers in Texas at the close of the week. Temperatures have been much nearer normal and the progress with the cultivation of the crop has been good over a very important portion of the territory. The midmonth report of the National Ginners' Association making the condition of the crop 84.6, or 4.4 better than the end of May, expressed the general feeling that the crop was steadily making advancement, notwithstanding the fact that the weather conditions were not all that could be desired the early part of the month. The week end covered the time for the making up of the reports for the July statement by the Government, and in view of the much improved weather conditions which prevailed the preceding ten days, there was general disposition to look for a rather favorable Government report. This report will be issued Friday, July 1, at 12 o'clock. It will compare with a condition reported last month of 82. A year ago the condition of the crop was 74.6, and the ten-year average for the crop has been 80.8. Last year the crop condition ran down so that the condition at the end of August was only 63.7. The fact of a good condition now does not necessarily mean a large crop, but it is a big help that way.

The end of the week's statistics were bullish. The into-sight movement was again small, the total being only 27,688 bales, against 44,662 bales last year. Since Sept. 1 the total has been 10,085,429 bales, against 13,454,606 bales last year. Spinners' takings of American cotton for the week were 148,000 bales, against 159,000 bales last year; indicated decrease in visible of American cotton, 120,000 bales, against 114,000 bales decrease last year.

GEORGE CARD PEASE SUICIDE IN VERMONT

New Yorker Takes His Life at Summer Home—Had Been Ill Recently.

ONCE A YACHTING WRITER

Made a Success in Business and Retired—His Wife Run Over by a Sleigh and Crippled.

Special to The New York Times.

RUTLAND, Vt., June 26.—George Card Pease, a wealthy New Yorker, committed suicide at his country home in Panton Township at 6 o'clock to-night by shooting himself in the head. No details of the shooting can be learned to-night, as the household merely states that Mr. Pease died suddenly. Dr. G. F. Willard, who was summoned, admitted, however, that Mr. Pease shot himself in the right ear, the bullet passing through his head. Death was instantaneous. Ill-health is given as the cause of the suicide.

Mrs. Pease is now in Panton. She has spent part of each Summer with him on their country estate. Mr. Pease kept a large stable of horses, in which he took great pride. He bought the White farm, six miles south of Basin Harbor, about a year and a half ago, and had since spent an immense sum in beautifying the place.

Mr. Pease created a stir here some time ago when the Rutland Railroad refused to stop the south-bound sleeper for him. His wife had been injured, and he also wished to reach New York before the stock market opened on the following morning. He ordered a special train to take him to New York, but the company would not accept his check in payment, and it was necessary for him to deposit his watch and jewelry.

Mr. Pease was born in Painesville, Ohio, and is survived by his wife and one sister, who lives in New York.

George Card Pease, who committed suicide at his home at Vergennes, Vt., was for years well known among yachtsmen. He was a member of the New York Yacht Club, and had been a writer of yachting events for THE TIMES and The Sun.

When in New York Mr. Pease made his home at the Hotel Leonora, 701 Madison Avenue. He was about 50 years old, and his wife was somewhat younger. The latter some eighteen months ago was run over by a sleigh and has since been a cripple. Mr. Pease was ill six months ago, and went to a sanitarium.

It was in 1880 that Mr. Pease joined the staff of THE NEW YORK TIMES. He went to The Sun in 1891. Then in 1893 he entered the firm of Scott & Bowne, where he took charge of the advertising department and was sent to England. He started his newspaper work in Cleveland, Ohio. There he made a success, and after three years returned to this country, retired from business, and bought a place at Roslyn, L. I. Later he went to live at the country home in Vermont.

GIVEN UP FOR DEAD, RETURNS

Long Missing Son Turns Up Here with a Tale of Adventure.

After being given up for dead for four years by his mother, Joseph Reynolds returned home last week with a wonderful story of adventure in the Gilbert Islands of the South Pacific Ocean and a loss of memory. He wandered away when he was 18 years old from Greenwich Village, fired, apparently, by the wanderlust. His mother knew nothing of his whereabouts, and, after waiting for him for years, she was about to go back to England, when she was induced to take up her abode with her old friend, Mrs. M. L. Gilham, at 78 Greenwich Avenue.

There her son found her when he returned. All he could tell of his adventures was that he had worked for a time in different parts of the United States, and had then in some way reached the Gilbert Islands. He was found by the natives lying on the beach of Easter Island and with a badly wounded head and a bullet in his leg. The natives looked after him, but he was so badly hurt that he had lost his memory entirely.

After some time an ex-British Army officer, Edward Roper by name, happened to visit the islands. He was told of the presence of another white man and visited him. He did what he could for Reynolds, who had at that time a draft for $500 on the Bank of Hongkong, and as soon as a trading vessel came along took passage with him for Sydney, Australia. There he took him to a Dr. Forbes, a specialist in mental diseases, and had him treated.

By the use of a delicate instrument for measuring the effect on the hearing of certain letters, Dr. Forbes ascertained that his patient's name was Joseph, but could get no further with him. The only other things to which Reynolds responded with any quickness were certain Spanish names and phrases, with which he was familiar.

It was in Melbourne, Australia, that the memory of his surname came to him. "I was talking to a newspaper reporter," he said yesterday, "when I saw the name Reynolds on a shop. I seemed to have a vision of certain streets in New York, and by degrees the whole thing came back to me."

NEW PARTY IN PITTSBURG.

Reformers Ask Co-operation Throughout State for Independent Ticket.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., June 26.—Reformers and civic workers announced to-day the perfection of a local organization which is to be the nucleus for a new independent party in Pittsburg. At a conference last night a call was sent out to every county in the State to form committees to work with the Pittsburg organization.

At the head of the movement are George W. Guthrie, reform Mayor of Pittsburg up to a year ago; Julian Kennedy, wealthy blast furnace builder; Cornelius Scully, wealthy philanthropist, and the group of Chamber of Commerce members who have been prominent in the recent Councilmanic graft exposure and were mainly responsible for the "Pittsburg Survey" agitation by the Russell Sage Foundation.

In the call fellow-reformers in other counties are urged to hold public meetings and form an independent organization. It is announced that the Philadelphia reform element has promised to join the movement, and arrangements have been made for a caucus in Philadelphia within a few days to arrange plans for a State organization and the calling of a nominating convention to put a candidate for Governor in the field.

MOTHER AND BABY MISSING.

She Seeks in Vain for Treatment for the Child, Then Disappears.

Thomas E. Jones of 427 Broadway, in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn, asked the police of the Bedford Avenue Station last night to send out a general alarm for his wife and her eleven-months-old daughter, whom she took with her. The child had an abscess on one of her legs, the husband said, and after failing to obtain treatment in Williamsburg, she started for St. John's Hospital in Stapleton, S. I., on the advice of Dr. R. F. Johnson of the dispensary at 194 South Third Street, Brooklyn.

That was on Wednesday. On Friday night the husband received a despairing letter from his wife, who said she had not been able to get any treatment at St. John's Hospital, and that she was going to start for Manhattan to see if Bellevue would not try to help her. He has not heard of her since. She never reached Bellevue, it was said there. She had little money with which to pay for medical attention.

FIRE IMPERILS 200 GIRLS.

Flames Drive Them to the Roof of Factory, but All Escape.

Nearly two hundred girls and men were at work in tailor shops on the fifth and seventh floors of an eight-story building at 15 and 19 West Fourth Street yesterday morning when fire suddenly burst through the windows of the hat shop of Tenny, Hills & Hall, on the second floor, with a roar and a crash that was heard for a great distance.

A stampede for the stairways and fire escapes folowed, and patrolmen who were summoned from the Mercer Street Station found terrified men and women fighting to escape.

Policemen Taylor, Hadlick, and O'Connor started an electric freight elevator and carried three loads of women to the roof and returned for the men, while firemen were at work on the blaze, which they confined to the hat shop.

On the roof was a coil of rope, and Morris Loproe, Morris Fink, Abraham Evens, and Benjamin Bernstein fastened it to a chimney and slid twenty feet to the roof of a building adjoining. Their burned hands were treated by an ambulance surgeon. None of the girls was hurt, but many were made hysterical by the shouts of the firemen and police and the screams of their companions. The loss was about $1,000.

TWENTY NEAR DEATH BY FIRE.

Women and Children Carried Out by the Police When Tenement Burns.

Twenty persons narrowly escaped yesterday being burned to death in Newark when a fire started in the three-story frame tenement house at 38 Barclay Street while they slept. All were rescued safely by the police and firemen. The damage is estimated at about $5,000.

The fire was discovered by Policeman Speer, and in a few minutes the whole structure was filled with smoke and flame. Speer called for other policemen, and all made repeated trips into the house, arousing the tenants. Women and children were carried out in their night clothing.

Several men climbed out of a front window and crawled along cornices and down a rainpipe to the roof of a porch, from which they jumped to the street. One man, who ran to the roof, was taken down on scaling ladders by the firemen.

DAMS STOP STREAM OF FIRE.

Escaping River of Oil from Feed Pipe Was Set Afire by Locomotive Spark.

A feed pipe of the Standard Oil Company at Pleuterville, on the outskirts of Garfield, N. J., sprung a leak yesterday and hundreds of gallons of crude oil spread through the ditches and ravines for several miles around. The stream had been running for a while when a spark from a passing Erie freight locomotive set fire to the fluid, which had collected in a large pool alongside the Erie's Bergen County short cut.

In an instant a sheet of flame shot up and spread like lightning wherever there was oil to burn. Dense clouds of smoke were soon pouring over Pleuterville and over Garfield, even drifting as far as Passaic. Garfield's Fire Department was called out, but all the firemen could do was to shovel up dams to check the flow of oil.

A long while after the leak started, employes of the Erie and of the Standard Oil Company managed to reach the valve house and shut off the flow. Fortunately no buildings lay along the line of the fire.

RECORD CROWD FOR REGATTA.

Unusual Demand for Reservations for Yale-Harvard Races.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 26.—Among the rowing critics on the Thames opinions are crystallizing on the Yale-Harvard regatta on next Thursday. Time rowing has ended in preparation for the affair, and Harvard has the better of the predictions in all three races. It looks now like another all-around Harvard year. Harvard's rugged 'Varsity eight was late in making it clear that it lacked the speed of last year's crew, but its time row Friday night indicated that it is one of the strongest and fastest crews ever seen here, and it will reign favorite over Yale by odds of about 5 to 3.

Yale's freshman eight and 'Varsity four lack a stroke oar. Each has been crippled by the illness of stellar oarsmen. Stroke Appleton of the freshmen has been out of the 1913 shell a week with malaria, and Stroke Howe, who succeeded him, has failed to fill the vacancy satisfactorily. When Tucker, No. 2 of the 'Varsity eight, was stricken with malaria, Stroke Colburn of the 'Varsity four was placed in his seat, and this has practically wrecked the 'Varsity four.

Special to The New York Times.

GALES FERRY, Conn., June 26.—Fewer old oarsmen than usual on the Sunday before race day visited the Yale rowing camp this afternoon. The fact that Yale's commencement was held last Wednesday and that the alumni nearly all went to their homes will make the Yale crowd here until regatta day smaller than usual.

The crowd at the races this year will be bigger than ever before. In spite of the fact that the regatta comes eight days after Yale commencement the rush for tickets to the observation trains is the biggest in the history of the regatta. Even at Yale the supply has not equaled the demand, although the two observation trains have been enlarged to their capacity. The yachts in the harbor will be the most notable on record. They are already beginning to arrive, and the number and quality of the fleet is certain to be the most remarkable in Thames history.

In spite of the fact that for two or three years the outcome of nearly all the races has been a foregone conclusion and that only two crews are entered in each race, the regattas have called forth larger and larger crowds annually until it is estimated that twice as many more people will see the races here Thursday as went up the Hudson yesterday to watch the magnificently contested intercollegiate struggles.

The fact that four revenue cutters, instead of two, have been detailed by the United States Government to do police duty over the course, indicates the complications which the increased number of spectators have caused. All four have been ordered to report here to-morrow in order to get all the details for patrolling the course well in hand before race day.

Yale's crew has closed a remarkable period of training here. It has been in its quarters a full month, a week longer than usual. The crews have never had as much sickness in camp as this year, and they have not been kept in as good a physical condition as was hoped. Two oarsmen, Appleton, freshman stroke, and Tucker, No. 2 of the 'Varsity, are out of the regatta because of malaria. Coach Dick Hawes of the freshmen has a touch of it, and Coach Kennedy has not been feeling well for several days.

Fire in 25,000-Ton Heap of Coal.

HASTINGS, N. Y., June 26.—Spontaneous combustion is supposed to have ignited to-day a 25,000-ton coal heap at the plant of the National Conduit and Cable Company here. The coal blazed for hours, and for a time the factory buildings were in danger. The loss will be several thousand dollars.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY UPSETS A WEDDING

Man and Baby Are Shot and Fire Starts in Brooklyn at the Same Time.

BRIDAL COACH AMBULANCE

Wild Excitement Follows Unprovoked Shooting of One Italian by Another—Baby Wounded by Stray Shot.

A double shooting, a fire, and a wedding all taking place at the same time threw the Navy Street Italian quarter of Brooklyn into a state of wild excitement yesterday. The bridal procession was broken up by the police seizing one of the coaches and pressing it into service to carry a mortally wounded man to the hospital. While the neighborhood was thus stirred up the fire apparatus, with ringing of gongs, went dashing through the street, adding to the general hubbub. When it was all over it was found that a man and a child had been shot, that the one who did the shooting had escaped, that a bride and bridegroom had been delayed in reaching the altar, and that a store awning had been burned.

The victims of the shooting were Joseph Derfano, 3 three years old, of 622 President Street and August Piccalo, 22 years old, of 154 Navy Street. When the series of happenings began the house stoops and the sidewalks in Navy Street, between Myrtle Avenue and Johnson Street, were crowded with people enjoying the air. Piccalo was seated on the stoop of his home talking with a young woman. The Derfano boy, with his mother, Mrs. Angelina Derfano, was walking down the street on the way to visit friends.

As Mrs. Derfano and her son were passing the stoop on which Piccalo sat, a man, an Italian, ran up, and, drawing a pistol, fired at Piccalo. The bullet struck the Derfano boy in the right leg. As the child fell the Italian fired two more shots at Piccalo, one of which lodged in his abdomen, the other bullet imbedding itself in the house door. The man with the pistol then ran toward Johnson Street. He was joined by two other men, who had been standing down the street, and all disappeared.

Attracted by the shooting, Patrolman White of the Adams Street Station picked up the wounded child and carried him to a near-by drug store. As Patrolman Corkle of the same station appeared a procession of a dozen carriages, carrying a wedding party of Italians, came up the street. Corkle pressed one of the coaches into use as an ambulance, and, putting Piccalo in it, had him driven to the Brooklyn Hospital. An ambulance surgeon took the boy to the Cumberland Street Hospital.

Word had been sent to the police station and Lieut. McCormack had sent reserves to the scene. They arrived with the firemen who were responding to an alarm in Hudson Avenue, near Myrtle, where an awning over a store front had taken fire. By the time the reserves arrived Navy Street was wild with excitement. The police searched the neighborhood, but failed to find any trace of the man who had done the shooting.

The hospital surgeons were unable to find the bullet in Piccalo's abdomen. His wound seemed to be a mortal one.

Questioned by detectives from Headquarters, the patient said that he did not know the man who had shot him. He had not quarreled with any one, he declared, and could not understand why he had been shot. The police did not seem disposed to accept these statements, but Piccalo stuck to them, although informed that he would probably die. The young woman with whom Piccalo was talking at the time of the shooting and the other people in the house all expressed ignorance as to the identity of the shooter or the cause of the shooting.

The assailant was described to the police as a man apparently 25 years old, with smooth-shaven face, and wearing a gray suit of clothes. He wore no hat, and this circumstance led to the belief that he lived in the neighborhood.

THREE RACES AT MOTORDROME

Twenty-four-Hour Contest at Brighton to be Subdivided.

There will be more than one automobile race on the Brighton Beach Motordrome July 15 and 16. There will, in fact, be three races, and all running simultaneously. Under the new ruling of the A. A. A. Contest Committee the sanction for the race specifies that it shall be held under Class C, which has three subdivisions, according to piston displacement. In each of these subdivisions a special prize is to be given by the Motor Racing Association for the race which starts at 9 o'clock on the evening of July 15. All the cars in all the divisions will be started together exactly as in a single race.

The decision to hold the division races practically assures the limit of twelve starters in the contest as a whole. There had been some talk of raising this limit, but after consultation with the Drivers' Committee the association has decided that, in the interest of safety, no more than twelve racing cars should be permitted on the track at one time. It is likely, therefore, that the entry list will be closed long before the announced date of July 9.

IN NEW JERSEY.

In Bayonne yesterday the Centreville and Tearaway Athletic Clubs played a baseball game, the proceeds of which will go to a fund to purchase a monument for the grave of Samuel Berne, Captain of the Centreville team, who was recently killed by a railroad train near Scranton.

In the Bayonne Police Court on Thursday Herman C. Rocktoff and Thomas Furlong, dog catchers employed by the Hudson County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, will be arraigned on a charge of having assaulted Mrs. Ida Shock of 550 Broadway, Bayonne, when she tried to prevent their carrying off her dog, which they did.

Hugh McEnaney, 3 years old, of 278 Lafayette Street, Newark, died yesterday at his home as the result of burns he received while playing in the rear yard. He rushed into the kitchen afire from head to foot. Mrs. McEnaney put the blaze out with much difficulty, and summoned a physician. It is believed that he had some matches and some pennies in his pockets, and falling down ignited the matches, which set fire to his clothing.

As a result of injuries received by falling from a tree on to a picket fence William Nugent, 13 years old, of 304 South Ninth Street, Newark, N. J., died yesterday in the Newark City Hospital.

A warrant sworn out four weeks ago in Springfield, Ohio, was the authority for the arrest at West Orange late Saturday night of Irving Brown, who is accused of having embezzled a check for $35.75 drawn to his order, but not for his use, by the Davey Tree Company of that place, by which Brown was employed. Brown admitted having made use of the money, although only a part of it was intended for him, the balance being wages for two men who were working under him in Cincinnati. When arraigned before Recorder Condit yesterday he was paroled in the custody of Frank H. La Pierre of East Orange, who said he was a friend of Brown's family.

Recorder Francis A. Nott, Jr., of East Orange, who happened to be at Police Headquarters late Saturday night, took part in a raid on a poker game in which nine negroes were corraled and locked up. He will try them to-day.

Two deer that did so much damage to crops on farms lying between Cedar Grove and Little Falls last Summer have again visited that location, reinforced by a fawn about four months old. They were discovered in a field of young turnips belonging to Abram Van Tassell yesterday morning, and when being driven away the buck showed an inclination to fight.

Edith Bunce, 13 years old, of 43 Fair Street, Paterson, has again been reported to the police by her parents as missing. Some weeks ago Edith and her younger sister Viola played truant. A threat by their mother to tell their father resulted in their disappearing. They were gone several days and were picked up in Passaic.

INGRATITUDE IN DOGS' HOME.

Also Some Inclination to Blame It on the Waldorf Meals.

Mr. Editor: There was lots of excitement at the Bide-A-Wee home the other morning 224 E 65 several of the help at the Bide-A-Wee home thinks the dogs are not satisfied with the Waldorf Astoria board while others at the home say the food was not to blame

About 8 Oclock in the morning Ernest the Auto runner was notified to get the new dog and cat automobile ready for to start on a trip to the country home at Harrington 100 dogs were to be shipped over so as to make room for new comers at the Bide-A-Wee. It only took Ernest a few minutes and he started to back the auto out of the shed loaded with his fleet of 100 dogs but as he turned into the street he pushed against one of the fences where a big lot of other dogs were locked up inside of and in a second a door leading from the fence opened up and immediately sixteen dogs made a dash for liberty. Some of the dogs started for the West side, others for the East side and others for up and downtown.

Ernest shouted at the top of his voice for the help in the office and at once half doz of the officials at the Home were on the Job trying to catch the runaway muts.

It was proposed that Ernest go after the dogs with the Auto which had the separate 100 dogs in it for Harrington but the idea was given up and Ernest went his way to Harrington with his load In the meantime several of the escaped dogs were caught & returned to the Home, but it was not until late in the afternoon that the 12th dog was brought back all the way from the West side a collar on each dogs neck showed they were the property of Bide A Wee Home & the result was the people who picked them up about town returned them at Once 12 of the dogs returned but four others still missing caused more anxiety specially when it was found out that the four missing dogs were the Pets of the Bide A Wee home.

Miss Brown the nurse in charge as well as Miss Jennie the bookkeeper began to wish things they rubbed their heads and scratched their heads, Miss Brown as well as Miss Jennie were almost in tears as Miss Brown cried out O where can our poor Toodie and Noisey be. Heavens isn't it awful. Yes answered Miss Jennie. Where can our poor Picket and Baby be. I cant stand the strain any longer. Come & we will search the neighborhood again

Both agreed they would go wild if they dident recover the Pets of the home the only four dogs out of all the fleet who had office jobs at the Home to make their escape with the rest of the gang. It was more than the officials at the Home could stand

So out started Miss Jennie and Miss Brown first up to 3rd Ave & 65 St & then back to 2nd Ave & 65 St and as they neared 2nd Ave they got a clew.

Miss Jennie heard a terrible growling inside of a saloon on the corner 65 St & 2nd Ave and called to Miss Brown to hurry up she heard something that sounded like Noisey and Toodles Voice inside. Miss Brown rushed to the door of the saloon & pushing it open almost fainted at the sight in front of her. Sure enough the four pets Baby, Toodie, Picket, & Noisey were up near the lunch counter and were having it out between themselves all over a few stray Frankfurters on the floor. But Miss Jennie and Miss Brown dident wait until the fight was over, but picking the 4 pets up marched back to the home, with tears running down their cheeks. Miss Brown and Miss Jennie were congratulated on their good luck and the 4 pet dogs were transferred to other quarters for their bad behavior.

What got into the 4 pets heads to tackle a saloon for free grub when Waldorf Astoria Hotel meals are served daily at the Bide A Wee home is what is puzzling Even Dr. F. A. Campbell veterinary surgeon in charge at the home. But all hands at the home confess it was better to catch them tackling free lunch or Frankfurters than not to catch them at all the 4 pets are Fox Terriers and black & tans. Ernest has been cautioned to be more careful in backing the Auto out hereafter, & the 16 stray dogs are all back again. Mrs. Kebbie the Pres of the Bide A Wee Ass'n was not at the home yesterday & knows nothing about the affair out when she comes to the home to-morrow Monday she will be told about it. As all the dogs were returned or found there will be no kick so you can print this.

Mrs. Harry Ulysses Kibbe, President of the Bide-a-Wee Home, said last night that she wasn't so much inclined to attribute the last dog exodus to discontent with the Waldorf scraps, served to the Bide-a-Wee dogs for meals, as to the desire of all the home dogs to use their own automobile at all times. She thinks the dogs in this case ran away from chagrin because the automomile, being full already, they were not invited to take an outing to the country home and back again. However, Mrs. Kibbe said it was just as well that they didn't because she had heard since that the automobile got stalled on a hill on the way out and only arrived at the country home at 1 o'clock the next morning, having spent the intervening time tied to the machine, while the farmers around kept them soothed with a cold supper of chicken and hominy.

Clerk's Defalcation Used as Excuse to Dismiss Him, Says Ex-Collector of Revenue.

ACCUSES THE CONTROLLER

Peter Aitkin Says Differences Over Bill Posting Privileges and Transit Lines Arrears Were Real Reasons.

Through the dismissal of Peter Aitkin, Collector of City Revenue and Superintendent of Markets, the defalcation of a clerk in his bureau of about $2,000 has come out. Controller Prendergast dispensed with Mr. Aitkin's services on the ground of incompetency, and the latter asserted yesterday that the fact that he had not detected the clerk's malpractices had been used to cover up certain divergences of opinion as to his conduct of his office.

The defalcations of the clerk, according to Mr. Aitkin, began eighteen months ago. He was assisting a fellow-clerk to collect rent for houses owned by the city on property taken for public improvements, and retained various small sums without entering their receipt in the books. Two months ago in the absence of this clerk one of the city tenants called and was informed that he was in arrears with his rent. He asserted that he had paid everything to date, and asked for an investigation. An examination of his books showed that the clerk was short about $2,000, and an attempt was made to find him at his home. He was not there, and a warrant was issued for his arrest. He has not been found yet.

Controller Prendergast was out of the city yesterday and could not be asked about this matter. However, Deputy Controller Douglas Mathewson said:

"I do not know the entire circumstances attending the dismissal of Mr. Aitkin, but I know that the defalcations in his office were not the only cause. It was considered, however, that if he had been thoroughly efficent he would have discovered a shortage, which had been in existence for months."

Mr. Aitkin stated last night that there were other differences of opinion between Controller Prendergast and himself.

"Mr. Prendergast," he said, "calls me inefficient. Yet I was in the department for three years under Controller Grout, and four years under Controller Metz. They promoted me, so that they must have thought me efficient. Mr. Prendergast asked me to resign, and when I refused charges were made against me. I had no opportunity to prepare an answer, but in a few days I intend to issue a complete statement of my conduct, and also full details of this embezzlement.

"One dispute that I had with the Controller was in connection with the privilege granted to the American Bill Posting Company of erecting advertisements on the city lots. I found that it was not paying rent for this right, and I reported the matter to Mr. Prendergast. The company then offered to pay up arrears, but I considered that it was not offering as large a rental as was right. I suggested that before the privilege was renewed we should investigate its real value. Controller Prendergast, however, would not permit this, but ordered the immediate return of the contract to the company.

"I also found that the Ninth Avenue Railroad had fallen about $40,000 in arrears in the payment of its percentages to the city. I asked the company to pay interest on these arrears. It appealed to the Controller, and he asked me if there was anything in the franchise about interest on arrears. I told him that there was only a general provision, and he replied, 'I do not do business under general provisions,' and waived the interest. I since have looked up the exact provisions of the charter and have found that it provides for the payment of interest semi-annually. This would make the interest due to the city, $1,500.

"I had other points of disagreement with the Controller, and he remained firm in the view which he took. The result is he has dismissed me and has used the defalcation in my office as a convenient pretext."

GLIDDENITES ON LAST LAP.

Only Eleven Cars Remain for Final Burst of Speed.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 26.—The last lap of the Glidden tour starts from here to-morrow and ends at Chicago on Thursday, giving the contestants but four days more of running. The run to-morrow will be to Omaha, Neb., a distance of 243 miles. The tourists rested to-day, devoting a part of it to sightseeing.

The Gliddenites arrived last night after a hard week. The present trip has been worse than the hardest of Glidden tours. It has been a grind never before approached in any automobile contest anywhere. Only eleven cars remain in the two contesting divisions out of about forty which left Cincinnati on June 14. Of those still holding together for the final burst of speed into Chicago not half a dozen are within reasonable approach of perfect scores with which they began the long grind. In the Glidden Trophy division there are but two real contestants—Premier No. 1 and Chalmers No. 5. The latter still leads the tour with a penalization of but three points. Both cars came through perfectly yesterday.

In the Chicago Trophy class four cars are in the running—Molines Nos. 100 and 102, each with a penalty of 12 points; Lexington No. 103, which has lost 10 points, and Maxwell No. 107, which has a penalty of 18 points. All of the other cars may be considered hopelessly out of the running. There is a possibility, in view of what has gone before, that a car with less than 100 points penalty will be high class at the final check in at Chicago.

Yesterday's run from Wichita to Kansas City was the longest of the tour thus far, yet every car which has reported came through with a perfect score for the day.

The first car to reach Kansas City was the Chalmers Pilot, driven by Joe Matson. This car left Wichita at 4:30 o'clock in the morning and reached here after an elapsed running time of eleven hours and fifty minutes. The next car to arrive was the Columbia, carrying Referee Whiting, one hour and forty-five minutes later. The day's run passed over fine roads through Kansas, though heavy showers did loosen up the gumbo and make the going hard in places.

Bouts at Olympic Club.

Jack Fitzgerald, the Philadelphia welterweight, is in the best of shape for his battle with the Dixie Kid, which takes place before the members of the Olympic Athletic Club of Harlem to-night. If the Kid is successful in defeating Fitzgerald his manager expects to match him with Billy Papke before the National Athletic Club in two weeks' time. The management expects a great many of the members to turn out on account of the dues being reduced to 50 cents.

CORKMEN KEEN IN SPORT.

One-Mile Run, Feature Event, Won by L. Scott of Paterson A. C.

The annual games of the Corkmen's Association were held yesterday at New Irish Park, Wakefield, Westchester. The athletic programme included Gaelic football and four events on the track. The feature event was the one-mile run. L. Scott of the Paterson Athletic Club romped home an easy victor after leading the field for the greater part of the distance.

F. J. Richley, unattached, captured the honors in the three-mile handicap, closely followed by T. Dwyer of the National Athletic Club, who put up a good fight for first place, but was unable to overhaul Richley. A Miller, unattached, was first home in the 600-yard novice race, winning by a scant margin.

Rivalry in the Gaelic football games ran high, as all four of the teams are keen rivals, and the opposing teams fought hard and fast. In the opening game the Louthmen defeated Waterford by the score of 2 goals and 3 points to 1 goal and 3 points. In the second battle Kilkenny trounced the Corkmen for 9 points to 3. The summaries:

220-Yard Dash, Handicap.—Won by R. Bell, Mohawk A. C., (11 yards;) B. Garring, National A. C., (12 yards,) second; J. J. Dougherty, unattached, (14 yards,) third. Time—0:22 1-5.

600-Yard Run, Novice.—Won by A. Miller, unattached; W. A. Faulkner, East Side House, second; F. Margrof, Union Branch Y. M. C. A., third. Time—1:21 4-5.

One-mile Run, Handicap.—Won by L. Scott, Patterson A. C., (40 yards;) R. Gilbernagel, Mercury A. C., (50 yards,) second; M. J. Boerck, West End A. C., (100 yards,) third. Time—4:40 2-5.

Three-mile Run, Handicap.—Won by F. J. Richley, unattached; T. Dwyer, National A. C., second; H. McGinn, West Side A. C., third. Time—15:48 3-5.

IN AID OF IRISH ATHLETICS.

Mass Meeting Held to Pay Off Wakefield Park Debt.

A mass meeting of the members of the Irish organizations comprising the Irish Counties Athletic Union, was held in Carnegie Hall last night, the purpose of the meeting being to free from debt the Irish Athletic Park at Wakefield and to encourage the promotion of Irish sports and games in the city. Ex-Supreme Court Justice Morgan J. O'Brien and ex-Police Commissioner William McAdoo spoke, and Andrew Mack, the comedian; Thomas P. White, and Mrs. Margaret Keating sang Irish songs.

The meeting was not a success from a standpoint of attendance, as there were not more than 600 in the hall, but it was said that some 3,000 others had bought tickets. Judge O'Brien and Mr. McAdoo both praised the Irish for their physical as well as their mental qualities, and Judge O'Brien referring to Theodore Roosevelt said he was sure that the wonderful success that has attended Col. Roosevelt's career was to a great extent due to the virility that came from his love of sport and the outdoor life.

Mr. McAdoo said he regretted the passing of uncommercialized athletics, and pointed out that twenty years ago the Irish in New York led in baseball, athletics, and even prizefighting, and of the latter he added he was not ashamed. He praised John L. Sullivan and compared that ex-champion's fights with the fights of to-day. A prizefight agreement to-day, he said, was drawn up by a corps of lawyers and the papers looked like a blanket mortgage on the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Subscriptions for Wakefield Park aggregating more than $4,000 were announced. Archbishop Farley sent a check for $200.
